ALL WASHINGTON WATCHES CHICAGO

President and Administration Deeply Interested in the Mayoralty Election Outcome.

HOPE BUSSE WILL WIN.

Malign Influences Behind Mayor Dunne's Candidacy Regarded as Peril to Safe and Sane Government.

BY RAYMOND.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—Ever since the railroad wreck in which Postmaster Busse had such a narrow escape for his life the attention of the administration constantly has been called to the mayoralty fight in Chicago. Senator Cullom and others who have been at the White house have repeatedly brought out the fact that there is a great deal more than merely the local situation involved and that the fight in Chicago in many respects is only a repetition of that between Hearst and McClellan in New York and later on between Hearst and Hughes.

Inasmuch as President Roosevelt took such an active part in the campaign against Hearst in New York state, some of his friends and advisers have hoped that he might do equally good service in behalf of Busse as against Dunne and the peculiar municipal elements which the latter represents. In response to a direct request made upon him today, however, the president sent out word that he could not interfere in the Chicago mayoralty fight in any way.

All His Sympathy with Busse.

His sympathy with the republican movement and his constant friendship for Postmaster Busse are known to all people, but the president has thus far declined to put himself into writing or to do more than express to all his Chicago and Illinois callers his great interest in the struggle and his anxiety that next month's election should come out in the right way.

Throughout the whole of President Roosevelt's long and hard fight to bring the railroads to terms he has stood as a representative not of the radical view but of the conservative one. He has openly denounced government ownership of railroads throughout the country and he has never even remotely favored municipal ownership in cities. There could scarcely be two people farther apart in their economic and governmental theories than Edward F. Dunne, mayor of Chicago, and Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States.

The president was quick to discern the weakness in Bryan's armor when the latter in his Madison Square garden speech last summer came out for government ownership of railroads. Ever since then the president has endeavored to draw a distinction between legitimate government control and regulation and the purely socialistic theory that the government should own and control its transportation lines and the cities own and control all of their public utilities.

Precedent Bars Active Support.

When Postmaster Busse was put in nomination for the mayoralty in Chicago, it was by no means against the advice and consent of the president. Mr. Roosevelt was naturally anxious that a man he deemed good enough to be postmaster of Chicago should be elected to any office to which he had been nominated unanimously by the same party as that which unanimously nominated the president in the same city. On the other hand, the president has made it an almost invariable rule, and in this he has followed precedents set by other presidents, not to interfere in local contests.

He wrote a letter in the New York fight last fall which unquestionably had a large influence in securing the election of Hughes and defeating Hearst. In taking this stand, which was quite out of the ordinary, the president believed he had a right to take part in the campaign because he was himself a citizen of New York state and had personal and local interest in the outcome of the political fight then pending.

It has been represented to President Roosevelt by Senator Cullom and others, and the fact was spoken of at some length in the conference between the president and Gov. Deneen, that the fight in Chicago has rapidly grown far beyond its purely local limits. Some of those who have urged the president to write a letter, or take some other public stand in behalf of Busse as against Dunne, have overlooked the fact that in this particular case there is natural delicacy on the part of members of the administration in interfering in any way except to make known their sympathy with the republican ticket.

Trusts Postmaster Implicitly.

Postmaster Busse is a federal official. The civil service rules promulgated by the president himself require that such officials shall not take an offensive part in partisan politics. It was the president himself, however, who recognized the fact that the nomination for mayor by acclamation was such an unusual thing that it could not be said the postmaster had personally sought nomination by any unfair means or had used his office to promote his own personal interests.

As a result of this point of view, President Roosevelt took affirmative action, in which he declared that Postmaster Busse might remain in his federal office during the whole of the municipal campaign, and that he would not be expected to resign or even offer to resign unless he felt that by so doing his political prospects were made brighter.

President Roosevelt merely insisted at the opening of the Chicago campaign that the local postoffice must be under no consideration converted into a political headquarters. To every one of his Chicago callers he was personally enthusiastic in speaking of Busse's prospects of election and of the triumph it would be for reasonable conservatism as against the wild radicalism to which President Roosevelt is more opposed than almost any other public man in the country.

His Campaign Defies Criticism.

When Postmaster Busse left Washington late in the afternoon on the Pennsylvania limited, and was wrecked a few hours later, he carried with him personal assurances that the entire sympathy of the administration would go with him in his fight. He himself was the first to declare that his municipal campaign would be conducted through or-

ROUMANIA UNDER SWORD AND TORCH

Cities Plundered, 10,000 Jews Homeless, Many Persons Slain in Widespread Peasant Revolt.

KING'S ARMY IS DEFIED.

Soldiers Compelled to Fire on Mobs in Many Places to Check Work of Pillage.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

VIENNA, March 22.—All northern Roumania is aflame with the peasant revolt. A score of towns have been burned. Four hundred estates have been pillaged. Ten thousand Jews are homeless—scores have been slain.

Eight thousand refugees have crossed the frontier and there is grave danger the revolt will spread into Austria. The Austrian government has strengthened its forces on the frontier.

The outbreak seems today to have been partially suppressed. The Roumanian government is still sending troops into the afflicted district. Practically the entire province of Moldavia has been involved.

Agrarian, Not Anti-Jewish.

The movement is really more agrarian than anti-semitic. The peasants are in revolt against the great farming trust, which has leased half the cultivatable lands in Moldavia. The absentee landlords who control the trust happen to be Jews, and this fact brings the ire of the peasants down upon any and all Jews that they meet, and to this antipathy is added strong racial feeling arising from other causes.

On Thursday 500 peasants tried to invade Michaileni. In spite of the fact that there was a sufficient number of Roumanian troops in this town to stop the rioters, the peasants at first got the upper hand because the soldiers, acting upon the orders of the prefect of the town, were not permitted by their officers to open fire. In the face of the menaces of the furious peasants, however, some of the soldiers did fire against orders. This volley killed fifteen of the rioters and wounded forty-five, whereupon the peasants withdrew.

Battle at Vaslui.

A more successful attack was made at Vaslui, to the south of Jassy. Here a body of 2,000 peasants forced their way into the town. The prefect of Vaslui did not have sufficient troops at his command to stop the onward march of the infuriated countrymen. He stood by a helpless witness while the rioters, in an incredibly short space of time, plundered practically all the buildings on the three principal streets of Vaslui, and then set them on fire. The peasants had looted freely, and the fire completed the work of destruction.

The prefect sent in a hurried appeal for reinforcements and the peasants, in ignorance of this step, remained in the town until the soldiers arrived. There then ensued a serious fight up and down the burned streets. The soldiers came out victorious. Twenty rioters were killed and many were wounded. The commander of the troops, Maj. Calori, sustained serious injuries.

The entire Roman district was up in arms. Here the authorities were powerless and the peasants pillaged, burned, and devastated everywhere. All the buildings in the villages of Halancesti, Herlesti, Holcisteni, and Ninelusen were demolished, and the villages are now nothing more than heaps of ruins.

It is estimated that not less than 8,000 fugitives have crossed the frontier into the Austrian province of Bukowina, where they are being cared for as well as possible.

Attack a Whole Regiment.

The most serious fight of today occurred near Piatra, a town about sixty miles southwest of Jassy. Several thousand peasants marched against this town, where an entire regiment of infantry was stationed. The soldiers charged the peasants with fixed bayonets. The peasants replied to this onslaught with rifle and revolver fire, and then the troops began shooting back. The fighting lasted over an hour before the rioters retreated. Forty-two of them were killed, 67 wounded, and 250 made prisoners. Of the troops 8 men were killed and 27 wounded.

The estimate of 10,000 Jews without homes is considered here to be conservative. Most of these fugitives saved absolutely nothing, escaping with their lives. Four thousand Jews fled to Bucharest, where the authorities are now making every effort to assist them, but practically all are obliged to sleep in the open air.

The entire garrison at Bucharest is being held in readiness for service in the disturbed district. Reinforcements to the number of 1,800 men have been brought into the city by special trains. Eight thousand reservists have been called to the colors.

Stories of Outrages.

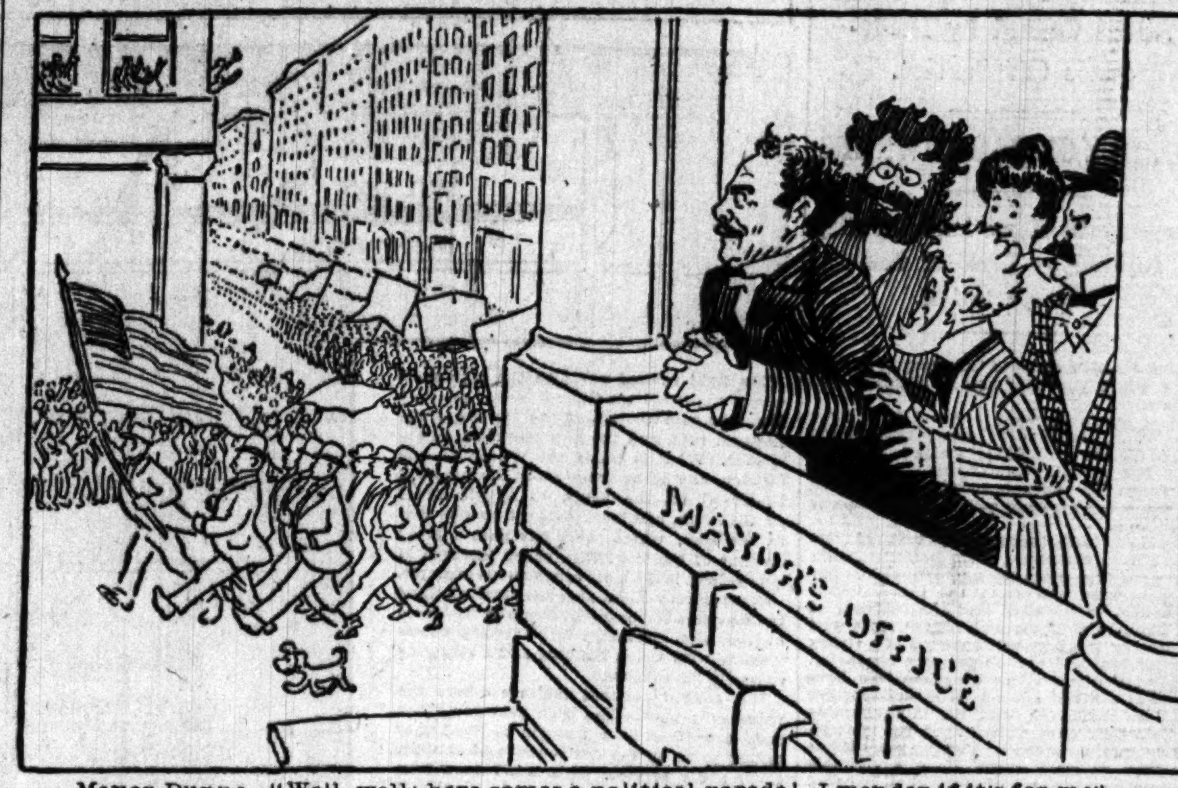

The fugitives who have escaped into Austria tell dreadful stories of the outrages to which they have been subjected, but tonight they are so worn out with their flight or so under the spell of the fear that drove them from Roumania, that no one can give a detailed account of his or her experiences.

Fugitives from Botosahnik, who were the first to reach the frontier, declared tonight that a body of 2,000 peasants succeeded in forcing their way into town after midnight. The people of Botosahnik had been informed of their coming, and most of the women and children had been started toward the frontier. The men remained behind for the purpose of offering resistance and defending their property. The reports are to the effect that the bloodthirsty rioters killed many persons in Botosahnik, but it has been impossible to get reliable figures.

In Peril of Famine.

In the town of Botosahni the scarcity of meat and bread is beginning to entail suffering. A number of butcher and baker shops were destroyed, while the remainder have closed up. Nobody dares to sell meat. While the situation in this district is slightly better today, the conditions in the district of Dorogoi, about twenty miles to the northwest of Botosahni, have changed for the worse. The tenants of all the farms near Herza and Molnika have fled.

The town of Dorogoi was attacked yesterday by a body of 4,000 peasants. The local clergymen made vain efforts to calm the excited masses. The peasants would not listen to them and swept them out of their path. A regiment of cavalry was then called into action and attacked the peasants vigorously. The mob finally was driven back, but not before many men had been killed or wounded. It is still impossible to ascertain the exact numbers.

Mayor Dunne—"Well, well; here comes a political parade! I wonder if it's for me"

"Naw, it's a Busse crowd."

BURTON LASH FOR ROOSEVELT

TELLS OF 'THIRD TERM PLOT'

Man in White House Juggling Candidates to Suit Himself.

St. Louis, Mo., March 22.—[Special.]—"The most monumental hypocrite in history," was Joseph Ralph Burton's characterization of the president when he reached St. Louis today.

Burton, former United States senator from Kansas, was released from prison at Ironton, Mo., today, where he had completed a six months' sentence for improperly representing the Rialto Grain company of St. Louis in government matters.

When Burton arrived in St. Louis he was bursting with a desire to talk for publication. He was eager to talk about himself and about the men he called his "enemies"—particularly about his enemies—of whom he places President Roosevelt at the top of the list.

He did not choose his words in discussing the president, or the president's friends, his policy, or his ambitions. He declared Roosevelt was alone in the presidential race and that he was moving other candidates around on the board like a chess master.

"He's the most monumental hypocrite in history," he declared, introducing Roosevelt as the topic of conversation.

"Is Roosevelt a candidate?" he asked, repeating a question put to him. "I would say he is always a candidte and has been since he was old enough to vote.

"A Master Hypocrite."

"A master hypocrite, he can successfully mislead the public into the idea that he is for some one else for the nomination, but when the time comes he will be the candidate. He has already succeeded in making the party leaders declare that the Roosevelt policy must be pursued. The next thing we will hear is that if the Roosevelt policy is to continue, Roosevelt is the proper man for the nomination.

"That is precisely what Roosevelt is hoping to see happen, and from the outlook it does not appear he will be disappointed. He has killed off La Follette by being friendly to Spooner. Shaw was sidetracked when Roosevelt took up the cause of Cummins. Shaw saw the handwriting on the wall and left the cabinet to accept a position in New York. Foraker has been attended to by the president's apparent friendliness to Taft, and who is left in the race? No one but Roosevelt.

"He is using Taft like a flirting wife would impose on a foolish husband—to cover up her unfaithfulness. When the time comes he will cast poor old Taft aside and accept a nomination for a third term, which he hopes will be thrust upon him.

Taft Not Big Enough.

"Taft is not big enough for the presidency. He is simply a tool of Roosevelt, who may throw Root into the race to make the waters muddy almost any time. Cortelyou also may be shifted into the race, but none of them can be taken seriously, save Roosevelt, who, though not openly a candidate, is playing his cards to bring about his own nomination for a third term, and he will get it.

"Roosevelt is too shrewd to declare himself a candidate. If he did he would be out of the race the moment he announced his candidacy. He wants the nomination to be 'forced,' as it were, and he will accept it with open arms.

"We read in the scripture about the Savior healing the leper, curing the sick, making the blind see and the lame walk, but nowhere in biblical history do we read of Christ either forgiving or curing a hypocrite. The disease is one which grows on a person as the years roll by and it is incurable.

"There are two kinds of hypocrites. One is a smooth, oily, scheming, humble individual, of which Dickens' character, Uriah Heep, is an immortal example. The other is the brusque, bulldozing, bold type, of which no better example can be found than Theodore Roosevelt."

Says He Is Innocent.

Burton was asked to make a statement as to his own trouble. He declared he had done nothing more than other senators told him they had done, and was guilty of no crime.

"My body has been jailed at Ironton for the last five months," he said, "but my mind is as free as it ever was. I will not discuss my trouble further now. I have been wronged but I bear no resentment against any one. I have learned to pity hypocrites, but I want to call their attention to one thing—I have only two cheeks."

His Exit from Prison.

Burton was in excellent spirits this morning. He arose at 6 o'clock. All his arrangements for leaving prison had been completed yesterday and he had nothing to do but to dress and walk out, a free man.

At 20 minutes after 6 he stepped out from the corridor of the jail and for the first time in five months viewed the surrounding country as a free man. He walked rapidly and alone over to the sanitarium, a block south of the jail, where his wife and two nieces were waiting for him. For the first time during his imprisonment his wife did not bring his breakfast to the jail. She had prepared it at the sanitarium for him, however, and a happy party sat down together.

Accompanied by his wife and nieces he left for St. Louis at 7:37 o'clock, arriving here three hours later.

Tonight Burton left St. Louis for Abilene, Kas., where tomorrow night he will tell his former constituents, fellow townsmen, and friends what he thinks of certain people, some of whom are of national celebrity.

TRAVELS 7,000 MILES TO KILL MAN WHO WON HIS WIFE AWAY.

Miner Trails Russian Count from Nome to Goldfield and Slays Him Beside Woman He Stole.

Goldfield, Nev., March 22.—[Special.]—The most sensational murder this camp has ever known occurred when J. C. Hines, a miner from Nome, shot Count Constantine Podhorski, a Russian Pole, as he sat with Hines' wife at a table in the Aja restaurant last night. Walking directly up to the count, Hines drew a large revolver and fired five shots into his body. The count fell over lifeless, and pandemonium reigned in the restaurant.

Calmly, as if he were about to reply to a toast at a banquet table, Hines laid his smoking weapon on the table, and, mounting a chair, said:

"Listen, friends. I have been tracing this man for months. I have come 7,000 miles to kill him. He is dead at your feet. This woman with him is my wife. This man seduced her and ruined my life. I have vengeance and am willing to take my medicine like a gentleman!"

Hines was taken to jail. Podhorski was the son of a former governor of Siberia and Princess Radziwill.

RUSSIA OUT OF MANCHURIA.

Last Battalion of Czar's Defeated Troops Marches Out of the City of Harbin.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 22.—The Russian evacuation of Manchuria is complete. The last battalion of Russian troops left Harbin on Thursday.

GIVES $50,000 TO ORCHESTRA

Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page Presents Fund as Endowment.

INCOME TO ADVANCE MUSIC.

Money May Be Applied to This Purpose as Directors Choose.

The music world of Chicago was stirred yesterday by the news of a donation of $50,000 to the Orchestral association by Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page. The gift is in the nature of a trust fund to be used for the promotion of musical art in all its branches in whatever way the directors of the association may think best.

A notification from Mrs. Page's lawyers of their client's gift reached President Bryan Lathrop yesterday and he immediately issued an emergency call for a meeting of the directors, which was held in the afternoon, and resolutions of acceptance and thanks were ordered to be drafted and forwarded to Mrs. Page at Washington.

The short deed of gift sets forth clearly and simply the conditions under which the gift is made.

Terms of the Gift.

The deed of gift says:

"First—To hold the said $50,000 as a separate and perpetual trust fund, for the promotion of musical art in all its branches, by any and all lawful means (including the support and maintenance of any orchestra in said city of Chicago now or at any time hereafter maintained, conducted, managed, or controlled, by or under the supervision of said Orchestral association or its successor or successors).

"Second—To apply the net income of said trust fund to the purpose of the trust hereby created, such application to be made as said Orchestral association or its successor or successors, may in its or their own absolute and unfettered discretion, determine."

No mention was made at the directors' meeting of any specific use to which the income of the fund shall be devoted, as the news of the gift was a complete surprise. It is, however, believed that the income will be devoted towards the wiping out of the debt of $330,000 under which the association has labored since the erection of Orchestra hall.

First Large Donation.

This is the first large gift that has been made to the association since its formation seventeen years ago. Wealthy patrons of music have from time to time notified the directors of their intention of leaving bequests to the organization, but it remained for Mrs. Page to come to the immediate relief of the society.

After years of the most strenuous effort the Orchestral association has reached the stage where it is enabled to pay its expenses, but it is heavily burdened by the huge debt which rests as a first mortgage on its building.

Mrs. Page a Former Chicagoan.

Before her marriage Mrs. Page was Miss Florence Lathrop, a granddaughter of Gov. Barbour of Virginia. Her first husband was Henry Field, a wealthy Chicagoan, brother of Marshall Field. In 1893, several years after Mr. Field's death, she became the wife of the author, and since that time has lived in Washington, where Mr. Page has, on New Hampshire avenue, a residence which is known throughout the country for its architectural beauty. There Mrs. Page has entertained lavishly, winning a reputation as one of the social leaders of the capital, and there Miss Florence Field, Mrs. Page's younger daughter, was introduced to society. An elder daughter, Minnie, is the wife of Preston Gibson of Chicago. Mrs. Page has placed in the Art institute of Chicago many art masterpieces which were in her first husband's galleries.

GIVE THEIR VIEWS OF VOTERS' DUTY.

Real Estate Men Replying to Question Overwhelmingly for Busse and Car Settlement.

ONLY FOUR ARE OPPOSED.

In Thirty-seven Answers Opinion Is Well Nigh Unanimous for Urgent Need of a Change.

"Will you please favor 'The Tribune' with your views on what the citizens of Chicago should do when they stand in the voting booths on April 2?"

In order to obtain in an impartial manner the sentiment of the business, professional, and working men of Chicago THE TRIBUNE is sending the above telegram to hundreds of real estate men, butchers, lawyers, bakers, clergymen, grocers, doctors, small business men, and workingmen throughout Chicago. The persons to whom the messages are sent are picked at random from the city and telephone directories, but they represent all sections of the city.

This morning a number of replies from real estate dealers are printed. Tomorrow and next week answers from the other professions and trades will be published.

The dealers in property show an overwhelming sentiment in favor of the candidacy of Fred A. Busse for mayor and the approval of the street car ordinances. Only four replies declared for Dunne and against the ordinances.

For Busse and the Ordinances.

Twenty-one declared unqualifiedly for Mr. Busse and the ordinances, for a greater and cleaner Chicago—in short, for a business administration with snap and vim. Ten other real estate men in their haste to signify their approval of the street car ordinances failed to express their choice for mayor, but generally speaking left room for the assumption that Mr. Busse is their choice.

Two replies are in general terms and noncommittal.

Taken in their entirety, the thirty-seven opinions left no room for doubt that the almost unanimous slogan with Chicago's real estate men is:

"Busse and the ordinances; push them along."

Words of Real Estate Men.

Just how the men who responded to THE TRIBUNE's request feel about the political situation is best shown by their written words:

FRANCIS B. PEABODY of Peabody, Houghteling & Co., First National Bank building—Speaking for myself, and, as I believe, for my firm, I propose to vote for Mr. Busse for mayor, and for the traction ordinances.

McGUIRE & ORR, 101 Washington street—Voters should be sure to mark their ballots for Busse for mayor, Ben M. Smith for judge of the Superior court, and by all means in favor of the traction ordinances.

EDMUND S. GRAF, 1217 Milwaukee avenue—Every citizen living in this or any other part of Chicago should vote first for the traction ordinances, second for Busse for mayor, and third for Ben M. Smith for judge.

F. W. JONES, 6324 Yale avenue—I believe it is for the best interest of every voter in Chicago to vote for Busse and for the traction ordinances.

JAMES S. JACKSON of Jackson Bros., 571 West Madison street—Voters should vote for Mr. Busse and for the traction ordinances. I have every reason to believe that the republican ticket will win by a large majority.

A. S. MALTMAN & CO., 1534 Wrightwood avenue—Good citizens should vote for Busse and traction settlement.

For Four Years of Prosperity.

GEORGE H. HIGH & CO., 83 Washington street—Vote for Mr. Busse for mayor. Vote yes for the traction ordinances, then see that your friends all get out and vote the same way. Then Chicago will have four years of prosperity under a competent business management. Elect Mr. Busse and this will increase the value of all our real estate and promote every manufacturing and commercial industry in Chicago.

JOHN L. MANNING, 60 Dearborn street—My opinion is that every citizen who has the real, permanent interests of the entire city in view should vote for the street car ordinances, and also for the party ticket headed by F. A. Busse, as that party is more likely to carry out those ordinances in the spirit and letter.

THOMAS MOSES, 5251 Indiana avenue—Every good citizen should vote for Busse and the ordinances. Let us have this traction business settled and give us a business man's administration.

JOSEPH CERNEY, 1083 South Troy street—Vote for Busse and for the traction ordinances.

DAVID H. GLOVER, manager branch office William H. Brown company & Brittain, 7201 Wentworth avenue—Vote for Busse and the traction settlement and put Mayor Dunne out of business. He is no good for mayor or judge and always was a weak affair.

For Cleaner, Better City.

ALBERT L. STRAUSS, 175 Dearborn street—If the voter desires a greater, cleaner, and better Chicago let him vote for Busse and the traction companies, for these are synonymous terms. Mayor Dunne stands as the antithesis of all this, as judged by the spirit and acts of his administration. His reelection would be a calamity to Chicago.

A. H. HILL & CO., 709 West Irving Park boulevard—Vote for Busse and the street car ordinances. Voters will thus give our big city an uplift that will cause rival municipalities all over this country to sit up and take notice that Chicago has done with dreamers.

A. W. PEARSON, 11600 Michigan avenue—I will vote the straight republican ticket. I will also vote for the traction ordinances.

W. H. PRUYN, 4217 Berkeley avenue—Vote strong for Busse.

EDGAR M. SNOW & CO., 101 Washington street—If voters favor a greater Chicago they should support the traction ordinances. They should also support the candidate for mayor who stands for these ordinances, and not one who opposes them, and the spirit of whose administration has clearly been against the development and prosperity of the city.

TAYLOR A. SNOW & CO., 950 West Madison street—The voter should vote straight for Busse and the ordinances.

From Bad to Worse Under Dunne.

BAIRD & WARNER, 90 La Salle street—We feel that every citizen of Chicago, who pays taxes, who owns a home, who has any pride in the city, and desires a greater and better Chicago, or who has any interest in our public school system, traction system, in fact, almost every system, should vote for Busse and the entire republican ticket. With the election of Mr. Busse there will be a great change in the sentiment throughout the country at large. The moneyed interests in the east are watching us with no little interest, and if the ticket is successful it will settle for many years the question as to whether the long haired men and the short haired women are going to rule and ruin this town. Certainly the board of education is one of the greatest blights on the prosperity of tne generation now growing up, and should be taken out of politics. We believe that if Mr. Busse is elected he will put on the school board men and women of the highest standing, who will be a credit to the school system. He will also gather about him in official positions in the city hall men of such high character that confidence will be restored by those who have the best interests of the city at heart, and who for the last two years have seen things go from bad to worse, promises and pledges broken, until patience has ceased to be a virtue. There has not been a municipal election in many years where the issues were so vital, and an outraged public is rising in its might and will sweep the deck of the present crew of incompetents and inaugurate business principles and methods. With this accomplished we shall see Chicago forge ahead and take its place proudly at the head of the column, where it rightly belongs.

For Busse and Ordinances.

E. A. CUMMINGS & CO., Dearborn and Washington streets—In our opinion the citizens of Chicago can serve their best interests and forward the day when we shall have a greater and better Chicago by recording their votes for Busse and for approval of the traction ordinances.

CHARLES M. WEBER, 1084 West Twenty-second street—Vote for Busse and the traction ordinances.

EDWARD G. PAULING, 132 La Salle street—The citizens of Chicago should vote in favor of the traction ordinances and also for Busse, the man who will carry out and best enforce the same. Taking into consideration Mr. Busse's successful business record and the able manner in which he has conducted the affairs of the postoffice, I am sure the citizens will make no mistake in voting for him. Mr. Busse when elected will give us a business administration and "a greater and better Chicago."

Dillydallying Too Long.

FRANK BECK of Loheinrich, Beck & Co., 846 Irving Park boulevard—The citizens of Chicago should vote "Yes" on the traction question. We have been dillydallying long enough.

D. W. MILLS, 5252 West Lake street—All citizens having the welfare of our city at heart should vote for immediate and better street car service. No M. O. for me.

EDWIN F. GETCHELL, 204 Dearborn street—The citizen of Chicago when he enters the voting booth should have such firm convictions as to cause him to vote "Yes" on the traction ordinances, realizing that it means to himself and his family greater comfort, economy of money and time, and a higher respect for themselves and their neighbors by reason of better and more decent service.

Traction Settlement Urgent.

JOHN CHESHIRE & CO., 4304 Cottage Grove avenue—The first thing a voter should do when standing in the voting booth is to vote for the street car ordinances so that the matter can be taken out of politics.

A. HOLINGER & CO., 172 Washington street—The citizens of Chicago should vote for immediate traction settlement, irrespective of party.

J. M. JOHNSON, 568 Fulton street—I believe in bettering the conditions in Chicago by the immediate settlement of the traction question, and that all good citizens of Chicago should vote to that end.

WILLIAM A. BOND & CO., 115 Dearborn street—Believing, as we do, that an affirmative vote for the traction ordinance will insure a better street car service immediately and preserve the rights of those who favor municipal ownership, we believe it the duty of each citizen to vote "Yes" on that proposition.

Signed "STRAP HANGERS' LEAGUE" on note paper of Hipple & Clarke, 188 Washington street—Every citizen should vote for the traction ordinances as passed by the city council and subject to the referendum vote at this election. We do not care to express our views at this time on the mayoralty choice.

JOHN A. CARROLL & BRO., 165 East Fifty-third street—We think it would be to the best interest of the municipality, regardless of party politics, to vote for the street car ordinances, and thus settle a question that has retarded to a great extent the progress of the city.

W. M. HOYT & SON, 330 Ohio street—Every voting citizen of Chicago should vote honestly and conscientiously for Chicago's best interests and not to please professional politicians.

Fears Wide Open Town.

A. MADSEN, 1242 Milwaukee avenue—I am heartily in favor of an immediate settlement of the traction question by a popular approval of the traction ordinances. I have no doubt from a business point of view that Mr. Busse will make an excellent mayor. But I am also convinced that a wide open town will be far worse than the immediate settlement of the traction matter. I am no crank, but there is an intimate relation between business welfare and morals.

JOHN I. REECE, 289 South Desplaines street—I intend to do what I can to defeat the traction ordinances and to rebuke the New York syndicate of "frenzied financiers" and their subsidized Chicago newspapers, by casting my vote for the man who, in my judgment, is earnestly and honestly endeavoring to settle the traction question in the interest of all of Chicago's citizens—Edward F. Dunne.

JOHN W. DONNELLY, 315 West Garfield boulevard.—The citizens of Chicago should vote for Dunne and decency and against the traction ordinances and corruption.

CHARLES V. M'ERLEAN, 205 La Salle street.—I intend to vote for Mayor Dunne and against the traction ordinances.

JAMES O'SHAUGHNESSY, 2220 Lincoln avenue—In my opinion, the voter can best discharge his duty to the community by voting against the traction ordinances and by voting for Dunne, because Dunne has shown honesty in the mayor's office. Intelligent honesty is the chief duty in a public servant.

Questions Up to Voters.

R. N. LLOYD of Lloyd & Ingersoll, 621 Sunnyside avenue—I believe the right attitude for the voters should be: What is the most important question involved? Is it the physical and business interests involved, or is it the moral and eternal interests? Should the only question be, What will become of our business, or what will become of our boys and girls? Should it be what the politicians want or what God wants? Will my boys and girls and other people's boys and girls be safer from evil if I vote for Busse, Dunne, or Brubaker? What shall it profit us if we gain a great city and lose our boys and girls? I believe a man should vote for what is right and the best man, and not be influenced to vote for the one most likely to win. We cannot conceive of such a man as William Lloyd Garrison or Wendell Phillips stopping to consider which candidate was the most likely to win. A man should ask himself: Suppose every voter should do as I do, would the best result be reached? Although many do not realize it, the business interests of the majority of people would be advanced by voting only for the best man and for what is right, regardless of compromises. Seek ye first the kingdom of God and all these things shall be added unto thee. The actual financial loss of the liquor traffic is greater than any other business or political issue before the people. This can be proved by absolute statistics.

WANTS TO VOTE AFTER 43 YEARS

Aaron Messing, Who Came Here from Prussia in 1864, Asks for Final Naturalization Papers.

Application for final papers of naturalization was made in the Superior court yesterday by Aaron J. Messing, who has lived in the United States for forty-three years.

Messing came to the United States from Prussia in June, 1864. Five years later Judge Gary granted his first papers, but two years had to elapse before he could take out his final papers.

Recently he sought to obtain his final papers and found that the Chicago fire of 1871 destroyed the record which showed that he took out first papers. He asks the courts to spread on record that he has already taken out his first papers, making him privileged to obtain his final papers.

PALTRY TRACTION BLIGHTS REALTY.

Enormous Decrease of Land Values Caused by Inadequate Car Service.

BURDEN ON HOME OWNERS

Property in Many Parts of City Injured by Lack of Good Transportation.

The traction question has been for many long years the bête noir of Chicago real estate.

Real estate also has suffered from other handicaps, notably the evils which sprung from the old city charter, which has left the city in a chronic state of semi-bankruptcy, with unclean and unpaved streets, and with many other pressing public improvements neglected.

Real estate, furthermore, has suffered from the special assessment evil, from the inability under the state laws to organize realty corporations, and from the belief, widely prevalent in the east, that the tendency of public sentiment throughout the state, and especially in a legislative way, is of a strong anti-capital and anti-corporation character.

But all these latter considerations have been of a minor and relatively unimportant sort as compared with the immeasurable evils which have waited upon the interminable traction muddle. For ten years it has dragged its slow length along, a veritable millstone on the neck of the market, bringing with it an ever increasing measure of depression upon realty in practically all parts of the city, outside of the business center, dependent on the surface traction lines.

Ten years of repression under Harrison and Dunne have left their indelible mark upon the market. Four years more of Dunne would almost spell ruin to thousands of small property owners.

Effect of Poor Car Service.

Antiquated, unclean, and uncomfortable cars, insufficient in number and steadily degenerating into a condition of decay; systems out of date, with little or no effort to bring them up to modern standards and the increasing requirements of a great and rapidly growing city; a costly, vexatious, and time losing system of transfers, the lack of extensions and new lines where imperatively demanded, are among the evils which have been entailed upon a long suffering people, and the wonder really is that Chicago has grown as it has, and that property values have not suffered more.

As it is, there are many sections of the city where property, in good neighborhoods, but unfortunately dependent on the surface traction lines, has been declining steadily in value and will not command today over 40 to 60 per cent of what it commanded ten and twelve years ago, and where rents have declined in an equal proportion. This, too, in the face of a rapid increase of population and a generally remarkable development of the city along lines of permanent and enduring growth. The endless traction agony is behind it all.

Thousands Driven to Suburbs.

This condition also has driven thousands to seek homes in the various suburban towns about Chicago served by the steam transportation lines, and in this way has reduced materially the buying and renting element in the Chicago market proper.

On the other hand—and a striking object lesson in contrast it is—property along the lines of the various elevated road lines within the city limits has been developed at a marvelous rate. Vast areas of vacant land at points distant from the downtown region have come in for improvement and millions of dollars' worth of new buildings have been erected. These elevated roads stretch out like fingers into the different outlying parts of the city, leaving between them the comparatively dead and unimproved areas served by the antiquated surface lines.

Fall of Realty Values.

It is probably safe to say that no other part of the city has suffered more from inadequate traction facilities than the north side, for the reason that until the Northwestern Elevated road—the latest of these roads—was constructed and put into operation, the north division was dependent entirely upon the surface traction lines. With unusual natural advantages in a residence way, and with a high standard of citizenship, qualities which attract the homeseeker, its property values, nevertheless, with few exceptions, have fallen away desperately as compared with ten and twelve years ago. From the river up into the northern limits these conditions obtain to a greater or less extent, except where the influence of the Northwestern elevated is felt. In many of the most important streets and naturally attractive districts, values are from 40 to 50 per cent lower than they were a decade ago.

In the southern end of North Clark street, running up to near Lincoln park, the main business thoroughfare of the section, land sold ten and twelve years ago at $500 to $600 a front foot. Today $300 is about the ruling price, possibly a little more here and a little less there, but values are much depressed, and, with the exception of the Bush temple, few important improvements have been made along the street.

Effect in La Salle Avenue.

La Salle avenue, another of the most important streets on the north side, has suffered to almost as great an extent as North Clark street. Ten or twelve years ago $275 and $300 a foot were common figures, but today it would be difficult to obtain $175, and probably $150 is nearer the mark, with the exception of that immediately adjacent to Lincoln park.

Illustrative of this declining tendency it is recalled that in 1895 the valuation committee of the real estate board valued a piece of property between Division and Schiller streets at $275 a foot. The owner was not satisfied with the figures, thinking they should have been $300. The property might possibly sell at $175 today, but it would undoubtedly be regarded as a good sale. The falling off in this value as in the others cited is attributed directly to the wretched street car service.

Townsend street, a short street running north from Chicago avenue, furnished homes ten or twelve years ago for many Swedes. True to their race they were a thrifty lot and for the 25 foot lots which they bought they paid around $5,000. Today it would be difficult to sell the same lots with their improvements for more than $2,500.

Home Owners Are Sufferers.

Further north the same conditions obtain, one section in particular having suffered—that comprising the territory bounded by Center street on the south, Grace on the north, and from the lake west to within a block or two of Halsted street. This is naturally one of the finest residence districts on the north side, and under normal conditions the land should be worth from $200 to $250 a foot. Ten and twelve years ago it did command from $150 to $250 a foot, but it could not withstand the depressing conditions of the miserable surface traction lines on which it depended, and today it is slow to move at $100 a foot. Multitudes of home owners have been the direct sufferers.

An illustration of what even slightly improved conditions in a traction way will do to help property values is found in Lincoln avenue north of Wrightwood avenue. For years people in that territory were compelled to pay double fare. The result was a stagnant condition in a property way, and naturally good property in many instances was held as low as $20 a foot. The outside price was $75 to $80.

In January, 1904, the street car company put on a through service from Clark and Washington streets along Lincoln avenue to Bowmanville, and the effect was felt at once in advancing property values. That territory is now comparatively active, but still behind what it should be.

Property near the north branch of the river also has suffered severely from the inadequate surface traction lines. Along Clybourn avenue ten or twelve years ago land sold readily at from $75 to $80 a foot. Today it is slow to move at $50.

Effect of Improved Traction.

Probably the most striking illustration of what good transportation facilities will do as regards property values is furnished by the developments in the Wilson avenue district following the construction of the Northwestern elevated road. Prior to that time the district was sparsely populated, great areas of vacant land abounding on all sides. The improvements could almost be counted on one's fingers, and property was difficult to move at from $30 to $40 a foot.

With the coming of the road, however, there came one of the most remarkable building booms in the history of Chicago. Block after block of buildings arose as if by magic, changing completely the appearance of the district. In three years the cost of the apartment buildings erected in that region approximated $15,000,000, and land values jumped up to $80 and even as high as $250 a foot.

Activity in West Ravenswood.

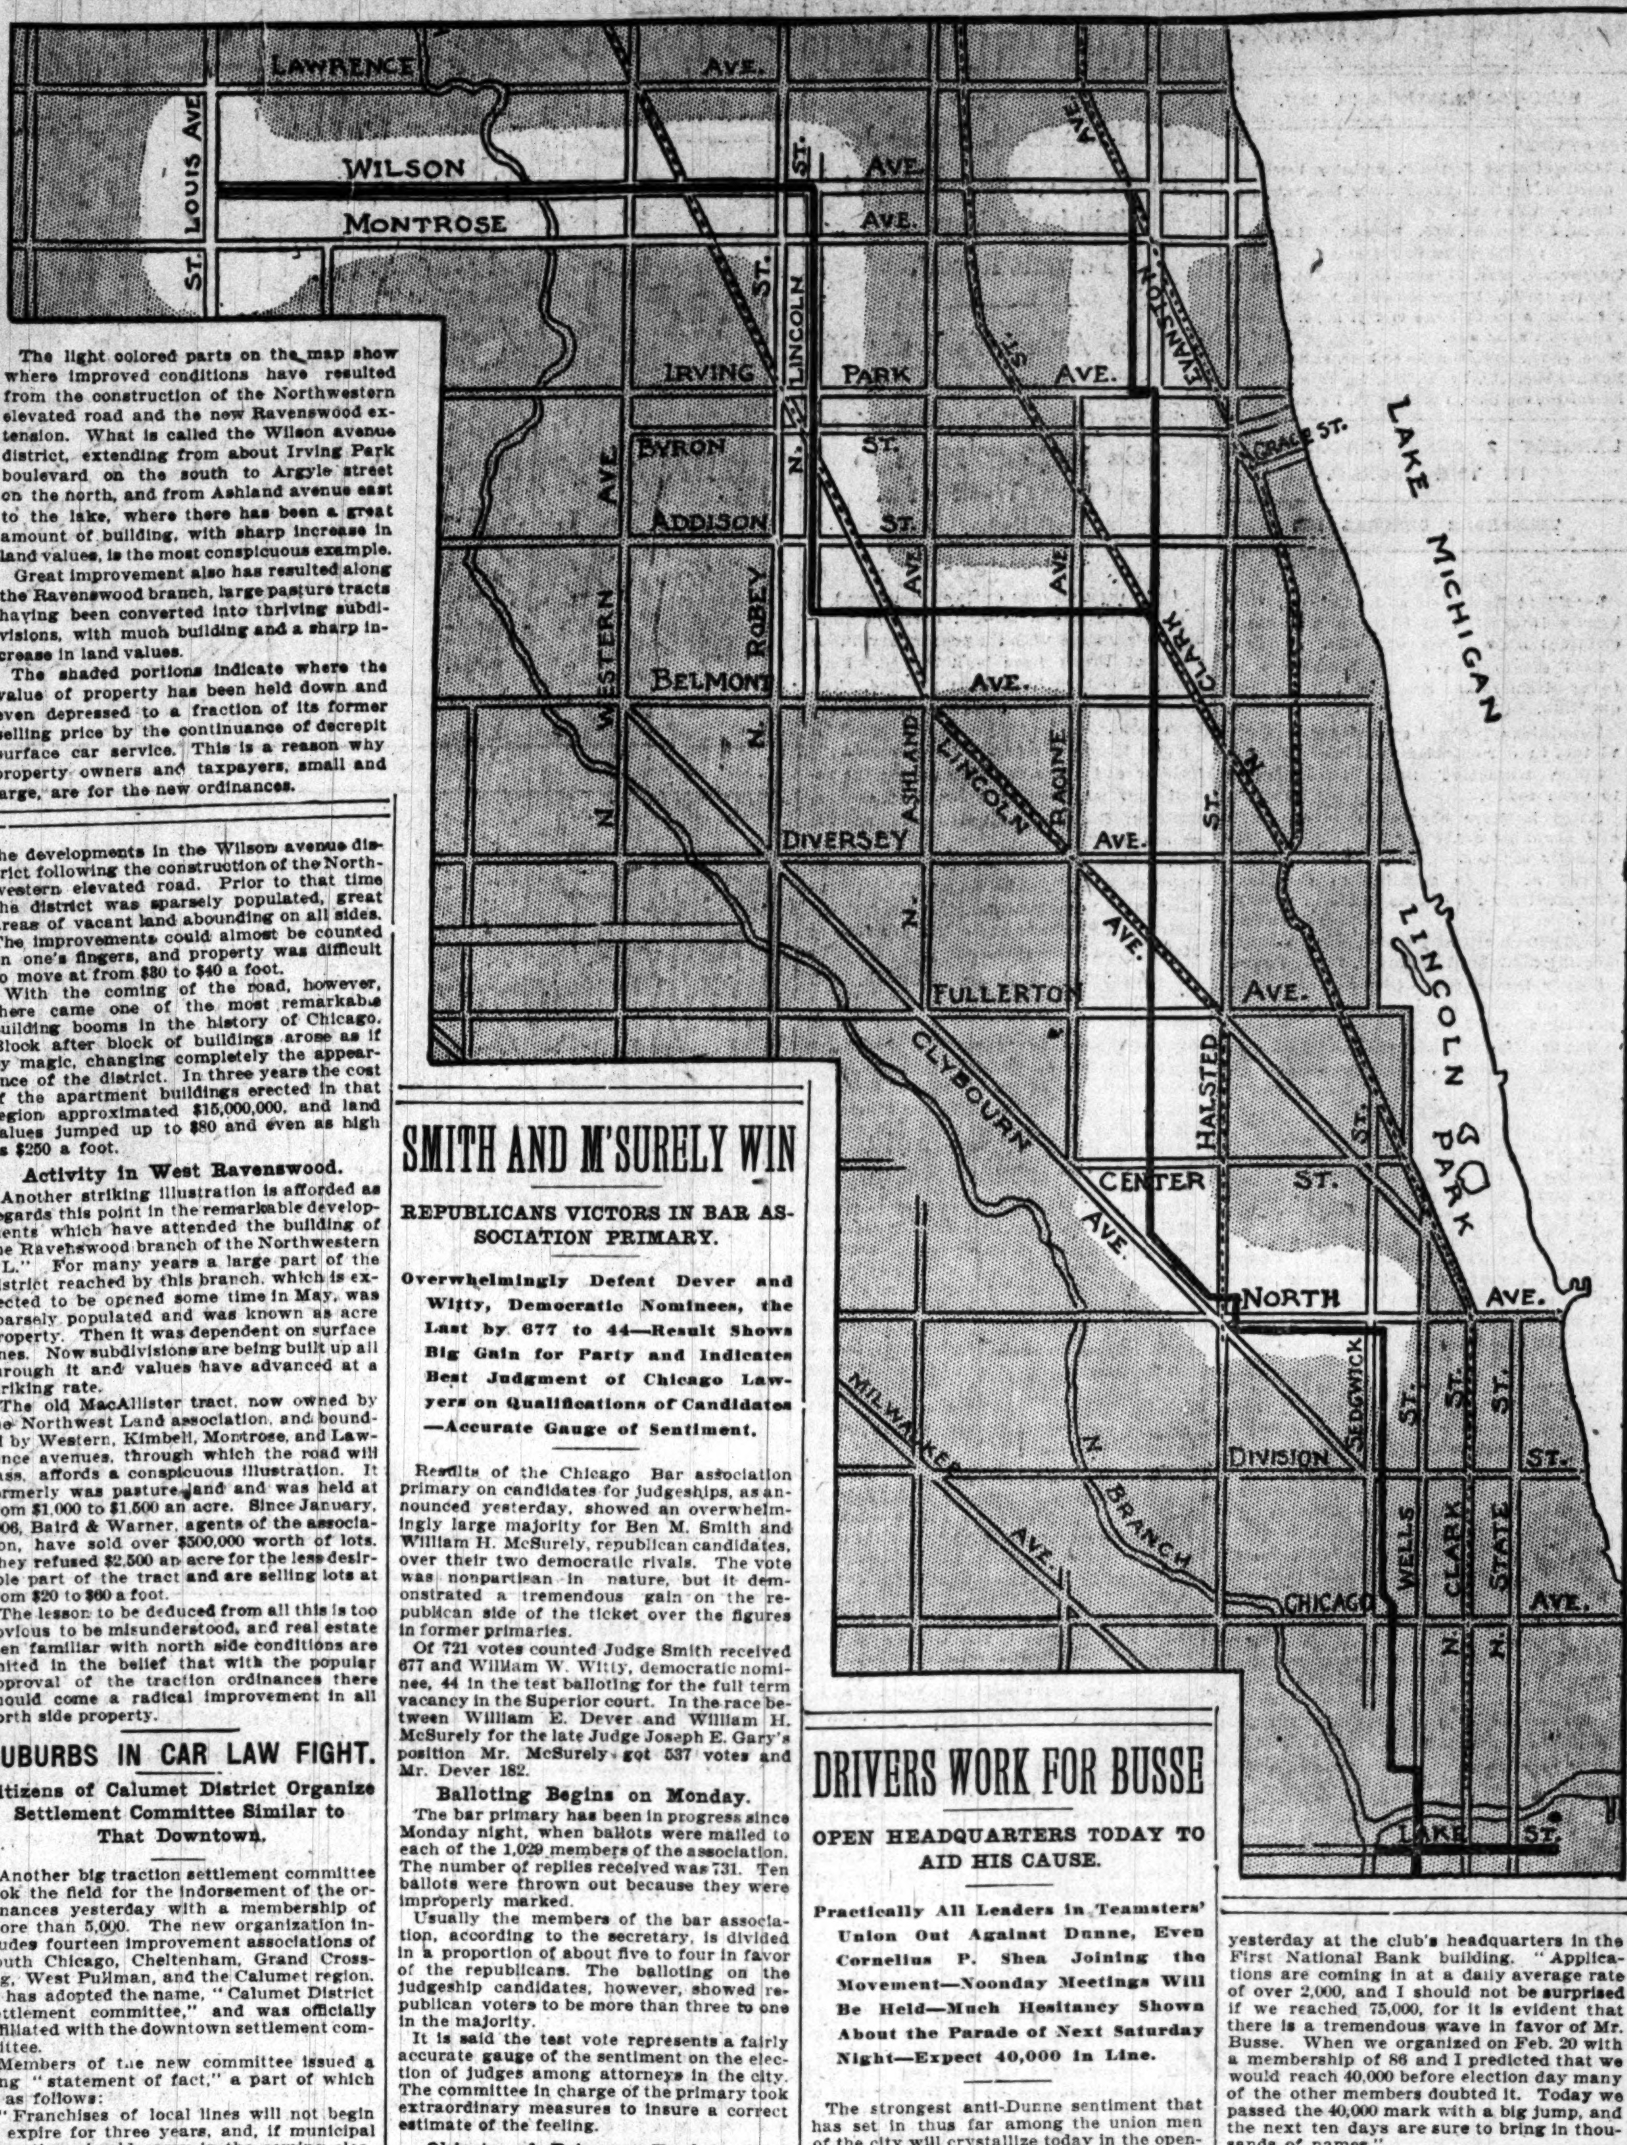

Another striking illustration is afforded as regards this point in the remarkable developments which have attended the building of the Ravenswood branch of the Northwestern "L." For many years a large part of the district reached by this branch, which is expected to be opened some time in May, was sparsely populated and was known as acre property. Then it was dependent on surface lines. Now subdivisions are being built up all through it and values have advanced at a striking rate.

The old MacAllister tract, now owned by the Northwest Land association, and bounded by Western, Kimbell, Montrose, and Lawrence avenues, through which the road will pass, affords a conspicuous illustration. It formerly was pasture land and was held at from $1,000 to $1,500 an acre. Since January, 1906, Baird & Warner, agents of the association, have sold over $500,000 worth of lots. They refused $2,500 an acre for the less desirable part of the tract and are selling lots at from $20 to $60 a foot.

The lesson to be deduced from all this is too obvious to be misunderstood, and real estate men familiar with north side conditions are united in the belief that with the popular approval of the traction ordinances there should come a radical improvement in all north side property.

The North Side of Chicago: Shaded Portions Show Where Bad Car Service Has Had a Blighting Effect on Land Values.

[Portions unshaded indicate where influence of good "L" service has helped property.]

The light colored parts on the map show where improved conditions have resulted from the construction of the Northwestern elevated road and the new Ravenswood extension. What is called the Wilson avenue district, extending from about Irving Park boulevard on the south to Argyle street on the north, and from Ashland avenue east to the lake, where there has been a great amount of building, with sharp increase in land values, is the most conspicuous example.

Great improvement also has resulted along the Ravenswood branch, large pasture tracts having been converted into thriving subdivisions, with much building and a sharp increase in land values.

The shaded portions indicate where the value of property has been held down and even depressed to a fraction of its former selling price by the continuance of decrepit surface car service. This is a reason why property owners and taxpayers, small and large, are for the new ordinances.

SUBURBS IN CAR LAW FIGHT.

Citizens of Calumet District Organize Settlement Committee Similar to That Downtown.

Another big traction settlement committee took the field for the indorsement of the ordinances yesterday with a membership of more than 5,000. The new organization includes fourteen improvement associations of South Chicago, Cheltenham, Grand Crossing, West Pullman, and the Calumet region. It has adopted the name, "Calumet District Settlement committee," and was officially affiliated with the downtown settlement committee.

Members of the new committee issued a long "statement of fact," a part of which is as follows:

"Franchises of local lines will not begin to expire for three years, and, if municipal operation should carry in the coming election, the service that would follow in the few remaining years, while the local lines are gradually dying out, is something terrible to contemplate.

"The rapid development which this section has enjoyed for so many years would be greatly retarded by a demoralized transportation service, and even after the intervening three years there would be little hope of relief under municipal operation.

"The outlying districts have always got the worst of it in everything under the control of the city departments. Witness the miserable West Pullman water supply for the last ten years and the horrible condition of our roads leading to other districts, which leaves this section at the mercy of a conflagration without possibility of prompt aid from neighboring fire departments, to say nothing of the difficulties of our many teaming interests."

Following are the organizations that make up the Calumet region's settlement committee:

- Burnside Improvement association.
- Calumet Heights Improvement association.
- Cheltenham Improvement association.
- East Side Improvement association.
- Fernwood Improvement association.
- Grand Crossing Improvement association.
- Hegewisch Improvement association.
- Riverdale Improvement association.
- South Chicago and Calumet Improvement association.
- South Chicago Improvement association.
- South End Improvement association.
- South Shore and Windsor Park association.
- Stoney Island Avenue Improvement association.
- West Pullman Improvement association.

The committee will conduct a campaign similar to that being waged by the downtown committee and the Straphangers' league.

SHURTLEFF TALKS FOR BUSSE.

Speaker of Illinois House Explains His Action Relative to Public Policy Law.

E. D. Shurtleff, speaker of the Illinois house of representatives, was the leading speaker at a Busse meeting in the De Koven street Turner hall, 106 De Koven street, last night. Between 400 and 500 voters of the Nineteenth ward filled the room in which they met.

Speaker Shurtleff said he had intruded upon the city campaign through friendship for Busse and loyalty to the republican party. He said Chicago had no traction service, because some men desired there should be a traction question.

"Can you," he asked, "get on a car and get carried quickly and conveniently to where you want to go?"

The answer came from the audience in a tremendous "No!"

"I am going to vote and work for a new charter for Chicago," said Mr. Shurtleff, "and try to have put in it the right of every Chicago citizen to vote on questions affecting the city.

"I am going to stay at Springfield to pass the Chicago charter. The people have the choice as to whom they will trust with the extended power contained in that charter.

"I'll tell you to whom they will hand it—to Fred A. Busse, a representative of every faction in the party, and you haven't had a candidate like that in ten years."

Representative Smejkal presided. Other speakers were Robert E. Crow, Vincenzo Pacella, and Judge Crowe.

SMITH AND M'SURELY WIN

REPUBLICANS VICTORS IN BAR ASSOCIATION PRIMARY.

Overwhelmingly Defeat Dever and Witty, Democratic Nominees, the Last by 677 to 44—Result Shows Big Gain for Party and Indicates Best Judgment of Chicago Lawyers on Qualifications of Candidates—Accurate Gauge of Sentiment.

Results of the Chicago Bar association primary on candidates for judgeships, as announced yesterday, showed an overwhelmingly large majority for Ben M. Smith and William H. McSurely, republican candidates, over their two democratic rivals. The vote was nonpartisan in nature, but it demonstrated a tremendous gain on the republican side of the ticket over the figures in former primaries.

Of 721 votes counted Judge Smith received 677 and William W. Witty, democratic nominee, 44 in the test balloting for the full term vacancy in the Superior court. In the race between William E. Dever and William H. McSurely for the late Judge Joseph E. Gary's position Mr. McSurely got 537 votes and Mr. Dever 182.

Balloting Begins on Monday.

The bar primary has been in progress since Monday night, when ballots were mailed to each of the 1,029 members of the association. The number of replies received was 731. Ten ballots were thrown out because they were improperly marked.

Usually the members of the bar association, according to the secretary, is divided in a proportion of about five to four in favor of the republicans. The balloting on the judgeship candidates, however, showed republican voters to be more than three to one in the majority.

It is said the test vote represents a fairly accurate gauge of the sentiment on the election of judges among attorneys in the city. The committee in charge of the primary took extraordinary measures to insure a correct estimate of the feeling.

Objects of Primary Explained.

The primary was the outgrowth of the following resolutions:

Whereas, The principal objects for which this association was organized are to maintain the honor and dignity of the profession of law and to increase its usefulness in promoting due administration of justice; and,

Whereas, It is deemed the duty of this association to express to the people its best judgment on the relative qualifications of the several candidates nominated for the bench, without regard to politics; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Chicago Bar association proceed to select by ballot the names of two from the persons nominated for judges of the Superior court.

George A. Follansbee was chairman of the committee in charge of the primary. Other members were Percy V. Castle, Frederick Peake, Robert W. Richards, and George A. Mason.

BUSSE THREE TO ONE LEADER.

Results from Daily News Ballot Continue to Indicate Huge Republican Majority in Mayoralty Race.

Out of 10,544 votes returned up to last evening in the secret ballot conducted by the Chicago Daily News on the election of mayor and the traction question, 7.543 were cast for Busse. The others were divided among the three other candidates. The tabulated result follows:

DRIVERS WORK FOR BUSSE

OPEN HEADQUARTERS TODAY TO AID HIS CAUSE.

Practically All Leaders in Teamsters' Union Out Against Dunne, Even Cornelius P. Shea Joining the Movement—Noonday Meetings Will Be Held—Much Hesitancy Shown About the Parade of Next Saturday Night—Expect 40,000 in Line.

The strongest anti-Dunne sentiment that has set in thus far among the union men of the city will crystallize today in the opening of the Union Teamsters' Busse headquarters at 171 Washington street.

Practically all the leaders in the teamsters' unions are working together to defeat Dunne. Temporarily they have laid aside their bickerings. Even Cornelius P. Shea, the president of the international brotherhood, has joined in the movement. Shea arrived yesterday from New York to take part in the campaign. He declared that the union drivers of Chicago will roll up at least 25,000 votes against the mayor on election day.

The headquarters which are to be opened will be the center of political activities among the drivers. A dozen local officials have been placed in charge. From here a vigorous campaign will be waged du[illegible] next two weeks.

Noonday Meetings [illegible]d.

It is probable a number o[illegible]ay meetings in the interest of [illegible]e may be arranged. In addition, [illegible]s are prepared to furnish a corp[illegible]kers [illegible] their own ranks who will t[illegible] stum[illegible] the republican candidate.

"We feel that Mr. Busse [illegible] mayor would be fair to [illegible] lab[illegible]" said one leader. "We k[illegible]hat Mayor Dunne is not. Mr. Bus[illegible]ndliness to labor, on the other ha[illegible] known. The action of the coal tea[illegible] in indorsing his candidacy indicates [illegible] the drivers of the city feel toward him."

The teamsters, incidentally, have not shown any disposition to take part in the Dunne union labor parade, which will be held a week from tonight. Secretary Nockels of the federation of labor, who is trying to get a number of organizations into line, admitted that he had failed to receive responses from any of the drivers' locals. One curt refusal to march in the Dunne demonstration was received from the laundry drivers' union.

Fifteen Unions to Parade.

So far about fifteen unions have signified their intention to parade. President Fitzpatrick of the federation asserts there will be between 40,000 and 50,000 men in line, but the wiser unionists are discovering that the affair is a poorly cloaked strategy on the part of the mayor's campaign managers to boost his candidacy.

Some of the unions which will take part in the parade are the freight handlers, iron molders, blacksmiths, lake seamen, bridgemen, and boot and shoe workers. The electricians are the only one of the big building trades unions thus far to agree to march. The postoffice clerks, stereotypers, broommakers, and several other organizations declined the invitation.

Secretary Nockels wrote a letter to the Barbers' union to ascertain how many members might be depended on to parade. The answer was one. He is A. C. Mendell, the secretary.

SENTIMENT FOR BUSSE GROWS.

Young Men's Club, Organized with 86 Members, Now Has 41,701 Names on Its Roster.

The Young Men's Busse club now has 41,701 members, which is more than 1,000 in advance of the most sanguine expectations of the club's officers when the organization was perfected about a month ago.

"By election day I am positive our membership will be more than 60,000," said William Hale Thompson, president of the club, yesterday at the club's headquarters in the First National Bank building. "Applications are coming in at a daily average rate of over 2,000, and I should not be surprised if we reached 75,000, for it is evident that there is a tremendous wave in favor of Mr. Busse. When we organized on Feb. 20 with a membership of 86 and I predicted that we would reach 40,000 before election day many of the other members doubted it. Today we passed the 40,000 mark with a big jump, and the next ten days are sure to bring in thousands of names."

An auxiliary to the club, composed of insurance men, was formed in the afternoon under the direction of Robert H. McCormick Jr., treasurer, and L. H. Pivan. The officers are A. C. Norden, president; A. S. Nathan, secretary, and R. Kirk, treasurer. An Italian branch also was formed in South Chicago with a membership of over 300. "I Will" regiment, No. 28 Union Veterans' union, also voted to affiliate with the club.

The noonday automobile campaign will be continued today with a meeting at the Heywood rattan works, Harvard and Rockwell streets. The speakers will be Robert H. McCormick Jr. and Thomas Hunter.

SIDE LIGHTS ON A HEAVY VILLAIN.

Fred Busse (the Bad, Bad Man) Does Lots of Things by Stealth.

HE WON'T TALK OF 'EM.

Just Simply Helps the Sick and Poor and Lightens the Load of Poverty.

Down in Citronelle, Ala., his health being slowly restored by the warm southern breezes, is a man who was given up for death until Postmaster Fred A. Busse, the republican candidate for mayor, came to his aid.

The man is Joseph Quest, the old baseball player, who three years ago was compelled to give up his place as a clerk in the Probate court. Tuberculosis had marked him for its victim.

Mr. Busse paid the expenses of Mr. Quest's journey south last November. Two months later he bought the railroad tickets for Mrs. Quest and her two children so they could join the man who would have died if he had remained in Chicago a few weeks longer. He is paying now the rent of the little five acre farm—he and other members of the Sunflower club—where the old baseball player is regaining his health.

And while the political enemies of Mr. Busse are attacking him, as he lies ill at his home on the north side, Quest is writing from Alabama letters of appreciation for his friend's kindness.

Sends Letter of Thanks.

"Words fail to express my gratitude for your great goodness to me and mine. Nothing I can say will convey what I feel, but I thank you from the bottom of my heart," he wrote in his last letter.

Quest is only one of many that the Sunflower club, an organization of old north side boys, with Fred Busse as chief and financial backer, has sent away to the southland for health and rest.

Mr. Busse and his uncle, Em. Gross, are interested in a large farm at Citronelle, which is one of the best known health resorts of the southern coast.

Three years ago Quest, who had played with the St. Louis Browns and the old Chicago White Stockings—shortstop under Capt. Anson—became ill, and after a hard battle with the disease that had marked him for its own was compelled to give up his clerkship. Last year he spent considerable time in hospitals, with the financial aid of the Sunflower club. He grew worse, and last December Mr. Busse said to him:

"Joe, we are going to get you out of here. If you go to Alabama we'll have you well in no time."

So the sick man, filled with hope, started for the farm in Citronelle. He at once wrote back encouragingly. Mr. Busse, when he visited Alabama early in the present year, found a man who had gained in weight, enthusiastic over the climate, and who was looking forward to the time when he could resume his place among the world's workers. But something was lacking.

Wife and Children Join Him.

"You'd get better faster if your wife and children were with you. I'm going to send them down," said Mr. Busse.

"I haven't the money," began Quest.

"Never mind about that. You won't have to pay for it. I'll send them down next week."

He not only kept his word but he engaged a drawing room compartment for Mrs. Quest and the children. A little later Quest wrote:

"The family has arrived and we are all happy. The camp is the finest place you ever saw. We have rigged up a dry goods box for a table. There are fourteen pecan trees on the place, and I think there'll be enough nuts to pay the rent. There are four fig trees and four pear trees. We are going to plow up half an acre and raise yams."

By that time Quest had moved from the large farm to five acres near it and was trying to make his own expenses, although the Sunflower club continues to send him remittances every month. He was living in a shack and taking pride in his fresh vegetables.

Another Ball Player Sent South.

"Jim" Russell, another old time baseball player, had no funds, and the Sunflower club sent him to San Antonio five years ago. It was too late to save him, and he died two years ago. Mr. Busse has a number of his letters, all expressing deep appreciation for the kindnesses that had been shown him. It was the club's custom to send for Russell every year for its annual clam bake, the club paying his expenses. The club has a clam bake every summer, the last one having been at Lake Villa, Wis.

Fred Horner, who was a clerk on the board of trade, was sent by Mr. Busse to Albuquerque, where he lived for several years, and Charles Isaacson was on his way to Citronelle, Ala., three months ago, when he left the train at Jackson, Tenn., was left behind, and died of exposure before his friends could locate him. Mr. Busse brought the body back and paid the funeral expenses.

Purpose of Sunflower Club.

The Sunflower club is composed of forty residents of the Twenty-first ward, who were boys with Fred Busse, living near North Clark and Division streets. Originally formed as a social organization it has become largely charitable. The members are fond of their annual clam bakes, but their real purpose is to look after their former fellow schoolmates of the Ogden and Sheldon schools. Mr. Busse is at the head of it and whenever the treasurer, "Mike" Weber, complains of a lack of funds, Mr. Busse goes down into his pocket for $200 or $300. Some of the best known members are Paul Redieske, "Tom" Cummings, "Alec" Peterson, H. A. Smith, Joe Roeder, Jacob Loeb, who was born in a dwelling at the corner of Schiller street and Dearborn avenue, and Fred Upham, who wasn't a boy of the neighborhood, but who is proud to belong to the organization.

Nearly always the Sunflower club has one or two rooms at the Alexian Brothers' hospital, occupied either by one of its sick members or by some one of the neighborhood who cannot afford to pay for medical attention. One man, not a member of the club, or even a resident of the Twenty-first ward, who was in need of medical attention and rest, was sent to the institution yesterday.

"Just give him Mr. Busse's room," was the word received over the telephone, "and all expenses will be guaranteed."

"Bill" Boske, a driver for Mr. Busse, who had suffered a broken leg, had left the hospital just a short time before.

Mr. Busse Feeling Better.

Mr. Busse was feeling a little better yesterday, he said. He was able to hobble about his room with the aid of a heavy walking stick, though his ankle and back pained him considerably. He wanted to go downstairs, but the physician, who visits him twice a day, told him that it would retard his recovery.

"Can't I go out on Monday?" asked Mr. Busse ruefully.

"Not unless you want to be the victim of a relapse," the physician answered. "Better let well enough alone."

"I don't know anything about the circular that Mayor Dunne complains vilifies him," said Mr. Busse, "for I have not seen it, but I am sure the republicans have nothing to do with it. I would stake my life that the republican committee knows nothing about it."

The postmaster resides with his father and mother and brother George in the flat above the coal office at 391 Sedgwick street. Upstairs it is quiet enough, for the family will not allow the postmaster to be disturbed by unnecessary noise. In the office below there is a scene of activity from morning until night. On the desk of the telephone operator is a canary bird in a brass wire cage.

Aids a Poor Family.

"Two or three weeks ago," said H. A. Smith, who acts as Mr. Busse's secretary at the coal office, "a little girl brought in that canary. She was only 10 years old, as I afterward learned, but she was suffering from some wasting illness and looked much older. She said that Mr. Busse had won the canary in a raffle. I thought it was likely enough, for every one who has a raffle ticket to sell on the north side goes straightway to the Busse coal office.

"Mr. Busse came in a little while afterwards and saw the canary.

"'What's that?' he asked.

"When I told him he laughed and asked if the girl looked as if she needed assistance. I told him she did. He gave me a $10 bill and told me to give it to her. A week or so after the girl came back, and after I had made some inquiries and learned that she and her mother, who lived in the neighborhood, were in distress, Mr. Busse gave me another $10 for them.

"Nobody knows how many poor people on the north side, and, in fact, in all parts of the city, Mr. Busse has helped. He contributes money every day. No one ever goes away from here empty handed. Perhaps people think he's a mark, but I know that most of the cases are deserving."

Helps Postoffice Employes.

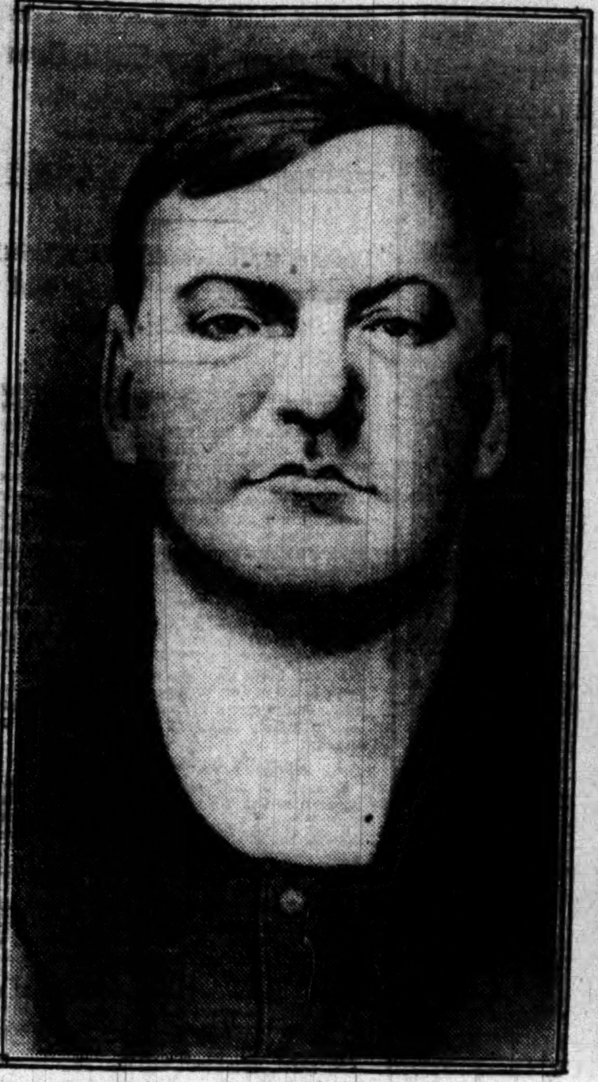

Mr. Busse has received word from the postoffice that the department at Washington has made an allowance of ten additional clerks for the night mailing division and fifteen laborers.

"We needed them badly," said the postmaster. "They will make it easier for some of the men who have been working overtime, something I aim to overcome whenever possible."

Since Mr. Busse has been postmaster he has made many trips to Washington for the purpose of securing additional help for the postoffice, and in nearly every instance his efforts have been successful. Since he has been in office he has secured nearly 600 additional clerks and carriers. He also has used his influence to secure increases in pay for the men.

One of the first things that was learned by the heads of departments was that it was useless for them to go to Mr. Busse with any suggestions concerning a decrease in pay of any set of employés for the purpose of adding to the force in other directions. He takes the position that the men are underpaid rather than overpaid.

ONE KILLED, THREE INJURED BY ELEVATED AND TROLLEYS.

Fuse Blows Out in State Street Car, Man Is Knocked from "L," and Another Is Crushed.

Two men were hurt and a score of passengers fled in fear when a fuse on a north bound State street car blew out last night, setting fire to the car. The accident occurred as the car was approaching the Fifteenth street crossing. The injured are:

JEANO, FRANK, 22 years old, 2000 Wentworth avenue; bruised about face and body.

NICHOL, JOSEPH, 24 years old, 2001 Wentworth avenue; face and hands cut.

The men were riding on the front platform when the fuse blew out. They jumped and rolled over the pavement. Passengers on the car were assured by Motorman Charles Leach that there was no danger.

While at work on the South Side elevated at Thirteenth street, John Shea, 405 Forty-second place, was thrown from the tracks by a south bound train and suffered injuries that resulted in his death at the Mercy hospital an hour later.

Attempting to steal a ride on the "blind" side of a Halsted street car, William Lartz, 20 years old, 5217 Center avenue, a laborer, was seriously injured by a car on the opposite track. His right arm was broken in two places and he was internally injured. The accident occurred near Halsted and Fifty-fifth streets.

Mrs. Henrietta Schramm, 25 years old, 4837 Ridgeway avenue, who was struck by an east bound Archer avenue car on March 14 at Archer and Ridgeway avenues, died in the morning.

Several persons saw an unidentified man killed at the railroad crossing of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad at Division and North Halsted streets. He was crushed beneath the wheels of a north bound passenger train.

THREE MEN TIRED OF LIFE.

Two Kill Themselves by Shooting—Third Cuts His Throat, but May Not Die.

Louis Chaldecott, 49 years old, formerly connected with the Sycamore-De Kalb Electric company of Sycamore, Ill., and with the National Chicle company, yesterday committed suicide by shooting himself in the head at his home, 2391 Clarendon avenue. Mrs. Chaldecott attributes the act to nervous prostration, and says he brooded considerably because some of his ventures did not pay as well as he had expected.

Continued ill health is said by the police to have been the cause for the suicide of Klaas Bruin, 38 years old, 2597 One Hundred and Fifteenth street, who shot himself.

Henry Bolators, 21 years old, 1091 West Polk street, a printer, attempted suicide last evening by cutting his throat with a razor. Then he called for assistance. He was taken to the county hospital in a critical condition.

Veteran Actor Given $13,000 Benefit.

Boston, Mass., March 22.—Henry Clay Barnabee, the veteran comedian who for years was head of the Bostonians, was handed checks for $13,000 at the close of a benefit performance given in his interest at the Boston theater today. The receipts of the benefit was $4,000. Friends subscribed $9,000.

HYDE PARK LAUDS BUSSE.

HUGE GATHERING HEARS ROY O. WEST EXPLAIN ISSUES.

Speaker Declares Republican Candidate a Man of Action, Imperative to Immediate Needs of City—Deplores Lack of Dunne Action—Congressman Foss Urges Car Laws in Lincoln Club Meeting—John M. Harlan Cheered by Big Audience.

All of the male population of Hyde Park that could be packed into the headquarters of the Young Men's Busse club, 282 Sixty-third street, last evening, heard Roy O. West, president of the Cook county board of review, heartily indorse Mr. Busse's plans for leading Chicago out of its present chaotic condition.

Mr. Busse's plans of action were so radically different from the "talkfest" system of inaction that has prevailed in Chicago for the last two years, said Mr. West, that the citizens probably would not recognize their city at the end of four years.

"The difference between a real administration of action and one of theories and experimentation is so great that one scarcely can grasp the consequences of a change of this sort," said Mr. West. "Mr. Busse has a record of action, of things accomplished, and has decided ideas as to what he will do if he is elected mayor of Chicago.

Need for Quick Action.

"On the other hand, there are many things that must be done for Chicago, and done immediately. We cannot afford to experiment any longer with these things. The question is, do we want to put a man in this important office with whose accomplishments we are satisfied, or will we permit another man with theories and dreams to occupy the chair? I believe we will select the man of action.

"I have known Mr. Busse for some time and I know the stuff he is made of. What he has done for the postoffice department he can and will do for the city government. There is little doubt that the street car ordinances are going to be approved on April 2. The ordinances are good and sound; they give the people a good bargain and a good business proposition.

"As we all know, however, they will not enforce themselves. Unless we have a guiding hand with a firm hold on affairs to handle the traction situation the ordinances will be of little good. Mayor Dunne, as we all know, is opposed to the ordinances. He does not believe, or says so, at any rate, that they are good. Does it stand to reason that he would be a good man to handle the traction affairs if these ordinances are put into effect?

Doubts Promise of Mayor.

"Mayor Dunne has said that he would enforce the ordinances if they were approved by the people. It does not seem at all likely, however, that a man not in sympathy with the situation or the laws would be the best man to pin our faith upon. Mr. Busse, on the other hand, is heartily in accord with the traction settlement plan as laid down in the ordinances. Mr. Busse has studied the ordinances. He knows what good is in them, and he knows their possibilities. In my mind Mr. Busse is the leader who can best be intrusted with handling Chicago's share of the business proposition undertaken in the adoption of the ordinances."

Ald. Frank I. Bennett was present and made use of his knowledge of the inner construction of the ordinances to explain away doubts that have grown out of the large quantities of dust that has been raised for the purpose of manufacturing such doubts. Ald. Bennett said that, while the ordinances were not perfect, he had seen many other ordinances of the kind and knew that they were better than had been hoped for by the city.

The young men's organization is carrying on an active campaign in Hyde Park, several similar clubs being formed during the week. It was a result of the work of this body that the biggest registration figures ever known in the ward were recorded, and it is expected that a similar increase in votes will be the result.

Lincoln Club Meeting Noteworthy.

The Lincoln club, Washington boulevard and Francisco avenue, held a Busse roundup that will be marked in history as having provided everything essential except sufficient space to accommodate such a vast audience. The gist of the speeches was that Mayor Dunne is claiming credit for ordinances resulting in a saving to residents that had really been passed over his veto. The speakers produced the proof.

Congressman George Edmund Foss said the present mismanagement of Chicago was creating talk all over the country, and that the general ridicule had reduced the city to a stage joke. He got evidence of this at a recent vaudeville performance in New York, where a comedian, after entertaining his hearers with stories of our traction system, sang this song:

I have traveled east and I have traveled west,
And I traveled as far as Fargo,
But the darnedest place I ever struck
Is the city they call Chicago.

The thing caught on at once, and the voters listened with great interest to all he had to say.

"Municipal ownership has proven a failure everywhere it has been tried," the congressman said. "Boston tried to manufacture ice under the scheme, and it cost the taxpayers $80 a ton. London was dissatisfied with paying a private corporation $6 a thousand for brick, and manufactured them under the municipal ownership plan at $10 a thousand, and then only 16 per cent were good. The United States government tried competition with a private concern in building battleships without success. There is only one way that I believe in municipal ownership and that is with the big stick to compel concerns like the Union Traction company to give us a square deal."

The speaker then went into a detailed explanation of the benefits that would accrue to the city from drawing 55 per cent of the net profits under the proposed ordinances.

"I am for Mr. Busse," he continued, "because he believes in taking the police and fire departments out of politics, in a new city hall, a greater Chicago, and a school board that knows its business."

"Arrogance" Danger, Says Brown.

Dr. Charles O. Brown said: "The man who arrogates to himself all the improvements that he tried to obstruct is a dangerous individual to be at large. Why did he try to keep secret the report of Dairymple, his foreign traction expert? He talks about grafting. How about when he and Tom Johnson, mayor of Cleveland, rode around for two days in an automobile and then turned in to the city an expense account of $335? Is that grafting? I'd call it 'piking.' I personally interviewed eleven school principals, who told me that under the system of Mayor Dunne our great educational institution was going to the dogs."

Ald. Milton J. Foreman said: "Dunne brags about having brought about cheaper gas and electric light. Why, he stood in the way of those improvements. We passed the ordinances over his veto. The present traction ordinances are a good business arrangement. But what do we care whether the city makes $1 or $1,000,000 out of the deal? The thing we are vitally interested in is keeping a straight spine by getting a seat. How many of you people today leave a car in the same shape in which you enter? We are tired of dreamers, hopers, and wishers like Dunne, but must have a doer like Busse."

Twenty-fifth Proves Stronghold.

That the Twenty-fifth ward is well named one of the strongholds of the republican party was amply proved by the monster meeting in Lincoln Turner hall, Diversey boulevard and Sheffield avenue. At the beginning of the meeting every seat on the floor was occupied and the gallery well filled. Fully 1,000 turned out to hear the discussion and scattered about in the audience were a number of women.

Ald. Dunn spoke early in the evening and offered a brief explanation of the traction situation. Following, came John M. Harlan, the principal speaker, who offered some unique explanations of Mayor Dunne's change of front in the traction question and brought out hitherto undiscovered beauties in the mayor's character and temperament.

"It is difficult to define the exact position of his 'Immediacy' the mayor," said Mr. Harlan. "I think we may appropriately give him that surname in place of the usual and trite 'excellency,' for he has been 'immediate' for two years now and he wants to be immediate for four years more. If you will recollect the speech of the mayor at the banquet of the Jefferson club some time ago, you will remember he was reported by all the newspapers as having neatly sidestepped the traction issue and, in fact, the ordinances did not seem to be such a bad thing.

"Dunne Gets in Line."

"But immediately thereafter was heard the crack of the whip whose tail is in Chicago and whose handle is in New York, and Mayor Dunne got in line. Not longer ago than Dec. 17, Mayor Dunne praised the traction ordinances in an issued statement and gave credit where credit was due among the men who had worked upon them and framed them. But that was when the mayor was thinking patriotically of the good of Chicago and was not thinking of politics. How are we to account for the sudden change?

"Now you who know the mayor know that he is a most delightful, simple, and sincere character. He has the imagination of the poet and the soul of the metaphysician. With the license of the poet he built beautiful images and pictures of things he would have liked to have come to pass.

"But they were images and phantasies of no dimensions. When some of the mayor's ideas were brought down and began to assume dimensions, to show signs of reality, and to assume tangible shape, the mayor refused to have his delightful images bound down by cold facts and realities, instead of beautiful dreams and intangible phantasies. This is the metaphysical and psychological solution with which I have tried to account for the mayor's sudden change of front. Does it satisfy you?"

Tells of Traction Laws.

General applause and laughter followed, and then Mr. Harlan launched into a discussion and explanation of the ordinances. In the midst of the exposition an interruption came from the gallery:

"Isn't it true that you receive a salary from the traction company, Mr. Speaker?" called the voice, for to repeated requests the "voice" refused to disclose its identity.

But the speaker had come prepared for just such Dunne ammunition, and with letters and documents proved the exact status of his connection as legal adviser to Judge Grosscup in the traction case. So complete was the explanation that the audience laughed and applauded at the discomfiture of the interlocutor, and as the merriment subsided the "voice" declared that it had decided to withdraw the question.

In its desperate efforts to discredit the republican candidate for mayor the Dunne campaign management yesterday began the circulation of a "document" bearing the picture of Postmaster Fred A. Busse alongside of the picture of "Barney" Birch, the latter in prison garb and labeled "convict."

Accompanying the two pictures was a story which in effect was that Mr. Busse had befriended and recently had associated with Birch, who has served a term in the state penitentiary.

The matter thus circulated was one-half of a page which appeared in "The Home Defender," a publication purporting to represent the prohibition party.

The article containing the attack upon Mr. Busse appeared in advance sheets of the publication yesterday. The advance copies were seized upon by Mayor Dunne's managers in the "blunderbund" and sent broadcast throughout the city. They have ordered 100,000 for distribution.

The story linking Mr. Busse's name with that of Birch is set forth with a wealth of detail covering more than two columns.

Abused for Humane Act.

Having announced early in the campaign that he would take no part in politics of the mud slinging variety nor permit his lieutenants to do so, Mr. Busse refused personally to take any notice of the document. Members of the republican county committee, however, were ready to denounce the stories concerning him as absolutely without any foundation other than the fact that he had assisted Birch.

"If Fred Busse is to be censured for his efforts to help Barney Birch, we might as well abolish our societies organized to uplift the unfortunate men who have made mistakes," said Oscar Hebel, county assessor and a life long friend of Mr. Busse. "Such societies are organized to assist unfortunates to earn a livelihood and work their way back to respectability.

"That is just what Mr. Busse has done for Birch, and it is all he has done for him. The efforts of the Dunne men are so unfair as to be beneath contempt and indicate the desperate straits to which they are reduced.

"The facts of the case are that Mr. Busse befriended Birch when he got out of the clutches of the law and endeavored to help him live an honest life. Birch told Mr. Busse just his position and asked him to help him get work.

Helps Man to Reform.

"Mr. Busse has helped hundred of persons, as anybody living on the north side will tell you. He gave Birch a job in his own coal office and Birch justified his confidence by becoming an honest, trustworthy employé. Everybody who knows the facts honors Mr. Busse for what he has done for Birch. It was a Christian act and words are not strong enough to express my contempt for anybody who would censure him for it."

When Birch left the penitentiary he was sent to Mr. Busse by men who knew what a kind heart the coal man has. Birch asked Mr. Busse if he would not give him a job. Mr. Busse suggested he could put him to work on the street, checking on wagons.

Birch did not want that and asked for a place in the coal office.

Mr. Busse said he had required bonds from all such employés. Birch, of course, confessed that at such a time and under such a cloud he could furnish no bond. Finally Busse said he would put him on honor and set him at work. The trust, Mr. Busse says, has not been betrayed.

Hits Dunne Self-Applause.

Now, as to the other half of the political "broadside" in the Defender, the mayor is charged with misrepresenting his achievements to the people when he claims credit for "closing" the resorts in Custom House place. A detailed story of the detention, within the last few days, of a young girl of 15 years in one of these resorts, which should be at least under police regulation, also appeared.

"Mayor Dunne's friends are claiming for him the credit of closing the dens of vice of the once infamous Custom House place," is the wording of a portion of this part of the article. "They neglect to inform the public of the fact that these dens were not closed but merely moved to what is known as the Twenty-second street district, where they continue their vicious business."

Attention is called in the article to the fact that, as these places are all well known to the police, Mayor Dunne could enforce the law regarding them by merely giving orders to his chief of police, but that nothing has been done by him to bring about this result. Unstinted criticism of the mayor because of his policy of inaction regarding the enforcement of the Sunday closing laws and other laws against crime is meted out.

Physicians and Surgeons Form.

The Physicians and Surgeons' Busse club has been organized by members of the two professions, with Dr. Frank Billings at the head of its executive committee. The motto of the organization is "Dunne and Dirt; Busse and Beautiful Chicago." There are 150 members enrolled in the club, which will hold meetings at intervals from now until the April election.

South Side street railway Busse clubs have increased to the number of six, and new members are being enrolled every day. The latest move on the part of the men who run the cars in the indorsement of Mr. Busse and the ordinances is the organization of a central body, of which John Van Doornick has been elected president and J. S. Perry secretary. Nearly 1,200 names already have been placed upon the books of the club as members.

Railway Clerks for Busse.

The Illinois Central Railway Clerks' Busse club was organized, with a membership of 200. It is the intention of the members to work among their fellow clerks in the interest of Mr. Busse and the traction ordinances. The officers of the new club are:

President—H. G. Carter.
Vice president—A. H. Davies.
Secretary—Louis Berngen.
Treasurer—W. S. Huntington.
Corresponding secretary—W. D. Nichols.

Mounted Policeman Catches Autoist.

After a chase which lasted for several blocks, Richard Bacon, manager of a Chicago motor company, was arrested yesterday afternoon at Sheridan road and Oakdale avenue by a mounted policeman for exceeding the speed limit. Bacon is 30 years old and lives at 1470 Michigan avenue. He was taken to the Sheffield avenue police station and placed in a cell, but was later released on bonds.

Explorer Peary to Lecture.

Robert E. Peary, the arctic explorer, will lecture at the Auditorium Saturday evening, March 30, on the subject "Farthest North." The explorer will tell of his travels in the Arctic regions.

GIVE THEIR ARMS A REST

STRAPHANGERS CHEER CAR LAWS WHILE SITTING DOWN.

Every Seat in McVicker's Theater Is Filled When John M. Harlan Talks to Noonday Audience—Expert Explains Traction Ordinances, Answering Many Questions—Shows How Better Service Will Result from Adoption of Measure.

Every seat in McVicker's theater contained an enthusiastically cheering straphanger at the close of the second big traction meeting of the campaign held there at noon yesterday. The enthusiasm was not aroused solely by the novel position in which the street car patrons found themselves—that of occupying seats—but by the glowing word picture of a real traction system which will be made possible by the pending ordinances.

The picture was drawn by John Maynard Harlan, traction counsel for the receiver, and was made clearer in many details by many questions asked by straphangers. The questions appeared to be asked with a view to obtaining knowledge rather than as interruptions. The meeting probably was the most successful in the campaign, either as a political affair or for the discussion of the ordinances.

After Mr. Harlan had concluded his address and all of the questions had been satisfactorily answered, the sentiment of the big gathering was indicated by the manner in which a remark by a member of the audience was received.

Harlan Silent, but He Smiles.

"After those ordinances are indorsed, as they certainly will be, do we want Mayor Dunne to endeavor to enforce them, or somebody else?" asked an old man in the center of the theater.

Mr. Harlan smiled. The Straphangers' league, under whose auspices the meeting was given, is nonpartisan. Mr. Harlan had been cautioned against permitting any remarks of a political nature to creep into his address.

"Well, I can't enter into that discussion here," he said. "I certainly have my own opinions, however. If you are anxious to know what they are, you had better attend the first meeting that I address. I would be glad to see you there."

In discussing the ordinances Mr. Harlan confined himself entirely to the traction situation and the effect of the enforcement of the ordinances from the standpoint of the straphangers.

"For more than a decade we have been straphangers, and it surely is time that we were having a change," said Mr. Harlan. "The next step in evolution is from the straphanger to the seatwarmer.

"The settlement of the traction situation has a most important bearing upon the business interests of the city. Every merchant or wage earner will feel, to a certain extent, the effect of the adoption of some rational manner of settling this problem that has been with us so long.

Modern Service Now Demanded.

"There are many men here who can remember twenty years ago, when the cable cars were installed. We were extremely proud of them, believing that the acme of street car perfection had been attained in the cables that lumbered over our streets. But the city has grown, times have changed, and we want modern service such as we are entitled to expect from companies that occupy the streets.

"The traction ordinances, drawn by the men who have served the people in various capacities and in whom the people have confidence, and who have intimate knowledge of the traction situation, provide for this improved service. The ordinances are so drawn that it not only will be incumbent upon the traction companies to give this improved service, but it will be to their interest to do so.

"Provisions have been made which will make it impossible for the companies to get at but a certain part of the gross receipts of the system. A board of engineers, appointed by the mayor and representing the city, will supervise the work of the companies. Only reasonable expenditures can be made. When the company cannot declare the big dividends they have been permitted to declare in the past, the one thing for them to do with their money will be to build up the service.

"Naturally, good service will gain the friendship of the people. When the companies find that they can give this service by spending only the money they cannot get themselves, it is not expecting too much to prophesy that they will make as much of an effort to give the best service possible for the money as can be obtained.

What Companies Must Do.

"If the city so wishes, it can force the companies, within three years, to place their trolleys under ground, according to provisions of the ordinances. Then, there are provisions for a universal system of transferring, lower rates, and, last but not least, for the purchase by the city of the entire system at such time as it may choose or have the money to do so."

In a letter received by Mr. Harlan some days ago a questioner wanted to know why the Chicago City railway company did not "pay the same taxes as the widow or an orphan." Mr. Harlan produced figures to show that the company last year paid $1,488,000 in taxes, which, on the basis of the present valuation, is a much higher rate of taxation than is paid by small property holders.

Owing to the success of its first two meetings, the league will hold another massmeeting in the near future. Whether it will be at noon or at night has not been decided.

Dunne Is Aroused by Circular and Makes Bitter Personal Attack on Harlan.

At 12:30 o'clock today Mayor Dunne and others will speak at the Illinois Central freighthouse, foot of South Water street.

The plan of the Demo-M. O. campaign was again changed yesterday. Control of the Dunne propaganda was taken out of the hands of the Democratic county committee, and the real headquarters were moved from 124 La Salle street to Parlor G at the Sherman house. It was done about the time William R. Hearst and Arthur Brisbane came in from the east with a special cartoonist and some other help. It was announced some real "New York ideas" would be put into effect in Chicago.

Whether as a result of this cannot be said, but a general condition of hysteria exhibited itself. It took several forms.

In the first place Mayor Dunne made a savage personal attack on John M. Harlan, his opponent two years ago. This came out of a clear sky, without any known provocation on Mr. Harlan's part. It was only recently the two men were eating lunch together and were generally supposed to be on most amicable terms.

Tries to Prove He Is Accused.

Then the mayor worked himself into a state of great mental indignation, not to say excitement, over the publication of an anonymous circular. He made a long argument to prove that it accused him of being a glutton and several other things. It is known the republican committee had nothing to do with it, but the mayor asserted it was responsible and issued a long statement, weepingly appealing for votes because he had been so cruelly maligned.

But the hysteria went a trifle too far when the mayor's press agent put into the mouth of Col. James Hamilton Lewis some words he had never said. The corporation counsel is a man of long suffering and great patience, but when he was made to call men against whom he had no evidence "liars and villains" he balked. He promptly denied he had ever said anything of the sort.

The attack on Mr. Harlan was an entirely voluntary affair on the part of the mayor. Or, considering certain "brain storms" now raging at the Sherman house, it might be classed as involuntary. The mayor volunteered the following:

"One John M. Harlan, it appears, has taken the stump in advocacy of Mr. Busse. This is the man who for ten years has been willing to sacrifice himself in the interests of the people. In that time he has been a perpetual candidate for mayor. Balked of his desire to be mayor, he now comes forward to advise as to who shall be elected mayor.

Finds Position for Harlan.

"Mr. Harlan's motive is patent. Unable to be mayor himself, he hopes that if by any chance Mr. Busse should be elected he will be the 'near mayor.' That is now the summit of his ambition—'Near Mayor Harlan.' The title runs trippingly off the tongue.

"Is it any wonder that the voters of Chicago refuse to take Mr. Harlan at his own estimate of himself? Nothing is accomplished by mere mouthings unaccompanied by deeds. Let this valiant reformer do the chores of Lorimer and Busse. Let him lend himself to be the tool of the notorious ward bosses. The people know Mr. Harlan and can view him with tolerance, not unmixed with pity."

But perhaps the mayor's most violent form of hysteria was developed over the circulation of a pamphlet on insincerity. It had an exordium on insincerity which was purely academic and impersonal. It gave a number of instances of the trait, and said that the man who was constantly talking about chastity and continence, and yet was a "glutton, drunkard, and libertine," was insincere. There was not the slightest intimation there or anywhere else that he filled that bill. It was purely descriptive matter.

Mayor Prepares Long Reply.

But the mayor immediately proceeded to take it as a personal assault on him and could not grow too indignant over it. He issued a 1,200 word statement in which he said he had been called a "glutton, drunkard, and libertine," and used sentences like these:

"The leaders of the opposition stand convicted of descending to the vilest of mud slinging."

"The audacity of the Busse leaders in trying to disclaim the parentage of this dirty, lying pamphlet has served to catch them in their own trap."

"I charge that pamphlet was distributed through the agency of traction money, and that its cowardly, lying pages came from men who are behind the candidacy of my opponent."

"Don't you think you are going considerably out of your way to prove that somebody has accused you of being a glutton and so on?" was asked of the mayor.

"No, sir," replied Mr. Dunne, once more working up his indignation. "It is so stated by innuendo, if not by direct statement, and the pamphlet is a dastardly, lying, cowardly publication."

Explains Origin of Pamphlet.

The following statement was made by a responsible man who knew about the pamphlet in question: "It was not written by or circulated through the agency of any political organization. Neither the republican or democratic committees had anything to do with it. The author is not in town tonight, but is expected tomorrow. If he is not there will be a man here who will be authorized to speak for him. Mayor Dunne's charge that it was circulated by the republican committee, or that it had knowledge of its being printed, is absolutely false."

Mayor Dunne issued an "opinion," prepared by Donald R. Richberg, a lawyer, in which he held the traction ordinances are bad because they do not conform to the law as to frontage consents, and that the council has no right to delegate any of its power to the board of engineers. The opinion was submitted to lawyers for the traction companies before being given to the mayor, but was disregarded by them on the grounds the points raised had already been thrashed out.

WOMAN IN WOODS, MUMBLING.

Police Find One in Rogers Park Grove and Take Her to Chicago Avenue Station.

A woman 30 years old, who gave the name of Lena Holland, 2707 Wabash avenue, was found sitting under a tree in a stretch of wood in Rogers Park last night by Policeman Charles Sexton. She was mumbling incoherently. She refused to tell the reason for her presence in the wood. She was taken to the East Chicago avenue station, where she will be examined as to her sanity by the city physician this morning.

WOLF IN DEMO.-M. O. FOLD.

MAYOR GIVES HEARTY INDORSEMENT TO EX-ALD. M'INERNEY.

Acceptance of Former Leader of Lupine Contingent in City Council as Member of the Dunne Following Causes Apprehension Among the Faithful—Executive Cordially Refers to Thirtieth Ward Democratic Candidate as "My Friend Mike."

Michael McInerney, ex-alderman of the Thirtieth ward and a former leader of the "gray wolf" contingent of the city council, was taken into the Demo-M. O. fold last night with the hearty indorsement of Mayor Edward F. Dunne and all the rest of the Dunne speakers who addressed an audience of Thirtieth ward democrats in Sivore's hall, Forty-third and State streets.

Before his retirement from the city council at the request of his constituents four years ago Mr. McInerney was hand in glove with Ald. Kenna of the first ward, Ald. Cullerton of the eleventh, John Powers of the Nineteenth, and others of the gang stripe whom the mayor has failed to indorse formally during this campaign. Consequently the mayor's friendly turn for McInerney was the cause of considerable apprehension among his following.

Mr. McInerney's record in the council, it is said by some, far from proves that his was "the cause of the people."

Praises "Old Friend Mike."

After the mayor had climbed three flights of stairs and entered the hall his ambition to boost his "old friend McInerney" undoubtedly was encouraged by the sight on all sides of signs and banners, indicating that "Dunne and McInerney" were the prevailing spirits. At every mention of the aldermanic candidate's name throughout the evening husky cheers filled the smoke ladened air.

"I am glad to be here tonight for one reason, especially," said Mayor Dunne. "I am pleased to be able to say a good word for my old friend, Mike McInerney, who as you all know is the aldermanic candidate of the democratic party in this ward. Mr. McInerney is an experienced man in official duties, having previously been a member of the city council. He is a worthy, able, and energetic candidate."

Such a long list of Demo.-M. O. talent swarmed into the Thirtieth ward that ex-Ald. Charles Boyd, who was chairman, had trouble in finding a place for them on the program. The meeting closed shortly after midnight. Col. James Hamilton Lewis was the last speaker.

Mayor Defends His Reputation.

At his meeting in the Twenty-eighth ward, held in Wabansia hall, 907 North California avenue, Mayor Dunne made but slight reference to the pamphlet which he persists in crediting to the republican managers. The implied threat that he would "tell it all" was not fulfilled, and he contented himself with a refutation of the "charge" that he is "a glutton, a drunkard, and a libertine."

He asserted that Mr. Busse had not kept his pledge to turn over the interest on public funds to the state while state treasurer, and that he was in favor of the repeal of the public policy act. This Mr. Busse has denied in plain language again and again.

SAYS CHICAGO LEADS IN ART AND HAS BEST BOULEVARDS.

Franklin MacVeagh Places City at Top Because of Its Many Beautiful Features.

Those unpatriotic citizens who think Chicago a flat, uninteresting waste, utterly devoid of artistic interest, were shown the error of their ways yesterday.

In a symposium on "The Development of Art in Chicago," held in the afternoon by the Arché club, Franklin MacVeagh said Chicago, far from being at the bottom of the list artistically, is, in many respects, the leader among American cities in the purity and value of its art possessions.

"First and foremost among Chicago's artistic features," he said, "is its park and boulevard system. As it stands now there is nothing finer in the country. Its long stretches of drives, its great areas of semicultivated beauty, and its winding lagoons form the best system of its kind in the country.

"In addition we are practically sure to have, in the near future, a great system of extended drives and outer parks which will make Chicago unique among the cities of the world.

Sculpture of the Best.

"Chicago's sculpture is not large in quantity, but what we have is good. This is not the case in most American cities. In New York there are hundreds of atrocities that ought to be taken out and dumped somewhere in the harbor. Chicago has none of these, and what we have ranks with the best in American sculpture.

"There is much to be done, however. We must remedy the awful condition and appearance of our street cars. They are a disgrace to any civilized community. Another thing that must be abolished is the smoke nuisance.

"In this work for artistic betterment we must begin with the civic government. We have been a long time learning this lesson, but by the time it is drilled into us it will be well learned. The city government is the first thing to be cleaned up, if we are to clean the city."

Celebrate Development of Art.

The meeting, which was held in the Chicago Historical Society building—Dearborn avenue and Ontario street, was described by club members as "a celebration of the development of Chicago art." Almost 150 leading artists of the city and representatives of the various art schools and societies were invited as the guests of honor.

Mrs. La Verne W. Noyes spoke on "Chicago Artists," illustrating her talk with a collection of works by early Chicago artists, among them paintings by G. A. P. Healey, Charles Peck, Miss Annie Shaw, Mrs. Fassett, and Mr. Spread.

Walter Cransten Larned spoke on "Art Collections of Chicago." Wallace Heckman spoke on "Educational Influences in Chicago Art," and Charles L. Hutchinson on the artistic activity of the Arché club. An informal reception was tendered the guests of honor.

BARTENDER WOUNDS WOMAN AND THEN TAKES OWN LIFE.

Edward Reuss Shoots Miss Mamie Laurie While She Is with a Party of Friends in a Saloon.

Edward Reuss, a bartender, killed himself early this morning after attempting to kill Mamie Laurie, 30 years old, his sweetheart, when he found her with two men and two women in the saloon of P. W. Gumb, 2558 State street. Reuss died on the way to a hospital. The woman's wounds are not considered fatal.

Miss Laurie, who lives in the Gerald apartment building, Twenty-sixth and State streets, went to Gumb's saloon last night with two women, Mrs. W. B. Fells, 2728 Wabash avenue, and Miss A. Meyers, 2730 Wabash avenue.

At the saloon they met J. W. Rigley, who lives at the Grace hotel, and M. J. Hoag, who lives at the Wellington hotel. While the five were together Reuss, who is a bartender at L. S. Ogren's saloon, 79 Twenty-sixth street, walked in. He called Miss Laurie from the room. When she returned, Reuss followed and shot her.

The bullet struck Miss Laurie in the right ear, inflicting a severe scalp wound and rendering her unconscious. Reuss then shot himself in the right side and through his head.

Reuss rented a room in Miss Laurie's apartments, the police say. None of the persons present at the shooting knew of a quarrel between them.

Four Killed in Tunnel Blast.

President and Administration Deeply Interested in Outcome of Election.

Malign Influences Behind Mayor Dunne's Candidacy Regarded as Peril to the City.

dinary political headquarters and that the postoffice would be managed in a nonpartisan way for the benefit of the whole people without regard to politics.

According to reports which have reached here, Mr. Busse has scrupulously carried out his contract and has entirely divorced the postoffice from the local municipal campaign. If it were otherwise the administration would be obliged to take action so that in the future it should not be said that the federal government had used its great power to put one of its own employés into the chief executive chair of one of the largest cities.

Inasmuch as President Roosevelt has permitted Postmaster Busse to remain in office, the writing of a letter by the president, no matter how much he might sympathize with the republican campaign, would surely be seized upon by democratic campaign managers, and would be distorted into an attempt by the United States government to control the local affairs of Chicago. For this reason the president has declined to write a letter in regard to the Chicago campaign, but he has never hesitated to talk to his callers with the utmost freedom.

Other members of the administration, not having the president's personal responsibility, are much more outspoken. There is no other large political campaign going on in the United States at the present time, and the fight in Chicago has naturally attracted the attention of all the administration people.

Present Campaign Unique.

The reports received here go to show there is at stake something a great deal more than the traction question itself, important as that is to the people of Chicago. Certain forces are being lined up behind Dunne which were entirely absent from the last campaign in Chicago two years ago, when the son of Justice Harlan of the United States Supreme court was beaten by a scratch.

Immediate municipal ownership at that time seemed to be a thing which might fairly be tried by the people. The traction lines were in a fearful mess. No one seemed to be able to untangle them. Company after company, corporation after corporation, had been laid over the streets of Chicago until few people could even estimate the real value of franchises or good will, or the physical improvements of the Chicago traction lines. The service was indescribably bad, nobody knew just when most of the franchises expired, and the real difference between Dunne and Harlan at that time was largely one as between Tweedledum and Tweedledee.

Evil Forces Backing Dunne.

Since then everything has been changed. The United States Supreme court has swept the old traction companies off the map. The city government has been given a chance by means of this decision to make entirely new bargains on a new basis, and without involving the expenditure of millions of money which were absolutely necessary under the old municipal ownership program. Mayor Dunne's theories all seem to have failed, and control of the situation has been vested in the same liberal element of the city council. On that basis it would be a purely local situation in the Chicago mayoralty campaign, and there would be little outside interest, least of all in the federal administration, there being no longer any Chicago member of the cabinet.

What has stirred up the republican leaders here is the fact that in some way and for some reason, exactly the same elements have lined up in Chicago back of Dunne which were back of Hearst when he fought McClellan and which were also back of Hearst when he made his losing fight against Hughes. The Dunne people seem to have forgotten that they started out on a purely economic basis. Gradually there has come the same effort to array classes against masses and to arouse all the most dangerous, revolutionary, and un-American features of a municipal campaign in a great city, where it is the easiest thing in the world to inflame the passion of the mob to a degree which remains dangerous for years thereafter.

President's Attitude Defined.

Those who are curious enough to find out the attitude of President Roosevelt in regard to just such a fight as is now being carried on in Chicago would do well to turn back to the celebrated speech he made less than a year ago, when he held up professional "muck rakers" to the scorn of the community and laid down the law of good sense in national and municipal government; when he said:

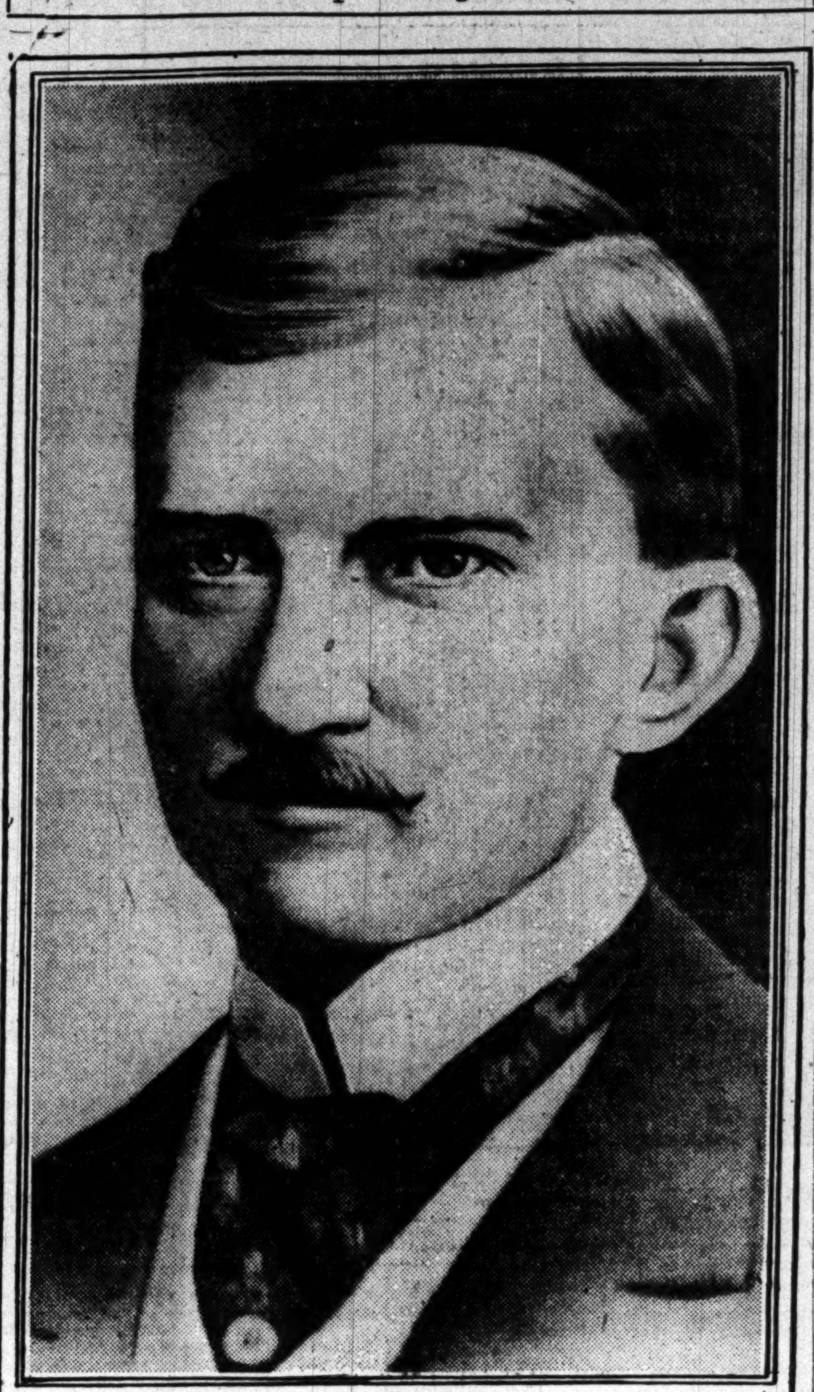

"The only public servant who can be trusted honestly to protect the rights of the public against the misdeeds of a corporation is that public man who will just as surely protect the corporation itself from wrongful aggression. If a public man is willing to yield to popular clamor and to do wrong to the man of wealth or to rich corporations, it may be set down as certain that if the opportunity comes he will secretly and furtively do wrong to the public in the interest of the corporation.

Sanity and Honesty Needed.

"But, in addition to honesty, we need sanity. No honesty will make a public man useful if that man is timid or foolish, if he is a hot headed zealot, or an impracticable visionary. As we strive for reform we find that it is not at all merely a case of a long uphill pull. On the contrary, there is almost as much of breeching work as of collar work; to depend only on traces means that there will soon be a runaway and an upset. The men of wealth who today are trying to prevent the regulation and control of their business in the interest of the public by proper government authorities will not succeed, in my judgment, in checking the progress of the movement. But if they did succeed they would find that they had sown wind and surely would reap the whirlwind, for they would ultimately provoke the violent excesses which accompany reform coming by convulsion, instead of by steady and natural growth.

"On the other hand, the wild preachers of unrest and discontent, the wild agitators against the entire existing order, the men who act crookedly, whether because of sinister design or from mere puzzle headedness, the men who preach destruction without proposing any substitute for what they intend to destroy, or who propose a substitute which would be far worse than existing evils—all these men are the most dangerous opponents of real reform. If they get their way they will lead the people into a deeper pit than any into which they could fall under the present system. If they fail to get their way, they still will do incalculable harm by provoking the kind of reaction which, in its revolt against the senseless evil of their teaching, would enthrone more securely than ever the very evils which their misguided followers believe they are attacking."

PRINCIPALS IN A CLASH.

CHARGE MADE THAT REPORT WAS RAILROADED THROUGH CLUB.

School Management Committee Sets April 8 as Date for Hearing Both Sides in Controversy Regarding Action Taken on Applying Post Promotional and Salary Increase System to Heads of Public Educational Institutions as to Teachers.

Charges that a report submitted to the school management committee of the board of education by the committee on administration of the Chicago Principals' club had been "railroaded" through the club and "doctored" were made yesterday by Principals Frank A. Larck of the Stowe school and Charles W. Thompson of the Washburne school. As a result of the charges it is expected a meeting of the club will be called at once by President E. C. Rosseter. A stormy session is predicted.

The school principals petitioned the school management committee several weeks ago to take such action as would make the Post promotional system applicable to principals as well as to teachers, permitting them to advance in the salary scale solely on the basis of length of service.

The school management committee gave the petitioners a hearing and later offered to promote them on the same plan that high school teachers are promoted under the new system.

Protest by the Principals.

Although the high school teachers are advanced from one salary to a higher one on a basis of length of service, they are required to do certain study work or write a monograph on some educational subject once every three years. This work is to be regarded as "evidence of professional growth." When a number of the principals learned that study was to be made compulsory they protested that they should be judged solely from the results of their work as shown in the schools in their charge.

As a result of this second demand the school management committee asked every principals' organization in the city to take a vote on the question and report results to the committee. It was over the report from the Principals' club, the largest of the principals' organizations, that the trouble arose.

Report Submitted to Trustees.

Chairman Fulton B. Ormsby of the committee on administration submitted the report of the principals that the executive committee of the club by a vote of 20 to 2 had approved the plan and that later about 100 members attended a general meeting of the club at which 39 voted against the proposed study requirements and 12 voted in favor of them.

The report of this meeting was signed by Principals Fulton B. Ormsby, Harriet N. Winchell, Morgan G. Hogge, Abigail C. Ellings, Avon S. Hall, Harriet T. Treadwell, and Austin C. Rishel.

As soon as the report was read Trustee Post presented a letter he had received from Principal Thompson in which the charge was made that the matter had been taken up during the last fifteen minutes of the principals' meeting and had not been discussed. Mr. Post asked that consideration of the plan be deferred, and April 8 was set for a hearing.

"The report was laid on the table on motion of Principal Homer Bevans," declared Principal Larck, "and was not adopted. The report has been doctored."

"The report was not doctored," asserted Principal Hogge.

CHARGES HOLDUP; FINDS MONEY

Joseph Savage Asks Release of Three Men Whom He Accused of Robbing Him.

After causing the arrest of three men whom he accused of having robbed him of $150, Joseph Savage, 35 years old, of 4531 Wood street, yesterday informed Lieut. O'Brien of the new city police station that he had found his money and asked that the prisoners be released.

Savage said he and the men—Joseph Leonard, 5150 Marshfield avenue; Charles Peschak, 1559 Forty-seventh street, and Charles Gurney, 2940 West Forty-ninth street—had been in a saloon at 1735 West Forty-second street Thursday forenoon and that his companions induced him to go into a back room, where they robbed him. He later discovered that his money had slipped through a hole in his pocket inside the lining of his coat.

The men were suspected for a time of having been concerned in the alleged attempt to kidnap Miss May Fakan, 4753 Loomis street, last Wednesday, but her failure to identify them caused their release from the latter suspicion.

CRIME WAVE COMES AGAIN

BURGLARS AND HOLDUP MEN RESUME THEIR ACTIVITIES.

Many Houses Are Robbed While Mayor Dunne Is Praising His Police Force for Efficiency—One Thief, After Stealing Heavy Clothing, Leaves Note Explaining Why He Did Not Take a Panama Hat—Valuable Heirlooms Stolen.

Notwithstanding Mayor Dunne's campaign boast that "Chicago never was freer from crime than it is at present," burglars, holdup men, and other criminals are showing remarkable activity.

Three overcoats, four suits of clothes, and a number of shirts and two diamond studs were stolen last night by a burglar from a room in a rooming house at 199 West Madison street. The articles belonged to Barney Hahn and James Martin, who left the room early last evening to attend a theater. When they returned at 11 o'clock they found the following note left by the burglar:

I am shy on cold weather clothes, and, as I am to go north soon on a hunting trip, I am compelled to take yours. And your diamond studs. Do you need them? If you do, I might return them some day. I could not use the Panama hat. So long.

Family Heirlooms Stolen.

In the absence of the family, burglars broke into the residence of C. C. Zug, 348 Dearborn avenue, and stole jewelry, silverware, and other valuables, including several heirlooms that were considered priceless by their owner. Mr. Zug is a department manager at Marshall Field & Co.'s retail store.

Burglars entered the residence of Mrs. J. Jones, 728 West Seventy-ninth street, and after rifling closets and drawers carried off $25 and clothing valued at $50. The money had been hidden in a bureau drawer.

David Chapman, a solicitor, 180 West Fulton street, was held up at Sangamon and West Lake streets by three men, who beat him severely when they found only a small sum of money. His cries attracted the attention of Detectives Mills and Martin, who chased the robbers and fired several shots at them. The robbers escaped.

Pasquale Colabuse, 109 Ontario street, weepingly told the police he believed $600, his savings of years of hard toil, had been stolen by his son, Rocco Colabuse, 27 yars old, who has disappeared.

Many Bogus Checks Cashed.

The police are seeking a man and a woman who for several days have been passing bogus checks on the south and west sides and who it is said have obtained at least $1,000 in money or jewelry through their operations. Complaints have been made at the Englewood, South Englewood, and Maxwell street police station. Phillip Hadowski, a jeweler at 481 Jefferson street, reported that he accepted a worthless check on the National Bank of Racine in payment for $600 worth of diamonds which he sold to a well dressed stranger.

By long and continuous detective work H. S. Clark of Waukegan has recovered at Clinton, Ia., a $3,500 automobile which was stolen six months ago from his brother, Melville Clark, in Chicago. The man who had the machine said he had bought it from a stranger.

SAYS HER HUSBAND IS "UGLY."

Mrs. Grace O. Barrett Also Makes Many Other Charges in Suit for a Divorce.

Mrs. Grace Olcott Barrett, in a suit for divorce begun yesterday, charges that her husband, in addition to being an "ugly, ill-tempered man," borrowed $4,000 from her, struck her, swore at her, moved all the furniture from their residence, and that she fears he will take their daughter from her. The husband, George K. Barrett, is proprietor of the Van Dyke Copying company, 63 Kinzie street.

Other suits for divorce begun yesterday were:

Mrs. Augusta Cornue from Edward E. Cornue.

Mrs. Edna Calvert from Benjamin Calvert.

Mrs. Emma Motley from Holcombe H. Motley.

Mrs. Cornue asked for an order restraining her husband from interfering with her.

Illinois Engineers Form Society.

The Engineering Society of the Alumni of the University of Illinois was organized in the Monadnock block last night. More than 125 graduates of the engineering department of the Champaign school were present. Charles E. Sargent was elected president, and Burton French secretary-treasurer.

CRISIS REACHED IN LESLIE TRIAL.

Judge Ball to Decide Today Whether Jury Shall Hear Nicholas' Confession.

TELLS HOW HE MADE IT.

Detective Testifies It Was Voluntary and That Prisoner Did It to Save Himself.

Judge Ball will announce this morning whether the written confession of Howard Nicholas that he and Leonard Leopold brutally murdered Mrs. Margaret Leslie, an actress, in her room in the Palace hotel, on Oct. 17, 1906, shall be submitted as evidence.

The state holds that this confession alone is sufficient to convict the two defendants. The defense does not deny that Nicholas made the confession, but on grounds that Nicholas made the confession to the police under threats or promises of clemency made a desperate fight throughout the afternoon session yesterday to exclude the confession.

When court opened Judge Ball announced that the confession made by Leopold to the Wausau (Wis.) police, in which he admitted complicity in the crime, should be told to the jury. Policemen Green and Hogan of Wausau told the jury Leopold volunteered the confession.

Leopold Gives His Version.

Leopold was placed on the stand to tell his version of the alleged confession. He denied having made it, any further than saying that he was the man for whom the Chicago police were searching. He said the officers "bulldozed" him after giving him two bottles of whisky.

"They said I would be hanged and might as well make a clean breast of it," said Leopold. "They asked me who killed Mrs. Leslie, and I said I didn't know, but that I had seen in the papers I was being hunted by the police. Hogan cursed me, and said that, now that the Wausau police had made the arrest, they were going to get the glory out of it."

Leopold admitted helping to dispose of Mrs. Leslie's diamonds. Hogan denied he had given Leopold whisky or had made any threats.

Edward D. Coyle, a detective from central station, was placed on the stand in the afternoon. Nicholas' attorney, M. E. Gallion, entered objection to any evidence about Nicholas' confession being made in the presence of the jury until the state had established the fact that the confession was voluntary. The jury was dismissed. The state proceeded to reveal to the court under what conditions the confession was made.

Detective Tells of Confession.

William S. McGuire of the city detective bureau, probably the most important witness the state has, told the story of obtaining Nicholas' consent to confess. He denied he had held out any promises or intimidated the prisoner.

"After they had taken Nicholas to the East Chicago Avenue station I told him that he had been charged with the murder of Mrs. Leslie," said McGuire.

"'What do you mean?' he said. 'Why, she was my friend. I wouldn't do anything like that.'

Said He Feared Hanging.

"Later, when I asked him to explain his possession of the diamonds, he said: 'I can't tell what I know about the case without inviting myself to a necktie party.'

"'Do you mean to say you did the job?' I asked.

"'No, but I was in the room when it was done,' said Nicholas.

"'If you are not the man, you should tell who the guilty party is,' I told him.

"He asked me if there were anything in it for him if he should. I told him nothing more than to shift the blame from himself in case he were not guilty. I asked him who the right man was.

"'If you want the right man, get the fellow who was with me when I tried to pawn the diamonds,' he said.

"He meant Glen Harding, who turned out to be Leopold. I took Nicholas to Capt. O'Brien and told him the prisoner was ready to tell the story. Assistant Chief Schuettler, Police Attorney Comerford, and a number of witnesses were called in, and Nicholas told the story."

Document Corrected by Nicholas.

The confession, after it was typewritten, was read and signed by Nicholas and corrected by his own hand. It is in possession of Assistant State's Attorney Short, and relates that the two men killed the woman and took the diamonds. Nicholas applied chloroform to the cloth, after Leopold had choked her into unconsciousness, it says.

Those who heard Nicholas confess, and who signed the confession as witnesses, are: E. H. Woelfel, William Von Burries, Gustav Dreyfuss, A. L. Rueter, John J. Deveneux, H. A. Hoban, H. F. Schuettler, and Frank D. Comerford.

Assistant Chief Schuettler, on the stand, said Nicholas' confession was entirely voluntary.

Why Fat Is Dangerous

Reason Why the Heart So Often Fails and the Vital Organs Give Out.

Remarkable Obesity Reducer Sent Free to All.

In a fat person, the heart is one of the first organs of the body to become seriously affected. It becomes enclosed in a tight cordon of fat, and is gradually suffocated until the victim is found some morning, perhaps, lifeless. Apoplexy is also a common result of fat. And there are many lesser diseases and weaknesses resulting from fat which few fat people realize. While the body is thus in a weakened condition, the worst thing in the world to do is to try to reduce the fat with drugs or diet. There is a sure way which has become very popular among fat people and which has been proven to be almost neverfailing, and that is the Obesity Reducer used by F. J. Kellogg, of Battle Creek, Mich.

This remarkable Obesity Reducer, instead of weakening the body, builds up new bone, muscle, sinew, nerve and brain tissue. It reduces at the rate of a pound a day so naturally and easily, that it is a positive pleasure, as expressed by many fat people, to take the treatment. It is absolutely harmless, is taken at meal time, and tastes like small, crisp, delicious corn crackers.

F. J. Kellogg has had years of experience in the treatment of obesity and there is little doubt but that he has at last found the treatment which will positively reduce flesh without producing wrinkles or harmful results to the vital organs. Free trial treatments of Kellogg's Obesity Reducer are sent to any person interested in the reduction of fat. All that is necessary is to mail this article, with your name and address on a slip of paper, to F. J. Kellogg, 29 Kellogg Bldg., Battle Creek, Mich., and by return mail you will receive a trial package in plain wrapper, absolutely free.

THREE BOYS HAD ECZEMA OF HEAD

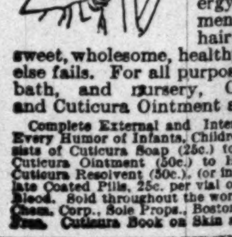

One Mother's Trials—Little Ones Treated at Dispensary for Three Months—Did Not Seem to Improve—Suffered Five Months.

ALL WERE PERFECTLY CURED BY CUTICURA

"My three children had eczema for five months. A little sore would appear on the head and seemed very itchy, increasing day after day. The baby had had it about a week when the second boy took the disease and a few sores developed, then the third boy took it. For the first three months I took them to the N— Dispensary, and they told me that the children had ringworm, but they did not seem to improve. Then I heard of the Cuticura Remedies, and I thought I would write you about my case, and when I got the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment I bathed the children's heads with warm water and Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. In a few weeks they had improved, and when their heads were well you could see nothing of the sores. I should be very glad to let others know about the great Cuticura Remedies. For the first three months I took them to the N— Dispensary, and they told me that the children had ringworm, but they did not seem to improve. Then I heard of the Cuticura Remedies, and I thought I would write you about my case, and when I got the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment I bathed the children's heads with warm water and Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. In a few weeks they had improved, and when their heads were well you could see nothing of the sores. I should be very glad to let others know about the great Cuticura Remedies. Hudson Maxim Perfects Safety Fuse, After Ten Years' Work.

SHELL TO PIERCE ARMOR.

Can Be Made to Explode Any Distance Behind Steel Desired.

New York, March 22.—[Special.]—The doom of the modern steel armored battleship is sealed. So says Hudson Maxim, the inventor of explosives.

Mr. Maxim announced tonight that after ten years of experimenting he had perfected a safety detonating fuse.

By this fuse a steel shell can be sent clear through the armor of a battleship or cruiser and made to explode at exactly the distance behind the armor desired by the gunner.

It doesn't matter whether the armor is one inch or twelve inches thick.

Mr. Maxim declares that his device marks the final victory of the steel shell over steel armor.

Tells the News Himself.

He made his announcement at a dinner given by the Canadian club here tonight to Sir Percy Sanderson, until recently the British consul general in New York.

Beside the new safety detonating fuse, Mr. Maxim said, he could tell the diners about a new smokeless powder, which he calls stabilite, which he has just begun to manufacture, but which is still in the process of experimentation.

This new weapon of modern warfare, Mr. Maxim declared, would wipe out, he was convinced, many or most of the dangers attaching to the use of smokeless powder.

Turning to the subject of his new fuse, Mr. Maxim said:

"In experiments at Indian Head on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week the new detonating fuse was used in shells shot through five, six, and eight inch Krupp process armor, and exploded the shell behind the armor at the distance that would be most effective.

"It is possible to so adjust the fuse that it will be utterly impossible for the shell to explode until after it has been fired from the gun. This is highly important in the use of high explosives."

Discussing stabilite, Mr. Maxim said, among other things:

"The new powder is not affected by the impurities. It will not decompose like the ordinary powder. It can be made and used in the same day. I think it will save from $300,000 to $350,000 in interest money to the government annually."

Says United States Is Helpless.

Mr. Maxim prefaced his announcement by a talk on the comparatively undefended seaboards on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the United States.

"The tremendous expense of modern warfare," he said, "makes the unprepared nation the only inviting bait. Poor old China is a good sample of what may happen to a nation unprepared to maintain its own peace by being prepared for war. The United States today is relatively as defenseless as China. Suppose some other nation should attempt to force our hand and call our bluff. Thanks to England she does not call the bluff.

"When the Venezuelan trouble came we put our backs up and showed our teeth. And do you know what the real truth was? Our capacity—our national capacity—for the manufacture of smokeless powder at that time was one charge for one ten inch gun each day.

At Mercy of the Japs.

"Now, as a matter of fact, on our Pacific coast we are absolutely defenseless. The Japanese have 750,000 trained veterans and we have 50,000 soldiers—who spend their time in shoveling and in waiting on the officers.

"It's true that we have got behind us the great American genius, but while that is getting to work the Japanees might capture the Pacific slope, land a quarter of a million troops, and occupy California. And California is rich enough in her own right to support the whole Japanese nation."

KIDNAPED BOY IN ENGLAND? ONE HELD ON SUSPICION.

Child at Portsmouth Is Believed to Be the Son of Dr. Marvin of Dover, Delaware.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—Third Assistant Secretary of State Wilson tonight received a cablegram from the American consul at Portsmouth, England, saying the authorities there have a boy who answers the description of Horace Marvin, the 4 year old boy kidnaped from his father's home near Dover, Del., three weeks ago. Mr. Wilson, acting on President Roosevelt's instructions, forwarded the message to Gov. Lea of Delaware. Mr. Wilson said tonight that the government stands ready to cooperate with the state officials in every possible way in the efforts to ascertain information in the kidnaping case.

Asks Roosevelt's Aid.

Dover, Del., March 22.—[Special.]—After nearly three weeks' search for a trace of his 4 year old son, Dr. Horace N. Marvin Jr. this afternoon invoked the aid of President Roosevelt. Dr. Marvin asks the president to instruct postmasters in various cities to display posters descriptive of his kidnaped son. Because of the postal regulations the postmasters are unable to display posters without a direct order. An appeal to the president also was made to put a stop to the flood of anonymous letters.

CROWN SHARE IN ORE RIGHTS?

Swedish Parliament Receives Proposal Relating to Deposits in Lapland.

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN, March 22.—The crown today presented to parliament a proposition that the state acquire an interest, with mining rights, in three of the largest iron ore deposits in the kingdom, situated in Lapland and controlled by a private company.

If the plan is adopted the state will hold a half interest in the Tao mines or twenty-five years, with an option to acquire another third after thirty years, without payment, if it so desires. In consideration of this concession to the state the company would in the meantime be permitted to export practically unlimited quantities of ore annually.

The government has herstofore so limited the exports of ore that the proprietors of the deposits have claimed that there was no profit in working them, hence they are willing to accept government ownership.

Man Who Called on State for Piano Says He Is Victim of His Own Joke.

WILLIAM NAVIGATO.

William Navigato, state representative from the Seventeenth senatorial district, who sent in a requisition for an upright piano, a typewriter, and a suit case, in the belief that these things would be valuable accessories to the framing of laws at Springfield, returned to Chicago yesterday much crestfallen. He said the requisition was a joke, which he had helped to "frame up" on one of his colleagues, who deftly turned the tables on Navigato.

"When I saw that requisition printed in the papers it made me mad," said the representative. "I helped to frame that up on another man and then they went and turned the trick on me. Anybody would know that the state won't furnish us with pianos and suit cases."

When he was reminded that his name was signed to the request Navigato said:

"Well, maybe I signed it and maybe I didn't, I don't remember. Now, when I come to think of it, I believe it was forged by somebody, who thought he was smart. But the joke went too far."

Navigato is a democrat and is serving his first term in the legislature.

DOOMS WHITELEY SLAYER

MURDERER OF GREAT LONDON MERCHANT SENTENCED TO DIE.

Trial of Horace George Rayner Reveals Hidden Scandal in Life of "General Provider," but Fails to Save—Jury, Ordered by Judge Not to Consider Insanity Plea, Brings In a Verdict of Guilty in Nine Minutes.

LONDON, March 22.—Sentence of death was imposed today upon Horace George Rayner, who on Jan. 24 shot and killed William Whiteley, the noted merchant of Westbourne, known as the "general provider."

The trial laid bare a phase of the dead merchant's life, of which the first hint came out the day Rayner shot him down in his store.

Attorney Muir, the prosecuting attorney, said the prisoner was 3 years old before any member of his family became in any way connected with Mr. Whiteley. At that time, in 1882, Rayner's aunt, Louisa Turner, was given employment in Whiteley's store, and the following year she went to live under his protection. Cecil Whiteley, whom the prisoner pretended to be while in the hospital suffering from the pistol shot which he inflicted on himself after the murder, was a son by this connection and was born in 1885. Rayner learned of the existence of Cecil about 1900 and also of Louisa Turner's connection with Whiteley.

Merchant's Mistress a Witness.

Counsel described Rayner's increasing poverty of recent years and contended that the knowledge of the scandal in the life of Mr. Whiteley led Rayner to attempt to blackmail him. Counsel further alleged that Rayner had prepared the crime with great care and deliberation.

Louisa Turner confirmed Mr. Muir's statements and testified that she and Mr. Whiteley had a quarrel and separated in 1888, because Whiteley alleged that she had improper relations with George Rayner, the prisoner's father. The charge, the witness asserted, was untrue, and Mr. Whiteley subsequently withdrew it on George Rayner's threat to prosecute him.

The prisoner next entered the box, and in reply to questions of the counsel said George Rayner once told him he was not his son and that he ought to see Mr. Whiteley. The prisoner related in detail the interview which he had with Mr. Whiteley Jan. 24, in which he suggested that the merchant furnish him with assistance. Mr. Whiteley referred him to the emigration bureau, and Rayner threatened to commit suicide.

Judge Bars Insanity Arguments.

Mr. Whiteley left the room and the prisoner followed. He said he felt his blood surge to his head and then the tragedy took place.

The lord chief justice in summing up said the jury must dismiss any question of sanity or insanity. The prisoner drew a pistol on Mr. Whiteley with the intention of killing and the jury must find him guilty of willful murder. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty, after deliberating nine minutes. Lord Chief Justice Alverstone immediately donned the black cap and pronounced the sentence of death.

NEW TRIUMPH IN WIRELESS.

German Obtains Distinct Exchanges of Words at Distance of Two Miles.

BERLIN, March 22.—Count Arco, in his wireless telephone experiments, has succeeded in obtaining distinct exchanges of words in a tolerably natural voice at a distance of two miles by using poles thirty feet high. Count Arco does not regard his discoveries as commercially practicable at present, though he hopes eventually to construct an apparatus which will take the place of wires in cities and perhaps in suburban districts.

CHUNK OF SIAM FOR FRANCE.

Treaty About to Be Signed by Which King Chulalongkorn Sells 12,420 Square Miles of His Kingdom.

PARIS, March 23, 2 a. m.—The newspapers this morning announce that a treaty is about to be signed between Siam and France by which France acquires 12,420 square miles of territory in Siam in exchange for a suitable compensation. This compensation, however, is not specified.

Head of a Prison and Two Police Captains the Latest Victims of the Terrorists in the Czar's Dominions—Government Announces It Will Support Plan for a Famine Relief Commission—Stolypin Admits His Mistakes.

ASTRAKHAN, Russia, March 22.—Prison Warden Przybylovsky was shot dead in the bazaar here at noon today. A captain of police hurried to the scene to investigate the murder and was also shot dead. No arrests have been made.

Police Captain Assassinated.

KUTAIS, Russia, March 22.—A police captain named Kipanidzo was shot dead in the street here tonight.

Premier Wants Famine Inquiry.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 22.—After a long debate today in the lower house of parliament on the formation of the famine relief commission, as proposed by M. Roditcheff, constitutional democrat, Premier Stolypin announced that the government fully joined in the proposition of M. Roditcheff and would give its full assistance to the work of the commission. M. Stolypin's speech was conciliatory. He admitted the government made many mistakes. The premier's announcement was the first approval by the government of the policy of the constitutional democratic party. M. Roditcheff's resolution was carried unanimously after a socialist amendment empowering it to visit the provinces and investigate work had been defeated by 287 to 160 votes.

COBBLER MAKES ASHES BURN MORE READILY THAN COAL.

Altoona Man Applies for Patent on the Secret of Discovery—Practical Test Shows Its Worth.

Altoona, Pa., March 22.—[Special.]—The ingenuity of an aged, hardworking cobbler, John Ellmore of this city, has succeeded in bringing the waste product of ashes into service, and, with the means of a prepared compound, he makes them burn more readily than coal. He has applied for a patent on the secret of his discovery.

By taking a small quantity of his compound and mixing it with a little water, then sprinkling it over the ashes and stirring them up with some coal, they are ready to burn. Of a ton of the mixture nothing is left but two or three small clinkers, and the ashes from a ton of coal are converted into fuel with a small portion of the compound.

A test was given at a local electric illuminating establishment today. One of the boilers was used for the demonstration, and in the test the other nine boilers were fired with bituminous coal. The one boiler in which the test was made produced a greater heat than the other nine.

PRINCETON WINS IN DEBATE.

Takes Negative of Question in Favor of Further Centralization of Governmental Power.

Princeton, N. J., March 22.—[Special.]—Princeton put two debating teams in the field tonight, one against Yale at New Haven and the other with Harvard here. The meeting at Princeton took place in Alexander hall. After long consideration the judges awarded the decision unanimously to Princeton. The question under discussion was: "Resolved, That the present distribution of power between the federal and state governments is not adapted to modern conditions and calls for readjustment in the direction of further centralization." Princeton backed the negative.

Receiver for Madison Lighting Co.

SEE LUNACY SIGNS IN THAW'S LETTERS

Rambling Notes Written to Banker Bulwark Jerome's Insanity Claim.

JURY OFF TILL MARCH 27.

Court Adjourns Until Justice Fitzgerald Decides For or Against Commission.

New York, March 22.—[Special.]—The jury which has been trying Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White was excused today until next Wednesday. That means it will not be much before that before Justice Fitzgerald announces his decision as to whether he will appoint a lunacy commission to determine whether or not Thaw is now sane.

When the jury was brought into court this morning it was simply for the purpose of excusing them for several days. For the first time in many days, or since witnesses were excluded from the courtroom, the women members of Thaw's family were present. Thaw smiled and bowed to them when he was brought over from the Tombs. Neither Delmas nor Lawyer Gleason was in court during the proceedings, which lasted only a few minutes.

After the jury had been excused Justice Fitzgerald asked Lawyer Hartridge what it was he wanted to say to the court on Thursday when Justice Fitzgerald shut him off promptly. Mr. Hartridge explained that he only desired to clear away Mr. Jerome's insinuation that the defense was withholding evidence of Thaw's insanity. This he did so satisfactorily that Mr. Jerome admitted that in the discussion that took place on the subject there was more or less heat on both sides, but he did not mean to refer to Mr. Hartridge particularly. He did not mean to charge Mr. Hartridge with any unprofessional conduct. That closed the subject, and Mr. Hartridge said the defense would surely have its affidavits ready by tomorrow afternoon.

Thaw's Letters to Lyon.

Incorporated in the affidavit submitted by Mr. Jerome are letters written by Thaw to J. Denniston Lyon, his Pittsburg banker. Some of the letters were written before White was killed and some of them since Thaw has been in the Tombs. The contention of Jerome is the letters show Thaw is not of sound mind. One of these letters, written from the Republican club, says:

Dear Denny—I'm sorry that the manager of Miss N's (Evelyn Nesbit) hotel is an idiot. She stopped one night at a place called the Cumberland, but was disturbed by street noises. No one was moved, and all meals were served. Now she has a better place, with a nice woman—Mrs. Kane (Caine), a friend of her family.

I never saw this Sweat, nor spoke nor wrote to him. You know of her misfortunes.

Mr. Holman married her mother three years too late. He is trying to keep her quiet, and must do so. Should the facts come out, no one but would believe she sold the child to the most notorious dastard in New York. Everything proves it. I, and a few other persons, know she did not mean wrong, but since infancy she was jealous of and disliked the child, and was gulled to an unbelievable extent by this blackguard and ——

Some rambling letters about transactions in stocks followed this, and then came these letters:

Dear Denny—I'm sorry to trouble you, but I don't understand. I was overdrawn $10,063.36. Paid in $8,992.70. (6370). (7). Did you make a note for $10,000—leaving my balance near $9,000 or make a note for $1,130.85, leaving no balance?

I lost almost nothing at M. C. playing. Just $1,400 for four weeks—a good deal less than the percentage. I bought some pearls and a strong automobile.

Hints at "Crooked Deal with Judge."

This letter was written after the trial started:

Dear Denny: The package arrived safely, but I can't send the slip for 11 (eleven) days, as we thought it best to leave bundle sealed in Gleason's desk until he returns. He worked exceedingly hard circumventing the crooked deal between Jerome's first assistant and that judge—and will combine rest with affairs. Friday he starts for Mexico with ——. If needed a telegram will always catch him, then he could be back in two days—if we see a chance for an early trial before any other judge—but we believe it will be first week January.

All very well. Yours very sincerely,
H. K. THAW.

P. S.—I hope these blackmailers try you again.

Mr. Lyon may have understood this letter, but the district attorney's office doesn't:

Dear Denny—or Frank: Please try to remember who was ——. It is said a relative of his is on my jury. If he is friendly or neutral only write me a brief answer, but if he had any trouble with you or I or is unfriendly please telegraph, "The iron is," eh? I will know what you mean. I hope he is all right, we can leave jury as it is. Of course, this is very secret.

All well. Y in haste. H. K. THAW.

Defense to Fight Commission.

It was said tonight that about seventeen affidavits will be submitted to Justice Fitzgerald by the defense. All the lawyers and alienists will make affidavits. Affidavits also will be made by Dr. George F. Shiels, who will swear in substance that Thaw is not suffering from paranoia, as the doctors for the prosecution say, and is able to advise with his counsel.

One of the most interesting affidavits is to be made by Delphin Michael Delmas. He will embody in his affidavit a letter he received from Thaw the day after the defense opened. In this letter Thaw gave to Mr. Delmas entire charge of the defense during the trial.

WALSH INQUIRY NEAR CLOSE.

Evidence Regarding Misapplication of Funds All In—False Entry Next for Consideration.

Evidence of alleged misapplication of bank funds upon which the government expects a true bill will be voted against John R. Walsh by the federal grand jury has practically all been presented. When the jury convenes on Monday it will be called on to investigate charges of false entry, a separate indictable offense.

It was reported about the Federal building yesterday that Thomas M. Jackson, who was cashier of the Chicago National bank and deemed a valuable witness before the first grand jury which indicted Walsh, would not be summoned.

Among the first witnesses to be examined were William Best and Fred G. McNally, who were directors in the Chicago National bank. W. J. Onahan, president of the Home Savings bank, also testified, as did B. E. McKay, auditor of the Chicago National bank. Other witnesses were E. A. Burrill, superintendent of the Illinois Southern, whose name is said to have been signed to one of the "memorandum notes"; George Paradis, an employé of the same road, whose name also appeared on a "memorandum note"; Fred C. Edington, paying teller in the Chicago National bank; Pierre E. Miller, clerk in the Equitable Trust company; and J. F. Corning.

BATTLE COSTS 1,000 LIVES.

Fight in Which Salvadorians Were Defeated by Hondurans Cost Heavily in Men.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—The state department today received a dispatch from the United States consul at Managua, Nicaragua, saying that in the battle between the Salvadorian and Honduran armies on March 18, the details of which have already been published, the former lost 1,000 men in killed.

NUTS MOLLYCODDLE DIET?

GOVERNMENT FOOD SHARPS SAY SO—BETTER EAT RAW MEAT.

Watch What the Eagle, the Tiger, and the Common or Farm Yard Ox Eat—You Can Be Like Any of Them If You Choose—Can't Get Rich Unless You Favor Freshly Slaughtered Meat or a Fighter if You Eat It Cooked.

New York, March 23, 3 a. m.—[Special.]—The New York World today prints the following under a Washington date line:

It's what you eat that makes you what you are.

That's what the food sharps of the agricultural department said tonight, when they read the conclusions of Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale, that the vegetarian is the strongest type physically. According to a table of recipes outlined today, food not only decides a man's muscular character, but his mental caliber and particular fitness in business life as well. Here are some of them:

To make money in the stock market: Eat meat fresh from the slaughter house, just as the eagle, shrewdest of all birds of prey, kills a lamb and eats it on the spot.

To become a prize fighter or a great warrior: Eat all meats raw.

To be mediocre: Eat "ham and."

To cultivate brain storms: Eat midnight lobster.

To be a mollycoddle: Eat nuts and breakfast foods.

Regularity the Thing.

Success in everything depends upon the regularity of your diet. The department authorities say that man reflects the animal spirit. They point to the fact that just as the carnivorous animals, as the tiger and the lion, are predatory and ferocious, so can a human being become by devouring raw meat. And, by the same process, the graniverous animals, like the cow and the horse, are tractable and strong, just as the man is who lives on vegetables.

Thus by a regular diet of beans three times a day from generation to generation the subject finally becomes a strong but easily persuaded individual. On the other hand, if the subject eats raw beef sandwiches he becomes belligerent, crafty, treacherous, and selfish.

The department is now engaged in exhaustive research into the precise effect upon the human intellect of various kinds of food and will soon issue a formal statement on the subject.

Lobsters Good for "Brain Storms."

"Investigations by noted scientific men throughout the world," said Prof. Langworthy of the department today, "have led to the conclusion that probably the most intellectual men in the world are the Buddhist priests. They are vegetarians. But it is well known to any one who views the mere physiological aspect of the case that regularity is what counts. I don't mean that a man or woman should eat the same things every day, but that they must eat about the same time each day and be moderate in the quantity of their food.

"Temperance in the consumption of food counts for everything. Overeating and the persistent consumption of rich foodstuffs, especially at hours when the digestive apparatus should be allowed to rest, cause the so-called 'brain storms.' The mind is put in an abnormal condition through the overtaxing of the stomach."

SENATOR ARMSTRONG ACTS FOR KELSEY FOR $33.33 AN HOUR.

Gov. Hughes' Chief Spokesman in the Senate Embarrassed by Evidence at Judiciary Committee Hearing.

Albany, N. Y., March 22.—[Special.]—Senator W. W. Armstrong, Gov. Hughes' chief spokesman on the floor of the senate, and the man upon whom, it is supposed, he relies not a little to assist in getting his reform legislation, was shown today to have acted as special counsel for Otto Kelsey, superintendent of insurance, whom he is now seeking to remove from office.

Only recently the state controller's records indicated that Senator Armstrong had received thousands of dollars while serving in the legislature for acting as special counsel for state departments. Concerning Senator Armstrong's work as special counsel for Supt. Kelsey, the following statement is on file in the controller's office:

Otto Kelsey, superintendent of insurance, to William W. Armstrong, Dr.

Dec. 26-27, 1906—To services as counsel to The Hon. Otto Kelsey, Supt. of Insurance, in re-standard forms of policies, etc.....	$100.00

State Supt. of Insurance.

Charge traveling expense accounts.

At the hearing of Kelsey's testimony by the senate judiciary committee today, Judge Hatch questioned Kelsey to bring out the facts about Senator Armstrong's services.

"Did he appear at the hearing?" he asked.

"Yes, sir, he did," Kelsey replied.

"How long did that conference last?"

"Three hours, I should think."

While this testimony was being given Senator Armstrong's face flushed.

Printers in Butte Surrender.

Butte, Mont., March 22.—[Special.]—The Butte Typographical union members tonight decided to return to work at the terms offered by the Butte and Anaconda publishers. They will go back to work at a reduction of 50 cents a day in wages, and will get $5 for day work and $5.50 for night work. The four daily papers which have been suspended since Feb. 13 will resume publication next Monday or Tuesday.

CITY JUDGE LEADS IN MIDNIGHT RAID

President of New York Board Astonishes Police by Taking Command.

OPENS 'ALL NIGHT' COURT.

When Liquor Sellers Arrested for Violating Laws Are Brought In No Delay Occurs.

New York, March 23, 2 a. m.—At 1:30 o'clock this morning City Magistrate Charles S. Whitman, president of the board of city magistrates, attired in evening dress, entered the West Forty-seventh street station house, and, addressing the sergeant in charge, said:

"I am City Magistrate Whitman and I shall have to call on you, sergeant, to surrender the desk to me for a while. There is at this moment a number of saloons open in this precinct [sixteen in number, according to my estimate] and operating in violation of the law. I want whatever policemen you have in the station house and all you can get to go out and make arrests.

"There is a saloon now open, and drinks are being sold at the southwest corner of Eighth avenue and Forty-seventh street and also at the southeast corner of Eighth avenue and Forty-seventh street. I want policemen to go at once to these places."

The astonished sergeant called upon newspaper men to identify the magistrate and, this done, hurried out the reserves. Magistrate Whitman accompanied the officers and first led them to a saloon on Eighth avenue, where a man and woman were sitting at a table drinking.

"Taste that stuff, officer," said the magistrate to one of the policemen, "and see if that is beer."

The policeman then ordered the arrest of the man who sold the drinks.

With the prisoner the party returned to the station house, where the magistrate removed his coat and announced that he would hold court then and there. The prisoner was then arraigned.

In the meantime officers were dispatched in several directions by the magistrate, who expressed his intention of dealing with excise violations as fast as they were brought before him.

LIVES OF TWO HUNTERS ARE SAVED BY THEIR DOGS.

Animals Bring Help to Their Masters, Who Were Sinking to Death in a Marsh.

New York, March 23, 3 a. m.—[Special.]—The World this morning prints the following:

"To the intelligence of their two 'coon' dogs, Albert Chichester and Edward Maynard, trainers from Harrisburg, Pa., owe their escape from death in the slime of the Newark meadows this afternoon. The two men were hunting for muskrats. They knew nothing of the dangers of the meadows.

"Maynard, walking ahead, jumped to what he thought was the secure footing of a bank of snow and ice. But before he could take another step the slush gave way under his feet and the mud of the salt marsh oozed about his ankles. Maynard slowly sank. He threw out his arms as he sank to his chest. As Chichester tried to drag Maynard out he slipped, and in another moment he was up to his waist in the slime, as helpless as Maynard. The dogs raced about their masters barking furiously. The cries of the men were unheard, for they were fully half a mile away from human beings.

"Suddenly one of the dogs started off at breakneck speed. The other dog followed. They made for a stretch of railroad track where a gang of laborers were at work. The dogs dashed up to them, barking, running back and forth. The laborers at first were frightened. Then two of them followed the dogs, who led the way with joyous barks. Soon the two laborers came upon Chichester and Maynard, exhausted. Planks were obtained. With much difficulty they were able to extricate the two men."

ONE OF LOST M'GANN JEWELS MAY HAVE BEEN DISCOVERED.

Word Is Received That Minneapolis Police May Have Found Missing Sunburst in Local Shop There.

One of the jewels stolen a month ago from the residence of Robert G. McGann, 99 Pearson street, may have been discovered. A message last night from Minneapolis, Minn., contained the information that one of the pawnbroker inspectors in that city had found a diamond sunburst in a Minneapolis business house which may be one of the lot stolen. The local authorities have been notified from Minneapolis and an exact description of the property will be sent.

The sunburst, as recovered, is said to be worth $1,200. It was sold three days ago in Minneapolis for $300. The person making the sale is not yet known.

The McGann robbery included also about $4,000 of other property. It was one of the boldest in months.

Kills Wife; Commits Suicide.

North Baltimore, O., March 22.—Arthur Bean, 30 years old, killed his wife with an ax last night and then committed suicide by shooting himself with a rifle. Bean had had differences with his wife's family and had forbidden her to have anything to do with them. She went to visit her parents last night and the murder followed.

FISH EXPLAINS HIS CRITICISMS.

Denies That He Mentioned Harriman in Address at Philadelphia.

SOCIAL LEADER ON STAGE

Mrs. F. L. Pruyn, Member of Well Known Family, Chooses Professional Life.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, March 22.

Stuyvesant Fish said today he was disappointed in some things he said at Philadelphia Thursday being interpreted as referring to E. H. Harriman. His speech was before students of the University of Pennsylvania on the subject "Faith, the Basis of Finance." In the course of his speech he was reported as saying, in explanation of the recent panic in Wall street:

Fish Denies He Criticised Harriman by Name.

"The causes of all lack of confidence by the public in the integrity and honesty of railroad directors are the rotten conditions in certain railroad circles unearthed by the investigation. These conditions can be characterized only by extremely strong language."

"I did not mention Mr. Harriman's name once," said Mr. Fish today.

"Do you wish to deny that you were referring to Mr. Harriman?" he was asked.

"It is against my policy to deny things that appear in the papers. I never have done so. If you were to publish that I had just fallen out of the window and broken my neck I would not deny it."

Mr. Fish was positive in his statement that President Roosevelt's attitude toward railroads had had nothing to do with the slump in stocks.

"Do you think any railroads will be forced into the hands of receivers?"

"I hardly think it will be as bad as that. We are coming into a period in the railroad world of greatly increased operating expenses with gross earnings staying about the same, and of course that is bound to do harm."

In regard to watering railroad stocks, Mr. Fish said:

"I don't think it exists. The roads of this country are capitalized at about $64,000 a mile. In England the capitalization is almost as many pounds per mile. The value of the American roads is at least that per mile."

Former American Ambassador to Great Britain Joseph H. Choate and Mrs. Choate gave a dinner at their East Sixty-third street house tonight in honor of British Ambassador James Bryce and Mrs. Bryce, who since they reached this city last night have been guests at the Choate home.

Mrs. Francis L. Pruyn, who, with her husband, is well known in New York society, is going on the stage.

Mrs. F. L. Pruyn Decides to Go on Stage.

Mrs. Pruyn is a daughter of the late Frank B. Thurber, who was head of a wholesale grocery concern in this city. She married Francis L. Pryn, a member of an old family of that name in Albany.

Mrs. Pruyn is young and good looking and has been interested in the stage for several years. The success of Mrs. Bloodgood induced her to think she might turn her own talents to advantage. It was her intention to appear in a small part with Mrs. Carter-Payne in "Cleo." The withdrawal of "Cleo" led to an offer to Mrs. Pruyn from the Shubarts.

"I expect to appear in Mr. Fitch's 'The Truth,'" said Mrs. Pruyn this afternoon. "It will only be a small part, as I am only a beginner."

Edmund Bodine, a wealthy retired lumber merchant, was run over and instantly killed today by a Long Island railroad train near the Whitestone Landing station. He was a member of the prominent Staten island family of that name and was in his 84th year.

One of the registered documents stolen from the registered mail pouch sent to Paris on the French liner La Savoie was the will of the late Charles Rubens, or Voog, who died in Paris early last summer at the age of 80. The law firm of Coudert Bros. had forwarded the will to be authenticated in France. The value of the estate is estimated to be $1,250,000.

Will Stolen from La Savoie Mail Pouch.

Charles Voog was born in Mulhausen, Alsace, when that province was under French domination. He got into difficulties in Alsace in 1868 and came to America, where he changed his name to Rubens and took out naturalization papers. After amassing a fortune in the banking business he returned to France and settled in Paris, where his lavish hospitality won him a host of friends and gave him the entrée to exclusive circles.

After bequeathing a large sum to his niece the Rubens will, which was executed in Paris and filed at the American consulate, provided legacies for many curious charities. Forty or more claimants for the estate bobbed up at once from all parts of France. The lawyers are unprepared to say that the loss of the registered mail pouch was due to a premeditated plan to get the will and destroy it.

Besides Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Lazard Freres, it was learned today that Ladenburg, Thalman & Co. and Redmond & Co. were among other Wall street firms who lost securities in the theft of the La Savoie's registered mail pouch.

Lee Arthur, whose real name is Arthur Lee Kahn, and who makes a living writing plays, is to be allowed to see his infant child every day, if he so desires, under an order made today by Justice Newburger of the Supreme court. Kahn and his wife have not been on the most intimate terms lately, and it was a shock the other day when he learned she had given birth to a bouncing boy and did not intend to let him, the father, see it. He got out a habeas corpus writ for the baby.

May See Baby Every Day if He Desires.

The mother's lawyers interposed that Baby Kahn is entirely too young to be brought into court or even be turned over to the tender attentions of its playwright father, but it was promised and agreed, if Arthur Lee would stop the machinery of law, Mrs. Kahn might, if he were good, allow him to see the baby every day. And so the matter was settled by agreement, and the baby will hold a daily session at the Hotel Calvert, where papa can examine and admire.

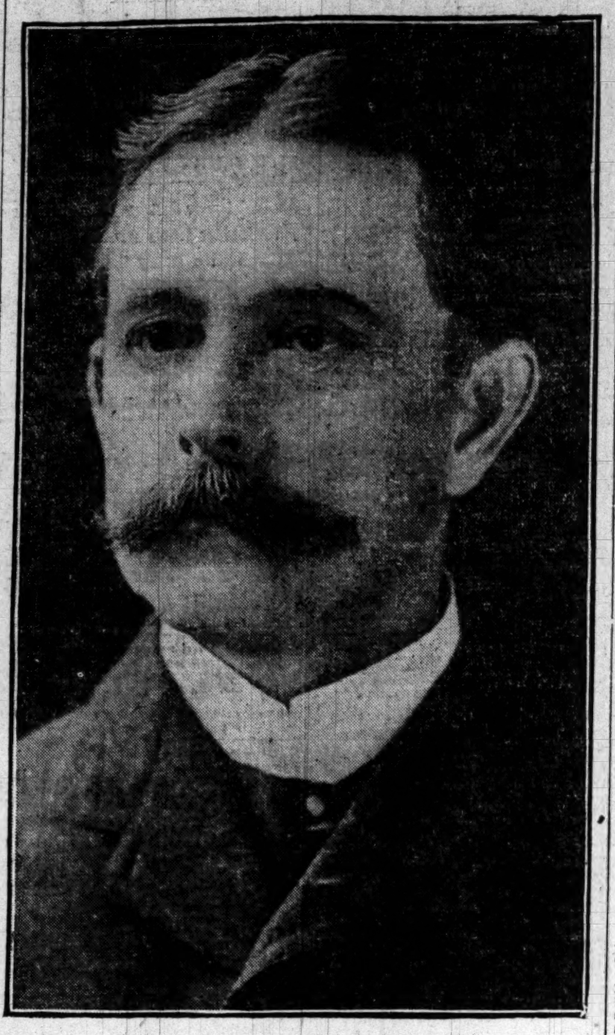

As a result of a crusade made by the board of health all curtains covering fire exits of the different theaters have been removed. Dr. Bensal of the health department said the Iroquois fire in Chicago showed the danger of such draperies. "It was definitely proved then," he said, "that the presence of curtains at the ends of the aisles had helped largely to promote the panic. People grasped them as they passed and pulled them down to the floor, and the crowd following after tripped and fell. Two persons falling in a crazy mob like that are sufficient to cause a helpless piling up of kicking, struggling humanity. That is the reason for our action."

All Curtains at Theater Exits Removed.

John P. Kelly, a former member of the board of education and prominent politically ten years ago, was found unconscious at the entrance of the Brooklyn bridge today. He was removed to a hospital, fatally hurt from a fracture at the base of the skull. It is believed that he was injured by a fall. Mr. Kelly had been connected with the Mutual Life Insurance company for many years and for a time was interested in the agency company of C. H. Raymond & Co.

TRAGEDY HITS BELASCO.

BROTHER FRED'S WIFE DIES AND SHOCK KILLS FRIEND.

Actress Known as Juliet Crosby Succumbs Suddenly in Her Home in San Francisco—Her Brother, Partner of Her Husband in the Old Alcazar Theater, Drops Dead When He Hears the News—Tragedy Sequel to Romance.

San Francisco, Cal., March 22.—[Special.]—Fred Belasco, brother of David Belasco of New York, lost by death within an hour today his wife, known on the stage as Juliet Crosby, and his business partner, Morris E. Mayer.

Mrs. Fred Belasco died suddenly early in the morning as the result of illness brought on by childbirth. Mayer, who was her brother, when told of her death an hour later, dropped dead in his room.

End of Series of Tragedies.

Juliet Crosby was for years leading woman in the old Alcazar theater, of which her brother and husband were joint owners. Ernest Hastings, formerly leading man in the Alcazar Stock company, was killed recently in a train wreck.

Fred Belasco and Mayer were business partners in two theaters which were destroyed in the earthquake. By dint of great energy they succeeded in reconstructing the Alcazar, which was opened only three days ago.

Grim Sequel to Romance.

The marriage of Fred Belasco and Juliet Crosby was romantic. They met when she came under his tuition at a school of acting he conducted on Market street.

Their wedding was kept secret for several weeks, during which time Miss Crosby appeared at the Alcazar as usual. After the announcement the couple went on a short honeymoon trip, but Mrs. Belasco resumed her stock work on their return.

Juliet Crosby had been on the stage about ten years. Her first public appearance was made in her husband's theater when he produced "The First Born," a play of Chinese life that David Belasco took to New York. She created the part of Mme. Butterfly in the west.

David Belasco Gets News.

New York, March 22.—[Special.]—David Belasco received a brief dispatch this afternoon announcing the death of his brother's wife and Mr. Mayer. The dispatch contained no details.

CARYL YOUNG, PIONEER, DEAD.

Came to Chicago in 1854 and Engaged in the Wholesale Grocery Business.

Caryl Young, one of the pioneers of Chicago, died last night at his residence, 4723 Woodlawn avenue. He was 70 years old. Born in New York state, he came to Chicago in 1857 and engaged in the wholesale grocery business.

In 1864 he married Adalaide Botsford, daughter of J. J. Botsford, who came to Chicago in 1833. Following his marriage, Mr. Young organized the Caryl Young Transfer company, in which business he continued until his retirement, ten years ago. Mr. Young was the owner of the ground on which the new Illinois Athletic Club building stands.

A widow, one son—Caryl B. Young—and one daughter—Mrs. George M. Wisner—survive.

VANDALS BLAMED FOR WRECK.

Chicago Limited on Pennsylvania Derailed East of Pittsburg, but No One Is Injured.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 22.—Vandals are blamed for the wreck of the Pennsylvania Chicago limited near Stewart station, fourteen miles east of here, at 3:35 o'clock this morning. The locomotive and the mail and baggage cars and three Pullmans were derailed. No one was injured. Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland and E. L. Roy, secretary of the Union stock yards, Chicago, were passengers. Officials say plates and bolts were removed, and this caused the wreck.

OTHER RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

DETROIT, Mich.—James C. Smith, 55 years old, was fatally injured and ten other persons, all girls, hurt when a Michigan Central train struck a street car on the Fourteenth avenue crossing.

DAVENPORT, Ia.—The coroner's jury found all the officials of the Rock Island road guilty of negligence in the death of P. J. Kiley, who was killed by coming in contact with a girder.

DANVILLE, Ind.—One man was killed and eleven injured when west bound Big Four passenger train No. 11 from Indianapolis to St. Louis jumped the track two miles from Avon.

FARMER KILLS MAN WHO SCOFFS AT DAUGHTER'S EFFORTS.

Criticism of Little Girl Saying Her "Piece" at Closing Exercises Rehearsal Leads to Murder Near Carmi, Ill.—Wives and Children of Farmers in Neighborhood See the Scoffer Shot Dead by Father—Men Friends and Neighbors for Years.

Carmi, Ill., March 22.—[Special.]—Rehearsal of closing exercises at a country schoolhouse west of Carmi today ended in a tragedy and the arrest of a farmer for the murder of a man who had been his friend and neighbor for years.

George Nicholson and John Kurd were seated together listening to and criticising the recitations given by the children. Both had little daughters taking part in the program, and there was no hint of trouble until Nicholson's little girl started to say her piece. Kurd made a remark on her nervousness which Nicholson resented, and in a moment both men were quarreling.

Little Audience Sees Murder.

Their anger startled the little audience of parents and children in the schoolhouse and efforts were made to get the children away before blows were struck.

Before this could be done Nicholson drew a revolver, and pressing it against Kurd's side fired. Kurd died instantly. Women and children clustered around the two men either fainted or became hysterical. When Nicholson saw what he had done he dropped on his knees beside Kurd and wept.

Wives and Children There.

The children and wives of the two men in their holiday clothes stood moaning nearby.

Nicholson was placed under arrest as soon as the sheriff was notified.

POET ALDRICH LAID TO REST.

Body Is Interred Near Those of Longfellow, Holmes, and Lowell After Simple Funeral.

Boston, Mass., March 22.—The funeral of Thomas Bailey Aldrich was held here today with impressively simple services in the Arlington Street Unitarian church.

The service was concluded with the reading of the poem which Mr. Aldrich wrote for the 100 anniversary of the birth of the poet, Longfellow, and which was the last work of Mr. Aldrich. In it he spoke of death as follows:

They do not die who leave their thought
Imprinted on some deathless page.
Themselves may pass; the spell they wrought
Endures on earth from age to age.

The body of the poet was conveyed to Mount Auburn cemetery in Cambridge, where, after a brief and private service, conducted by Dean George Hodges of the Episcopal Theological school, it was interred not far from the resting place of Holmes, Lowell, Longfellow, and others who have won fame in literature.

OBITUARY.

JOHN S. M'CONNELL, 53 years old, died yesterday afternoon at his residence, 100 Trumbull avenue, Detroit, Mich. Mr. McConnell was born in Detroit and passed his early manhood there. When he was 30 years old he came to Chicago and became manager of the Columbia theater, in which position he remained for nine years. He then went to New York, where for many years he was associated in the theatrical exchange business with his brother, William A. McConnell, a well known figure in theatrical circles.

THOMAS H. GALE of Oak Park, who died on Wednesday at the Oak Park hospital, was buried yesterday. The funeral was from the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Gale, 347 Lake street, Oak Park. Mr. Gale was born in Oak Park Aug. 22, 1866, and spent his life in the suburb. Following his graduation from the University of Michigan he returned to Oak Park and entered business as a real estate dealer. Since the organization of Oak Park as a village he had been town collector.

J. C. CHOATE, 77 years old, a pioneer citizen of Woodstock, Ill., died last Thursday at his residence in that city. He started in business in Woodstock in 1857 and from that time until his death conducted a large general store.

Woman Kills Six Foot Lynx.

Ackley, Minn., March 22.—Mrs. Hinseman, living near Lake Itasca, fired eight bullets into a lynx which attacked her before the animal was killed. She was on her way from her home to where her husband was at work in the woods when she met the animal. The lynx crouched as if intending to spring when Mrs. Hinseman shot. The animal was six feet long from the end of its nose to the tip of its tail.

GAMBLER SLAYS COUNTY ATTORNEY

Fort Worth Scene of Triple Tragedy When Noted Resort Is Raided.

DEPUTY SHOT 3 TIMES.

Murderer, Besieged by 5,000 Angry Men, Finally Taken, Badly Wounded.

Fort Worth, Tex., March 22.—[Special.]—In a raid on a gambling house here this afternoon County Attorney Jeff D. McLean was shot and killed by William Thompson, a one armed gambler.

Thompson then shot and fatally wounded Deputy Sheriff Hamill Scott. Pursued by a crowd, the murderer took refuge in a lumber yard, which was soon surrounded by a crowd of 5,000 men eager to lynch him.

Before the mob could get at him, however, the officers shot him three times, dragged him to a patrol wagon, and rushed him to jail. It is believed he is dying.

Hundreds See Tragedies.

The series of tragedies were of the most sensational and spectacular kind, and witnessed by hundreds of men and women, including many members of the state legislature here in attendance on the national live stock convention.

The house raided is located on Main street, near the corner of Sixth, in the heart of the retail district. Shortly before 5 o'clock County Attorney McLean, heading a party of deputies, forced an entrance into the place, placed a number of men under arrest, and loaded a furniture van with tables and other paraphernalia.

The wagon with the confiscated furniture had just moved off when Thompson approached McLean, who was standing on the side, and fired one shot, the bullet striking McLean in the throat, breaking his neck and causing almost instant death.

Killed from Ambush.

As McLean fell Thompson turned and ran west on Sixth street, with Scott in pursuit. Dodging behind a billboard at the corner of Seventh and Trockmorton streets, Thompson ambushed Scott, shooting the deputy three times in the body. When Scott fell Thompson stopped only long enough to discard his empty pistol for that carried by the dying deputy and then renewed his flight.

Thompson found temporary refuge in a lumber shed just across the street from the Touraine hotel, the most fashionable hostelry in the city. Here he was located by Patrolmen Bell and Loyd, who opened fire on him, wounding him in three places. Thompson kept on shooting until he had emptied his gun. Then the officers made him a prisoner.

Mob of 5,000 Men.

As soon as the shots were heard on the inside of the lumber yard the crowd on the outside numbered fully 5,000 persons. The crowd was wildly excited and eager to lynch Thompson. Suddenly a police patrol wagon came dashing through the crowd, and soon the officers came out of the yard, dragging Thompson with them.

The mob threw themselves upon the officers and only were prevented from attacking Thompson by the declaration that he was dead. With men hanging on the steps of the wagon and demanding the life of the wounded prisoner, the race was made to the station and the prisoner was carried into the police hospital. The story was then spread that he was dead, and the mob quieted.

Had Raided 100 Dens.

County Attorney McLean had been an implacable foe to gambling. He has led a hundred raids since he has been in office, and last fall the gamblers opposed him at the polls, but he was reelected. He was a son of the first railroad commissioner of Texas and former member of congress.

There is talk here tonight of ordering every gambler out of the city at once.

STEAD STUDYING ALTON BONDS.

Attorney General Here to Support Busse—Also Considering Railway Deal Recently Attacked.

The Chicago and Alton railroad bond deal, which was attacked at a recent hearing of the interstate commerce commission in New York, is under investigation by Attorney General Stead, who is now in Chicago.

In an interview last evening Mr. Stead said his main purpose in coming here was to support the candidacy of Postmaster Busse.

The attorney general admitted, however, that he was considering the Chicago and Alton bond deal, but could not express any opinion in regard to it until he had time to investigate more thoroughly. It is stated that suit against the company would be blocked by a provision of the law that action must be taken before the bonds are sold.

WHALE IN A SKIDOO ACT.

BOLD HUNTERS OF AMAGANSETT, N. Y., CHASE 10 MILES IN VAIN.

Whole Brave Edwards Family Puts Off in Boats, While Crowd on Beach Cheers—Big Fish Has Merry Game of Tag, Then Dips and Disappears—'Tis Looking for Mate He Killed, Capt. Josh Says.

New York, March 22.—[Special.]—The Edwards family and the remainder of Amagansett's deep sea going population was stirred this morning by the announcement that a big bull whale had been sighted coming up the coast at furious speed. Amagamsett caught a whale last month, and the perfume of the trying vats and the memory of the fortune that came out of them are still fresh.

The whaleboat flotilla, commanded by Capt. Josh Edwards, a veteran whaler of 70 odd years, has been held in readiness ever since, and today the boats were launched just fifteen minutes after the first cry of "Thar she blows, blows, blows!"

The bell on the storehouse tower clanged out the news, the telephone bells rang, and by the time the boats were afloat everybody in Amagansett who had legs and could use them was on the beach to watch the race.

Five Boats Join in Hunt.

Five boats put out to head off the whale. Capt. Josh headed the line, and right behind, crowding close on the leader, came the boats commanded by Capt. Jabe, Capt. Jess, Capt. Bert, and Capt. Samuel Edwards. The whale was about three-fourths of a mile off shore and heading east at what Capt. Josh figured was a fifty mile clip. Each boat was manned by six men, and they tested the tough ash oars.

"Bend your backs, bend your backs and break 'em," roared Capt. Josh, and the boats shot through the water like varsity shells.

But the whale had a thousand horse power in his flukes, and it was soon evident to those on shore that the whalers were not as good as the whale and couldn't head him off. It was easy to trace the whale's course, for he came to the surface every few minutes and spouted four or five times before sounding again. In the bright sunshine the white jets of water were plainly visible from the shore.

When Capt. Josh and the other Edwards failed to head off the whale they fell in behind and began a stern chase. After a time the whale slowed down and the leading boats crept up until when off Napeaeur beach they were only a few boat lengths from the whale. They were about to try a shot when the whale gave a big spout and throwing his tail high in the air went down. The boats waited around for a half hour and then began the ten mile pull home.

Beach Black with Landsmen.

Meanwhile word that another whale had been sighted had reached out into the back country, and by the time the crews turned back Amagansett beach was black with people who had driven down in every sort of vehicle to see the show.

Capt. Josh was much disappointed in his failure to land the whale. He has a contract with the New York Natural History museum to turn over to them intact the next whale he got. The whalers say that the museum people will tow the whale, if one is caught, to New York. They have had a promise, they say, of a much larger amount for the entire carcass of the whale than they could make by selling the oil and bone.

However, Capt. Josh has hopes. He believes that the whale sighted today is the mate of the one killed last month, and that it is ranging the coast searching for its lost comrade. He believes that it will be sighted again before long, and a sharp lookout is being kept at the life saving station by George Mulford, one of the whaling crew. Capt. Josh said that the whale that got away was much larger than the one caught last month.

From the depths of his whale lore he has figured out that today's whale is 500 or 600 years old. The whale captured last month he thought to be about at its 400th birthday.

ARREST BROWNSVILLE NEGRO SAID TO HAVE CONFESSED.

William Anderson, Supposed to Be Discharged Soldier Who Told "True History" of Raid, Is in Custody.

Houston, Tex., March 22.—Lieut. Chamberlain of this city today arrested in Galveston a negro named William Anderson, supposed to be the only member of the discharged battalion of negro troops connected with the Brownsville affair in that city.

Anderson is declared to be the man who made a confession regarding the "true history" of the Brownsville raid, to two Galveston newspaper men.

The two newspaper men to whom the confession is alleged to have been made have been subpoenaed as witnesses. They have made affidavits.

Guilty of Murder in First Degree.

St. Louis, Mo., March 22.—Arthur C. Biles, son of Robert Biles of Kansas City, today was convicted in the Circuit court of murder in the first degree for the death of Robert Harvey of Osage City, Mo. Biles, it is alleged, drugged and robbed Harvey, the drug causing his death.

SINCLAIR DEFENDS COLONY'S MORALS.

Father of Helicon Home Says Imputation Cast by Jury Was Unfair.

WHY BILLS WERE UNPAID

Head of Financial Department and Some of the Books, Too, Are Now in Cuba.

New York, March 22.—[Special.]—Upton Sinclair, father of the burnt out Helicon hall colonists, resents the imputation made by the coroner's jury at Englewood Thursday night to the effect that the moral ideas of the colonists are advanced over those of the exclusive residents of the suburban city. He said tonight, in defense of his colony and himself, that the jury called to investigate the death at the Helicon hall fire of Lester Briggs had made unwarranted deductions from the answers he had given them, and had put to him questions assuming a condition of morals which did not exist among the colonists.

Mr. Sinclair made his statement from his bed. He was found in the Hotel Cumberland, under the care of a trained nurse, and receiving the attention of Dr. William Fisher Grier. Mr. Sinclair's foot, which had been cut and burned by hot cinders the night of the fire, had become highly inflamed, so the physician said, and these precautionary measures had been taken against blood poisoning. The head colonist had begun to use his foot too soon, and now he must remain in bed for several days.

Resents Line of Inquiry.

"I want to state this as emphatically as I know how, that the Helicon home colony was not a free love community," said Mr. Sinclair when the questioning of the coroner's jury was recalled to him. "And you may add that I, as well as the other members of the colony, resent the imputation cast upon us by the questions put to some of us as witnesses last night at the inquest in Englewood. The line of questioning seemed to give the broad inference that our morals were not what they should have been and that we were living under a free-love régime.

"The members of the jury asked me about the keys to the house and I told them we had no keys, simply meaning to give information to show that any one might have entered our place at any hour of the night. The jury took my statement to mean the whole house was open and there was free communication between the rooms of the colonists. I don't know anything about this. I don't suppose the people living in Helicon hall turned the locks on themselves any more than they would do if they had been living in the house of a friend.

Says Rooms Were Private.

"The jury also seemed to find significance in the arrangement we had made for the accommodation of the workers on the third floor. We were greatly crowded for room. We made little bedrooms in the big studio on the top floor by erecting partitions about ten feet high, and we had long curtains screening the rooms. There was as much privacy here as in any Pullman car, and certainly none of us ever gave a thought to the possible wrong interpretation that might be given the method of our accommodation."

Mr. Sinclair added that from the time the Helicon hall colonists moved in up to the day of the fire there had been much curiosity among the Englewood folk about the manner of their living. He had heard stories circulated about town to the effect that the colonists did not invite their friends among the townspeople because they had something they wanted to conceal.

"Last night when we were called upon to face the coroner's jury we all found a distinct air of hostility manifested toward us by the members of that body. Upon me in particular they seemed to visit their displeasure, and I am afraid they thought they had made a fool of me. Maybe they did. I felt that they did.

Why Bills Are Unpaid.

"They blamed us for running Helicon hall as a hotel without obeying the hotel laws for protection against fire. Why, that building housed a school many years before we took it, and when we entered we found no fire protection at all. We immediately bought three fire extinguishers and Mrs. Hahn was in New York buying fire escapes when the building burned."

An apologist for the colonists said the clinical spirit of the jury might be accounted for by the fact that several of its members were tradesmen who held bills against the colony. The financial affairs of the association had been badly muddled just about a month before the fire, said Mr. Sinclair, through the illness of Supt. Randall. He was forced to go to Havana to recuperate and took some of the account books with him.

The colonists continued to pay their board and lodging, but no settlement of outstanding bills could be made while Mr. Randall was away with the books of the financial department, which were in his possession. So it was that, though there was something like $1,000 in a bank to the credit of the colony, no payments could be made to the clamoring butcher and baker. When the superintendent returned or gave up his place and another was appointed all bills listed would be made ready for payment.

Will Abandon Englewood.

"We will not return to Englewood," was Mr. Sinclair's final dictum in laying away the ghost of the Helicon colony that was. "We would find too many psychological obstacles to overcome before we could be happy. The colonists are keeping in touch, however, and we will get settled down somewhere else before long."

NEW BRIDGE ACROSS RIVER IS ADVOCATED AND OPPOSED

Lively Debate on Proposition to Connect Franklin and Orleans Streets with a Bascule Span.

Heated arguments for and against the building of a bascule bridge across the main channel of the Chicago river to connect Franklin and Orleans streets occupied the afternoon yesterday at a public hearing before Lieut. Col. W. H. Bixby, the army engineer in charge of federal river and harbor improvements in the northwest.

The hearing, which was held at Col. Bixby's office in the federal building, was attended by about fifty representatives of the real estate interests in the "pocket district" just south of the river, for which the bridge is designed as an outlet, and by officials of the Chicago River Improvement association, the Chicago Lake Carriers' association, and other interests which are opposing the immediate construction of the bridge.

The discussion centered about the question as to whether the abutments of the proposed bridge would offer so great an obstruction to river navigation as to make its construction under present conditions unwarrantable.

The river men, headed by Capt. D. Sullivan, chairman of the river improvement committee of the Chicago Commercial association, maintained that the construction of the bridge would obstruct navigation at the place where it would turn between the Wells street and Lake street bridges. Advocates of the bridge plan declared the congestion of traffic in the district demands the immediate construction of the bridge, even if a certain amount of convenience in navigation is sacrificed.

A mass of communications and resolutions presenting the arguments for and against the granting of a permit for the bridge will be sent within ten days to Secretary Taft at Washington.

Ald. Charles Werno was the principal speaker for the Orleans and Franklin Streets Bridge association, with whom the application for a permit originated.

J. E. Flanagan, president of the bridge association, said that property values in the "pocket district" have gone down one-third in the last twenty years, and because the region is cut off from adequate fire protection insurance rates have been made practically prohibitive.

MISS ABBY R. GOBLE.

Miniatures of two Chicago young women now in Paris, the work of Miss Martha Baker, a Chicago miniaturist who has been abroad since last summer, have been received in Chicago. They are those of Miss Abby R. Goble, daughter of George G. Goble, 5060 Washington avenue, and Miss Sarajane Matthews. The young women are members of the American musical and art colony of Paris. Another of Miss Baker's miniatures, that of Miss Rayna Simons, daughter of Joseph Simons of Chicago, was hung in the recent exhibition of the American Woman's Art association.

WILL END TICKET 'GRAFT'

CHIEF COLLINS TO ENFORCE ANTI-SPECULATING ORDINANCE.

On Receiving an Opinion from Assistant Corporation Counsel Wade That the Measure Is Legal He Instructs Capts. O'Brien and Gibbons to Cause Arrest of Persons Who Sell Cards of Admission to Theaters at an Advance in Price.

The amended ordinance prohibiting speculating in theater tickets has been pronounced legal by Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward T. Wade, and as a result several of the speculators operating in downtown hotels may be arrested today.

Chief of Police Collins, who had been waiting for an "opinion" as to the legality of the ordinance, took steps to enforce the measure on receiving word from Mr. Wade in the afternoon. He notified Capt. O'Brien, chief of the detective bureau, and Capt. Gibbons of the central detail to begin a "vigorous" enforcement of the law against ticket "brokers."

Several detectives were detailed to procure evidence against violators of the ordinance. They were furnished with money with which to buy tickets and when the evidence is in the hands of the police warrants will be sworn out for the arrest of the speculators who sold the tickets.

Enforcement May Be Delayed.

A new point, which may delay the enforcement of the ordinance for more than a week, arose during the day. Assistant Corporation Counsel Wade said the measure will not become effective until ten days after its publication in the council proceedings. The proceedings, including the anti-speculating ordinance, were published yesterday.

"I am sure the ordinance is legal, but it will not become effective until ten days after its publication," said Mr. Wade. "The police, however, have instructions to go ahead, and enforce the measure.

"If arrests are made, which I expect soon, we shall ask that the cases be continued until the ordinance becomes effective. The cases will be heard in the Municipal court."

When asked for an "opinion" as to the legality of this procedure, Attorney Wade said he believed it was legal.

Activity Promised by Collins.

"I shall enforce the theater ticket ordinance vigorously," said Chief Collins. "All persons found selling tickets who have no authority to do so will be arrested."

The grievance committee of the Anti-Theater Ticket Speculating association will meet today to devise ways and means of prosecuting the "brokers." David Revell, president of the association, is preparing to cause the arrest of a number of speculators.

"We are working on a plan which will result in the arrest of the ticket grafters," said James J. Kelly, secretary of the organization. "When the evidence we want has been obtained we will go ahead and clean out the whole tribe of them."

Master in Chancery O'Donnell received a letter from one of the victims who offered to contribute $10 toward a fund to be used for expenses incidental to the prosecution of the ticket grafters.

OFFER OF FREE GAS PLANT TO VILLAGE OF WINNETKA.

William Bross Lloyd Seeks to Divert to Other Use Fund Intended for Public Library.

William Bross Lloyd stirred the village of Winnetka yesterday with an offer of $25,000 to build a municipal gas plant. His mother, the widow of Henry D. Lloyd, had planned to give the village $25,000 to erect a public library building in memory of her husband and on her deathbed she requested her sons to carry out the intention. Young Mr. Lloyd, however, said he was convinced that "the idea never appealed to her."

After explaining at length his position, that of a "capitalist anomaly with a working class mind," Mr. Lloyd declared the village had a greater need of a gas plant than of a library and continued as follows:

"If Winnetka should vote not to have a gas plant that would, of course, free the funds for library use. I am not now willing to state what position I should take, but I am sure that I should feel much like deciding that if Winnetka did not know enough to install a municipal gas plant in preference to any arrangement involving a franchise to a private company the level of general intelligence was such that a library would be a useless feature of village life, except as an external adornment to the general appearance of the village. I doubt if I should feel like spending $25,000 to decorate the village."

Members of the gas committee of the village board are divided as to the attitude of the voters toward Mr. Lloyd's offer. Chairman Robert H. Wallace said if the fund were increased by other contributions, as he believed it would be, Winnetka could secure its plant without cost. George A. Damon, a member of the committee, who represents the minority, said the municipal ownership plan never will be agreeable to the majority of the voters.

GOING TO PANAMA Y. M. C. A.

Two Chicago Men Are Chosen to Take Charge of Association Work on the Isthmus.

M. J. Stickel and Ralph R. Wolf of the Central Y. M. C. A. yesterday received official notification that they had been chosen by the international committee of the Y. M. C. A. to take charge of the association work on the isthmus of Panama. They will sail from New York next Saturday. The canal commission has authorized the construction of association buildings at a cost not to exceed $50,000, and four are now ready for use—at Culebra, Empire, Gorgona, and Cristobal. The government furnishes living quarters, pays the salaries and traveling expenses of the secretaries, besides providing equipment and janitor service for the buildings.

WOULD-BE SUICIDES SAVED

SALVATION ARMY BUREAU DISSUADES 27 FROM DEATH.

During the Three Weeks of Its Existence Value of Work Is Proved—People Who Visited It Represent Many Classes—Better Quarters and Larger Resources Needed to Continue on More Adequate Scale, Says Brigadier McMillan.

During the three weeks which have elapsed since the organization of the Salvation army anti-suicide bureau at 399 State street it has proved its usefulness. According to the reports and belief of Mrs. Commissioner Kilbey and Brigadier A. McMillan, who have charge of this branch of the work, nearly thirty people have been dissuaded from suicidal purposes and have been placed in positions, when necessary, which yield a livelihood and give opportunities for further usefulness.

The bureau was organized three weeks ago last Thursday, and in that time twenty men and seven women who contemplated self-destruction have visited the officers, have been dissuaded from the extreme course and persuaded to continue in their work or enabled to obtain employment. Brigadier McMillan said yesterday afternoon that as far as he knew not one of the twenty-seven who had called at the office for advice and gone forth had carried out their original purpose.

All Classes of People.

"We have had people of all classes and stations in life: gamblers who had lost their last dollar; business failures who had taken to drink, men and women who were of considerable means, but who had become despondent because of the death of some dear one, and the poor who were to be classed among the 'down and outs.'

"We haven't tried to preach religion to them, but have given friendly advice and sympathy. In the case of the poor and half-starved we have given them a couple of good, square meals, a good night's rest, and then have found work for them, and most of them haven't thought of suicide since. Every day I receive a number of telephone messages from our 'patients' who have gone away and they are most encouraging and of a cheerful tone. And they always are perfectly free to come to the headquarters whenever they please, or if the old temptation returns.

"Several days ago I had a pitiful case. A young man who had gone so far as to remove every possible identification mark from his clothing came to me. We talked a long time and we discussed the matter thoroughly, and he finally agreed to make another try at things. I have heard from him since and he is on the high road to become a useful member of society.

Need Better Quarters.

"This is the sort of work we are doing, but we need better quarters and larger resources. This we hope for in time when philanthropists are convinced of the practicability of the work.

"THE TRIBUNE and other newspapers have helped us greatly, for it is in their columns that many of our visitors see our announcement and decide to seek advice. The work is growing and speaks for itself and for its continuance upon a larger scale."

EX-EMPLOYE THREATENS DEATH

W. P. Stearns Asks Protection from Man Whom He Said Had Drank Too Much.

Willard P. Stearns, president of the Stearns & White Chemical company, 21 Chestnut street, yesterday asked the police for protection from a former employé. He told Inspector Revere that the man, whose name the police refused to divulge, had threatened his life because, in a recommendation, he had said he was addicted to strong drink. Mr. Stearns said he would swear out a warrant for the disturber's arrest today. The man who threatened Mr. Stearns' life was discharged a week ago.

FRISCO JURY TO GRILL CALHOUN?

Head of Traction Co., Accused in Franchise Bribes, May Be Witness.

RUEF DENOUNCES "PLOT."

Indicted Boss Says Whole Inquiry Is Part of Scheme to Grab City Government.

San Francisco, Cal., March 22.—[Special.]—With the statement from Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railways, that he would come here from New York, the prosecuting attorney's office has announced that he will be given an opportunity to appear before the grand jury in connection with that body's investigation of the alleged bribery of the board of supervisors in the matter of an overhead trolley franchise granted the traction company last May.

It was also learned that a number of secret indictments, which have not been trusted to the secret file for fear their contents might leak out, are not all against one person but are said to contain the names of several.

Abraham Ruef said today that he is considering the proposition of a statement to the public, and he declared that when he tells his story it will contain sensations equal to the disclosures made by the alleged confessions of the supervisors.

Ruef Calls It a "Plot."

He expressed the opinion that the investigation now going on was the furtherance of an organized attempt to seize the municipal government, and asserted that it was "government by indictment" instead of "government by injunction."

The sixty-five charges of bribery against Ruef were assigned today by presiding Judge Coffey to Judge Dunne's department of the Superior court. They will be placed on the calendar tomorrow and an arrangement set for some day early next week.

It may be the irony of fate that the former residence of Mayor Schmitz, in which he resided when elected, and often entertained and dined Ruef, and where the mayor and the political boss laid many of their political campaign plans, may become Ruef's prison for some months. The present owner is attempting to rent it to Elisor Biggy as a place of detention for Ruef when he takes the latter away from the St. Francis hotel.

Why Prosecution Goes Slow.

The true reason for the determination of the prosecution to take no immediate steps toward removing from office the supervisors was disclosed this afternoon. District Attorney Langdon said in order to remove them it would be necessary to prove the charges made against them. This would compel the prosecution to bring forward all its evidence and thereby disclose its entire hand before the trials of those who are or will be indicted.

The grand jury did not meet today, but will hold a short session tomorrow, at which time the investigation of the alleged telephone deal will be resumed. No indictments are expected to be filed tomorrow.

Elisor to Guard Jury.

The same care and watchfulness that have marked the custody of Ruef will be exercised in guarding the jury against any possible outside influences when his trial begins. Instead of a bailiff or the sheriff having charge of the jury, District Attorney Langdon today stated that the jury will be placed in charge of Elisor W. J. Biggy. This is said to be the first time in the legal history of the United States that an elisor has been appointed by a court to apprehend a defendant and given such power to keep him in custody during trial.

Ruef's Lawyers in Wrangle.

The report that there is dissension among Ruef's attorneys seems to be borne out by the fact that they no longer confer with him together, but visit him singly.

Ruef was in much better spirits this afternoon. He submits gracefully to the restraint placed upon him, and expressed his appreciation of the courtesies extended to him by Elisor Biggy and his guards.

When told that Mayor Schmitz's former residence may become a temporary prison Ruef fockingly said:

"Why not take my house? I have offered the elisor my home for the purpose."

FIGHT GROWS HOT ON DRUG PEDDLING

Retailers Jump Into Contest Over License Bill, Now Nearing Passage.

BOTTLE MAKERS FACTOR.

Big St. Louis Firm Is Strongest Ally of Wholesalers in Springfield Campaign.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., March 23.—[Special.]—Druggists of the state are just being awakened to the fact that the bill which they do not want to become a law is getting along towards passage at a rapid rate. It has been passed by the senate and is making violent efforts to get out of the house license committee.

If it became a law it would permit the licensing of itinerant drug venders at $75 a year and retail druggists in the country districts say that it would injure them enormously. It is being urged by several large patent medicine firms doing an entirely itinerant business. These firms have lobbies at Springfield or send representatives here when necessary, and they have secured the aid of the glass manufacturers at East St. Louis to help them get the law.

One of these firms buys sixty carloads of bottles annually from one of the East St. Louis concerns, and this explains the interest which the glass manufacturers have in the proposition. This same firm is said to have 800 wagons out on regular routes through the country.

Methods of the Drug Peddler.

Their method of operation is a decided departure from ordinary procedure in selling drugs. The only request the vender makes of the farmer is that he may be permitted to leave the medicine chest with him. This chest contains remedies for all ordinary ailments, and each bottle has a sort of "high water" mark or "dead line" drawn around it.

The peddler returns in four or five months and inspects the medicine chest. If the contents of any of the bottle has dropped below the "dead line" the farmer becomes the purchaser of these bottles. He pays for nothing until he has used a certain quantity of it.

Retail druggists in neighborhoods which have been visited by these itinerants say that their business is injured to an unpleasant extent. At present the Illinois law is designed to prohibit such trading by requiring itinerant drug peddlers to take out a license of $100 a month. The man with the guitar and the gasoline lamp who gets out on the public square of small towns at night and alternates songs with sales of pain killer does so by agreement with local authorities and without the consent of the state.

These vaudeville drug peddlers have been difficult to stop, but organized drug vending in wagons has been hurt by the activity of the state board of health in prosecuting big firms, who have not found Illinois as profitable a field as it would become with a less prohibitive license law in operation.

Retail Druggists Enter Fight.

Hence the effort to have the fee reduced from $1,200 a year to $75. The only reason the bill is not so far advanced in the house as it is in the senate is that Representative Pogue is a druggist and he has been fighting it with fair success up to date and now the retail druggists are beginning to wake up and take a hand. About their first move will be to serve notice on East St. Louis glass manufacturers that these big peddling concerns are not the only large purchasers of bottles.

The house today cleaned up its calendar of bills on first reading, sending them all to second reading, and a few important measures to third reading, in spite of the fact that no quorum was present. The reciprocal demurrage bill was one of those advanced to a second reading, along with the bill increasing the salaries of members of the legislature to $2,000 from $1,000.

Among the bills advanced to a third reading were two in the interests of street railway employes. One requires center aisles in all cars, with vestibules for the motormen. The other provides that ten hours shall constitute the limit of a day's work for motormen and conductors and that a day's work shall be done within twelve consecutive hours.

Six new bills were introduced. One by Representative Lindly provides for an appropriation of $100,000 for the purchase of machinery to install a plant at Joliet for the manufacture of binder twine and requires that the labor of the prisoners be devoted to the manufacture of twine, rope, bags, and farm implements after July 1.

An effort made two years ago to have binder twine made in prisons was defeated by the opposition of harvester companies and it is not supposed they are any less interested this year.

STEVENS TO GO OUT APRIL 1, WHEN GOETHALS BEGINS WORK

Army Man to Assume Charge of Canal Work Sooner than He Expected—Will Get $15,000 a Year.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—Secretary Taft announced today that Lieut. Col. Goethals would succeed Mr. Stevens as chairman of the isthmian canal commission and engineer in charge of the canal work on April 1. This is much sooner than Col. Goethals expected to assume charge, for he felt that it would take him perhaps two months after his arrival on the isthmus to acquaint himself with all the details of the great work. When he becomes chairman of the commission by promotion from the grade of commissioner which he now occupies there will be a vacancy in the commission which will be filled by the appointment of former Senator Joseph C. S. Blackburn of Kentucky.

As chairman Col. Goethals will receive a salary of $15,000 annually. Majs. Gaillard and Sibert and Civil Engineer Rousseau $14,000 each, and Dr. Gorgas, Jackson Smith, and Mr. Blackburn $10,000 each.

Changes in the local government on the canal zone which will abolish all the municipal governments now in existence and result in the harmonizing of various parts of the zone also will become effective April 15. President Roosevelt has signed executive orders providing for the changes. The five municipal governments in the canal zone will be replaced by four administrative districts, which will be under the direction of the canal commissioners. These districts will be known as Ancon, Emperador, Gorgona, and Cristobal. The municipal governments were found to be wholly unsatisfactory after a complete test and all canal officers are convinced that the new plan will be far more satisfactory. It will result in the abolition of the bureau of municipalities on the isthmus, which costs about $13,000 a year, and will cut off about $12,000 in salaries in the municipal office, making a saving of about $25,000. It is estimated that the total saving to the United States under the reorganized government in the zone will be about $100,000 a year.

SPRING TRADE IS BOOMING

BUSINESS GENERALLY ACQUIRES STILL FURTHER MOMENTUM.

Production, Distribution, and Transportation, Dun & Co. Say, Never Were More Active than at Present in the Corresponding Period of Previous Years—Enormous Demand by Builders for Necessary Supplies—Railroad Earnings Increase.

In its weekly review of Chicago trade Dun's Review, published by R. G. Dun & Co., will say:

"Along with the advent of spring, business generally is seen to have acquired further momentum. No corresponding period in previous years was entered upon with production, distribution, and transportation more largely engaged than at present, and it is a remarkable index of industrial strength that demands and costs exhibit no reaction.

"Labor problems attract attention, but the difficulties obtain prompt treatment, thereby avoiding the danger from a spread of strikes. Building trade agreements are well advanced and this stimulates a rush of new work and enormous demand for necessary supplies.

Freight Tonnage Unprecedented.

"A gratifying feature is the improvement in railroad facilities, less complaint of car shortage now being current. Freight offerings form an unprecedented tonnage, earnings steadily exceed those of a year ago, and substantial additions to rolling stock reduce congestion in the northwest.

"The course of prices for most of the leading raw and finished materials continues firmly intrenched at the highest average.

"The wholesale markets are yet attended by many outside buyers and heavy purchases of spring and summer merchandise make a healthy reduction of warehouse stocks.

"Bank clearings, $243,145,727, exceed those of the corresponding week in 1906 by 20.8 per cent.

Trade in National Large.

New York, March 22.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade tomorrow will say:

"Business has responded to the influence of settled spring weather at most points, and the proximity of Easter has increased retail sales of dry goods, millinery, and footwear. Many dealers had underestimated requirements and urgent demands are made upon jobbing houses. Transportation is more satisfactory.

"In addition to current trade, there is a volume of preparation for later seasons that maintains activity at manufacturing plants, the high prices readily paid on most of this forward business testifying to the fact that confidence remans unshaken."

As Seen by Bradstreet's.

Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: "Spring trade is at its height, and the turnover bids fair to exceed even last year's, the stimuli being furnished by more favorable weather and the approach of Easter. Improvement is reflected all around, even in the northwest, which now appears to be getting back to normal conditions. In fact, doubt as to the future is nowhere in evidence in the great producing sections of the country. At some points in the west sales of dry goods on spring account are only 10 per cent above those of last year, while full business thus far placed is also in excess of that booked at this time in 1906."

Bank Clearings for Week.

Bradstreet's bank clearings report for the week ending March 21 shows an aggregate of $3,835,147,000, against $3,282,220,000 last week and $2,796,406,000 the corresponding week last year. Canadian clearings for the week total $86,238,000, as against $77,904,000 last week and $65,059,000 in the same week last year. The following is a list of the cities:

FIRE DAMAGES PRIVATE CAR.

Blaze in Personal Coach of President Delano of the Wabash Railroad Causes $10,000 Loss.

The private car "Chicago No. 1," belonging to President F. A. Delano of the Wabash railroad, was damaged to the extent of $10,000 by fire last night while standing at Fifty-first street and the Western Indiana tracks.

It is supposed that the car, which is valued at $25,000, caught fire from gas which escaped in the kitchen while the porter was absent.

A railroad fire department, headed by Edward L. Howard, general foreman of the railroad, put out the fire before the city firemen arrived.

ROOSEVELT HITS WOOD'S ACCUSER.

Sets Aside Findings of Court Martial Which Acquitted Capt. Koehler.

REPRIMAND IS UPHELD.

Language of Commanding Officer Held to Have Been Warranted by the Evidence.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—The acquittal of Capt. Lewis M. Koehler, Fourth cavalry, by the second court martial which tried him was set aside today, leaving the status of the captain the same as if the proceedings never had been begun.

Capt. Koehler was cavalry commander at Jolo, P. I., and was charged with using disrespectful language in an appeal from the action of Gen. Wood, the division commander, who reprimanded Capt. Koehler for making charges against Maj. Scott, commanding officer at the Jolo military post and civil governor of Jolo, and also was charged with conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman in making unfounded and malicious statements regarding his commanding officer and with insubordination.

The first court martial sentenced him to be reprimanded and the second court martial, on which today's presidential action was based, acquitted him.

Roosevelt Raps Court Martial.

The president's order follows:

The White House, Washington, D. C., March 22.—The proceedings, findings, and acquittal in the case of Capt. Lewis M. Koehler, Fourth cavalry, United States army, are disapproved. I entirely concur in all that the secretary of war says of Capt. Koehler and of Gen. Wood, and of the poor showing made by the court which last passed on the case. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Secretary Taft in his letter says in part:

"Capt. Koehler made himself annoying to Maj. Scott by captious insistence that Maj. Scott should be in his office at certain times, and should discharge his duties as military post commander with the same degree of promptness that he would have done had he not the additional duties of civil governor. The friction between the two officers became so great that Capt. Koehler filed charges against Maj. Scott."

Text of Wood's Reprimand.

Maj. Scott later filed charges against Capt. Koehler. A court martial found Capt. Koehler guilty of preferring captious and unnecessary charges against his commanding officer, and in reprimanding him under the sentence of the court martial Gen. Wood declared that Capt. Koehler's conception of the standard of conduct and uprightness as they exist in the army was distorted to a degree not found in the just and fair minded, and that he should cultivate those habits of true soldierly subordination which the evidence in the case showed him to lack.

Capt. Koehler appealed, though the law does not specifically provide for such a remedy, to the secrejary of war, saying, of the reprimand, that "the severity, even to harshness, of the reprimand administered shows prejudice, bias, unfairness, and a preconceived conviction that I was guilty as originally charged." In commenting upon the trial he further said: "I was harassed and handicapped by the feeling that I was helpless and at the mercy of a superior who would make use of every unfair advantage to harm and to protect his own personal friend, Maj. Scott."

Says Guilt Is Sustained.

Gen. Wood called the attention of the war department to the appeal and submitted the question of disciplinary proceedings. A court martial was then appointed, which acquitted Capt. Kohler.

Continuing, Secretary Taft's letter says:

"I have no hesitation in saying, after a full consideration of the matter, that the finding of the first court martial that Capt. Koehler was guilty of filing captious and unnecessary charges against his commanding officer was fully sustained. His statements in his appeal cannot be supported.

"The question then remains, what is to be done? A reviewing authority may mitigate a sentence, but it cannot change a finding of acquittal to one of conviction. It can, however, in any case disapprove the entire proceeding and refuse to confirm a finding of acquittal. The effect of this is to set aside the proceedings as if they had not been commenced. By this course, you, as the reviewing authority, are not involved in the logical consequences with respect to Gen. Wood which must follow an approval of the sentence as already explained, and Capt. Koehler simply is restored to duty. This is the view of the judge advocate general, in whose recommendations I fully concur."

BIG GAIN IN MANUFACTURES.

United States Now Ranks as Third Among World's Exporters of This Kind of Goods.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—The United States now ranks third among the world's exporters of manufactures, according to a monograph on "exports of manufactures from the United States and the distribution" issued today by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor.

Not only do the exports of manufactures now exceed $700,000,000 per annum and have doubled in value in a single decade, but also the share which products of the factory form of the total exports is steadily increasing. A comparison shows that in 1890 manufactures formed but 15 per cent of the total exports of domestic products, while in 1906 they formed 40 per cent.

In the decade ending with 1905 exports of manufactures increased 198 per cent, while those of Germany increased 75 per cent. The growth of exports of manufactures in the sixteen years following 1890 was practically three times as great as that of the entire seventy years preceding that year.

MAY STRETCH OIL TRIAL.

DEFENSE HAS POWER TO FORCE IDENTITY OF 1,903 CARS.

W. T. Aylesbury, Auditor for St. Louis Terminal Association, Returns with 500 Books Showing Chappel Shipments—May Be Caused Extra Work—Witness in Case Says 6 Cent Rate Was Given Before Attorneys Can Object.

The attorneys for the Standard Oil company have it within their power to lengthen the trial of their client several weeks. W. T. Aylesbury, auditor of car records for the four terminal associations of St. Louis, has brought the 500 books in which is noted the disposition of the 1903 oil cars on which the indictment is based.

The defense can force the government to have each entry in these books relating to the case found and identified by Aylesbury or accept the transcript which he has prepared and which was offered in evidence yesterday. If the former is demanded it will take several weeks and have no other result than prolonging the trial. The question is to be decided today.

Defense Brings Out Books.

It was the defense which forced the government to produce these books. Aylesbury was called to the witness stand nearly two weeks ago, and at that time had a transcript of the Standard Oil shipments which were cared for by the terminal associations of St. Louis during the period covered by the indictment.

On cross examination he admitted that he had not personally checked over the entries on his transcript, but had left that to the clerks under him. The defense objected and he was ordered to return and bring his books with him. These arrived in three huge boxes.

Something near a tilt between Assistant District Attorney Wilkerson and Moritz Rosenthal, counsel for the Standard Oil company, occurred in the morning during the introduction of the charter of the Chicago Terminal Transfer company. The defense had objected, and when Judge Landis overruled the objection Mr. Rosenthal charged the government with introducing a lot of superfluous matter. This was emphatically denied by Mr. Wilkerson, but before Mr. Rosenthal could retort the court interposed.

"In discussing objections the attorneys will address the court and not each other," he said.

Testifies to Cheap Rate.

J. H. Howard, auditor in charge of the Chicago and Alton records, was on the witness stand most of the afternoon. When court adjourned he had identified 1,200 of the waybills and entries in connection therewith dealing with the cars upon which the various counts are based. In the course of his examination he was asked by Mr. Wilkerson on what basis per 100 pounds the bills to the Standard Oil company were computed.

"Six cents," was the unhesitating reply, uttered before the defense had time to object.

Other witnesses were J. F. Watkins and E. M. Morrissey, employés of the Wiggins Ferry company.

INTIMATION OF BRIBERY IS MADE BY PROSECUTOR.

Assistant State's Attorney Harold Declares He Was Asked to Drop the Charges Against Resort.

A declaration that he had been approached with the request to drop the prosecution of Frank Conroy and Grace Allen, alleged keepers of a disorderly resort at 2117 Dearborn street, was made by Assistant State's Attorney Harold, prosecutor at the Chicago avenue court, before Judge Himes yesterday.

Conroy and the Allen woman are under arrest at the instance of Annie Poepper, 15 years old, who claims she was brought to the alleged resort by Martin McClane and kept there as an inmate for six months. Brutal treatment is alleged to have been accorded her. She was found on the street by detectives.

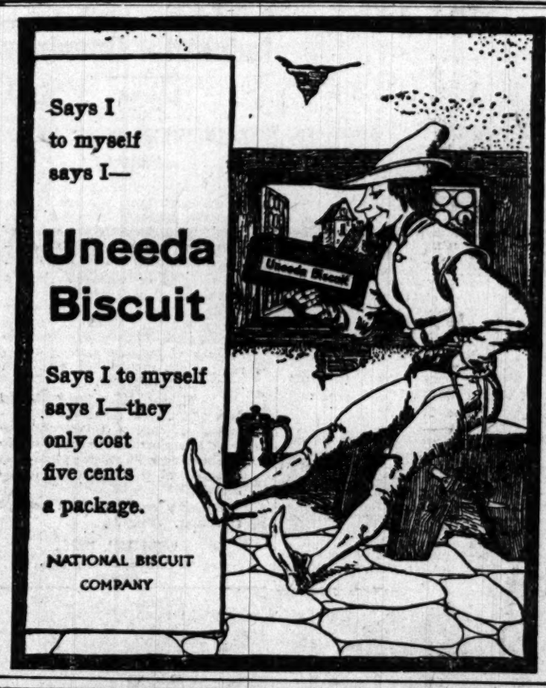

Mr. Harold in addressing the court said:

"I have been approached by several men, supposedly agents of Conroy, who asked me not to be hard on him," he said. "They also intimated that there was a 'shake down' in the police department and that it would be all right if the case was dropped. I intend to sift this case and prove these charges false. I will get witnesses to convict Conroy of the charges against him."

Conroy, the Allen woman, and the Poepper girl were in court. The case was continued by Judge Himes to enable the state to obtain further evidence.

REVERSE RULING ON IMMIGRATION.

Bonaparte Decides States and Individuals May Import Labor.

SOCIETY ACTION ILLEGAL.

Echo of Decision Which Stirred Up Big Storm in South Carolina.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—Attorney General Bonaparte once more has interpreted the new immigration law with respect to assisted immigration, and has decided that states and individuals but not societies or associations can import labor from abroad.

This is a reversal of the first opinion rendered by the attorney general, which aroused so much bitter criticism in South Carolina and other states which have been arranging for foreign immigrants to settle in their jurisdiction. Following the original opinion, representatives of the southern states came to Washington and vigorously protested at the policy proposed by the attorney general, insisting it would arrest the development of the entire south and that it was imperative it should be changed. The president received a few days ago a letter from the governor of South Carolina, asking a number of questions in regard to the new law.

Bonaparte States Law.

Mr. Bonaparte quotes sections applying to assisted immigration and says:

"These provisions change the law in two particulars; in the first place aliens solicited or induced to migrate by reasons of offers, or promises, even when there is no contract of employment, will be excluded after this act takes effect. At present, although their importation is unlawful and subjects the parties responsible for it to punishment, aliens themselves are allowed to enter.

"Secondly, a person whose passage money is paid by another must be prepared to show, not merely that he does not come within any of the categories of immigrants to be excluded but also that his passage was not paid by a corporation, association, society, municipality, or foreign government; and this provision against such payment by any of the agencies mentioned is effective whether payment be made directly or indirectly.

Society Feature Important.

"While, therefore, payment of the passage money of such immigrants by the state with its public funds is not prohibited, its payment with funds contributed by any society or association renders the immigrant liable to exclusion, although payment may be made through the agency of the state or its officers, and although the immigrant would be otherwise entitled to admission. The same prohibition, however, does not extend to the payment of passage money by individuals, whether directly or through the agency of the state; provided, that their action is and is satisfactorily shown to be in the good faith of the individual, and is not attended by such combination or concert of action as would make it substantially an act of an association or society."

YOUNG INDIAN SLAYER HALTED.

New Jersey Lad on His Way to Texas to Slaughter Red Skins Is Arrested Here.

The journey of Benjamin H. Tomley, 11 years old, from Newark, N. J., to Beaumont, Tex., "to shoot Indians," was interrupted by a Chicago policeman, who took the militant youngster into custody.

Women in the Juvenile courtroom instinctively sought places of safety yesterday when Probation Officer John Short placed on the court's desk two big revolvers, a gold watch, and $28 which were taken from the boy when he was arrested shortly after he had arrived here from the east.

The boy admitted he had left his home in Newark to shoot Indians in Beaumont, and that he had taken the money and the watch from his father, but the police failed to learn where he got the revolvers. His father, who was informed of the arrest, has promised to come to Chicago.

LARGEST 2 CENT CIRCULATION IN THE WORLD.

THE CHANNEL TUNNEL.

The British government has apparently dealt a fatal blow to the project of tunneling the English channel. A formal statement of disapproval made to commons and lords alike was supported by the leaders of the opposition in both houses. If the plan is not finally killed its execution will be long delayed.

The feeling of timidity which has prevailed in connection with the proposal to make a subterranean way of communication with the ancient enemy, France, is interesting as showing how difficult it is to overcome long cherished antagonisms and how far the world really is from the ideas of disarmament and general peace associated with Hague conferences.

The channel—the "silver streak"—has been counted a great protection by the English. It can be patrolled by warships and the landing of an invading army be made impossible so long as the superiority of the British navy lasts. A connecting tunnel might be a source of danger if the English end were suddenly seized by an enemy. The isolation of the island from the continent has much in its favor, for Great Britain has a small army and the continent has many great and well disciplined armies. England dreads invasion.

While the overcoming of natural obstacles is an everyday matter, and the giving up of the tunnel plan seems like a backward step from the point of view of engineering efforts to make international communication easier, it is open to question whether the tunnel, if built, would yield returns on the investment. It might lessen the discomfort of the trip to France, often dreaded by those subject to seasickness. It might bring French freight to London a little sooner than is now possible. But the imports from France and the continent generally make such a small part of the aggregate of imperial trade as to be relatively unimportant. The bulk of commerce is now and will always be handled by the merchant marine.

Where there is a great volume of freight to be carried a tunnel is economically justifiable even when the cost of construction is great. The long one which would be needed to connect England and France at the point where they come nearest together would not be a profitable undertaking.

"THE GARDENER AND ASSISTANT."

Another country house robbery has been reported and another millionaire has learned to his sorrow that he has been deprived of property to the value of $100,000. His home near Long Island sound had been left in charge of "the gardener and an assistant," and at the specific time of the robbery the gardener was peacefully sleeping in an outbuilding while his assistant was doubtless assisting him. A short time ago Mr. Wanamaker's country home was destroyed by fire, and this despite such precautions and efforts as may have been made by another gardener and his assistant who were detailed to watch the property.

If men of large wealth choose to erect costly summer houses, pack them with the most valuable possessions, and at the approach of winter turn them over to an old woman caretaker or a gardener and his assistant, it is their privilege so to do. But if their houses are destroyed by fire, or burglars enter and loot the premises, they have no reasonable occasion for surprise. Around Chicago and within the summer home radius there are many persons of wealth who have this same seeming indifference, and from time to time the public hears of housebreaking, of silver stolen, and jewels missing, and of the astonishment and indignation of the owners, and the amazement of the gardener and his assistant, who cannot understand how such outrages are perpetrated.

The average country house of millionaires is becoming nothing less than a cordial invitation to burglars to enter and help themselves during the winter months. In days gone by—saving the possibility of fire—it was supposed that pictures and books might be safely left unguarded, and that burglars would not touch them. But with increased prosperity and the general spread of culture the American housebreaker has developed the esthetic side, and woe to the rare painting or the first edition, the "old master," or "one of the three only known copies," which falls under his cultivated inspection. The six valuable paintings removed during the Mamaroneck robbery will bear witness to the growth of the artistic impulse among those who profit by the absence of the master of the house and by the sweet slumbers of the gardener.

The moral lesson conveyed by these recent performances of professional looters is that it is just as important to guard "old world treasures," "oriental rugs of priceless worth," and "bric-à-brac that cannot be duplicated" at one time as another, and that winter is no discourager of housebreaking. The man who turns thousands of dollars' worth of luxurious appointments over to a gardener and assistant, who must occasionally slumber, should provide at least that they are light sleepers and that they are housed where the bait is the most tempting.

ANOTHER BROKEN PROMISE.

Mayor Dunne said before his election, "the magnificent public school system of Chicago must be maintained in its advancing state of excellence, be kept free from partisan political control, and be continued as a growing object of pride to our people." The community had a right to take this as a promise that if Mr. Dunne were elected the public schools would come to no harm at his hands. If this promise had been kept his failure to live up to some of his other promises might have been overlooked.

The "magnificent school system" Mayor Dunne praised has not been maintained in its "advancing state of excellence." It has been maimed and crippled. It has been demoralized and disorganized. Its control has been handed over to partisans who are making stump speeches for the mayor and to single taxers and socialists who lack educational and business qualifications, and whose policy has been that everything which experience had proved to be for the good of the schools should be done away with. Their motto has been "change all things."

In managing the finances they have economized where economy was hurtful. Thus they have cut down the appropriation for text books for poor children, but they have made up for that by spending money for other purposes lavishly and wastefully, and have closed the year with a large deficit. By their extravagance they have seriously crippled the schools for the coming year.

When Mayor Dunne's appointees took hold they found in force a merit system for the appointment and promotion of teachers. To that system the efficiency of the schools was due. It was disliked by a faction among the teachers which wished to rule the schools, and so Mayor Dunne's board swept the merit system away. There is a superintendent who knows the needs of the schools, but the chief object of the board has been to find out what he favored and then do exactly the contrary. It meddled with the text book question and made a sorry and expensive mess of it.

The salaries of teachers have been increased, though by doing that it became impossible to establish more kindergartens and evening schools and take proper care of the high schools. The children suffer that the teachers may be better paid, for it is an axiom with the present board that public schools exist for the special purpose of giving employment to teachers.

If Mayor Dunne were to be reëlected there would be four years more of misrule in the public schools. There would not be a shred of discipline or efficiency left at the end of that time. The "magnificent school system" the mayor gave the people to understand he would uphold would be a wreck. Voters who have children in the public schools should unite to put an end to the partisan, topsy-turvy, and petticoat government that is depriving their children of a proper education.

GUARDING AMERICAN INTERESTS.

The landing of small detachments of marines at some Honduran coast towns will be generally approved. Americans have commercial interests which demand protection, and in the excited state of mind of the people of that region there is much danger lest something occur to make out of the petty warfare of neighbors an occasion for far greater disturbance. Even a small company of marines will have marked influence. It is unlikely that any outrages will take place with these police of the United States near at hand, even though Nicaraguan forces shall capture the towns.

Incidentally, there will be another thing accomplished. Europeans who may be living in these towns will also be protected. There will be no occasion for any European government to send a naval vessel to the Honduran coast. The presence of the United States marines will serve as a check upon the belligerents and will relieve the fears of those European countries whose interests might seem endangered. The trend of the events of late years has made it a duty of the United States to police the Caribbean region when policing is needed. The other powers of the world expect it and approve it.

It is gratifying, too, that the marines were landed before there had been any serious damage to commercial interests. It is rarely the case that such damage is done to foreign interests with definite intent. Usually such things happen inadvertently. The chances for any difficulties are much lessened by the action of this government.

This important step having been taken to protect the interests of other nations, it really makes little difference whether there is any attempt at intervention or not. Having been unmoved by the urgings of the American and Mexican representatives before the outbreak of hostilities, the belligerents may prefer to go ahead with their fighting until each side is satisfied.

WHERE UNANIMITY WENT WRONG.

In Helicon hall, before the late destructive conflagration, Upton Sinclair had gathered around him fifty-four associates of various intents and purposes. Among them were writers, sociologists, philosophers, uplifters in the stalwart sense of the term, each with his own definite ideas of bettering humanity and of improving the general condition of the world. It was not developed that they were in perfect accord on many specific questions, for it is the peculiarity of most uplifters in convention assembled or in community associated that they are inclined to differ grievously as to the manner of the uplift.

But however they may have disagreed as to the management of affairs which goes to make a brighter and better world, they seem to have been almost a unit in the opinion that there was no necessity, so far as they were individually or collectively concerned, for providing against the contingency of fire. In a spirit of trustfulness and reposeful confidence they herded in an old fashioned, tinder box house, with no fire escapes, no adequate water supply, no bucket brigade, not even a rope for gymnastic performances in the event of an emergency. There was one exception to the rule—part philosopher, part man of practical science, who provided for his own family use a small rope which was happily and successfully employed for downlifting purposes when the fire broke out. For this reckless unanimity in failing to take the simplest precautions against fire a coroner's jury has censured the colonists.

It is not an ill natured reflection on these purposeful community workers that in their zeal for high attainments they neglected the commonest measures of self-protection; it is merely surprising that they should have done so, and they are to be congratulated that they escaped so luckily. At least they have learned a valuable lesson, and the world is already assured that when the community comes together again it will have profited by its experience and be a little more practical. It is remarkable, indeed, that the only specific consideration which met with almost unanimous, though silent, indorsement—absolute neglect of the elementary principles of protection against the peril of fire—was the unhappy instrument of the community's undoing.

THIEVES AND THIEVES.

Four Nebraska cattlemen who conspired to steal 200,000 acres of government land have been condemned to pay the penalty for their crimes. Two of them are to pay a fine of $1,500 each and serve one year in a county jail; two of them must pay $800 each and spend eight months in jail. It cannot be said that this is an excessive punishment for the theft of 200,000 acres of land.

Suppose that these men had been convicted of stealing $200 in cash or that by force they had held up a citizen and taken a dollar from his pocket they would not have got off so easily. There is a defect in the laws when greater thieves escape with penalties mild in comparison with those imposed upon lesser thieves. If the man who stole $173,000 from the subtreasury is found to be a trusted employé of the government no greater punishment can be inflicted upon him than upon a sneak thief who takes an overcoat worth $15, while the minimum penalty in the latter case is one year and in the former case six months.

Whether viewed from the standpoint of punishment or warning the penalty inflicted upon the land thieves is not likely to have a great deterrent effect. To serve one year in a county jail, where money will procure luxuries and where there is no hard labor to perform, is little enough to pay for the use for years of 200,000 acres of land. The government is making a good beginning in prosecuting the men who seize the public domain, but the next convicted criminals should be given the extreme penalty of the law if the practice is to be rendered unpopular.

POLICE SALARIES.

The city appropriations are made a short time before the spring election. This is an unlucky combination. Because of it the aldermen are apt to vote pay increases which they would not vote if the budget were passed on after election. They are thinking more of votes they may get than of the interests of the city. If it had not been for considerations of that kind the council would not have taken the action it did as to the pay of policemen. It would have left it to the next council to say whether there should be an advance in salaries. It would not have practically compelled its successor to add about $700,000 to the current expenses of the city for 1908. Whether its revenues will be in shape to stand the additional charge is something which cannot be told at this time. The money for the higher salaries has been appropriated for only one month of this year, but no policeman believes the next council will refuse to make the big appropriation for 1908.

Probably it is true that the higher wages which workingmen are getting add to the difficulty of securing first class recruits for the police force. The increase in the cost of living may be pleaded as some justification of an advance in salaries when the city can afford it. But it is going too far to adopt the New York scale of compensation in Chicago. When it comes to matters of that kind there should be no attempt at rivalry. There would have been none if the election had not been near at hand.

The straphangers are hanging together nobly.

Probably Mr. Delmas will insist that his client is insane only on the subject of Stanford White.

Many thousands of persons not formally enrolled as members of the Straphangers' league are in full sympathy with its aims and purposes.

Mr. Busse looks a great deal more like Tom Johnson than Mayor Dunne does, but this is something he can't help.

"Mildred," began the young man, hesitatingly, "suppose a fellow has been—has been paying attention, you know, to a girl for more than a year, and he kind o' hesitates—that is, he isn't at all sure how the girl—and all that time he has been—well, he—he hates to run the risk, you see——"

Here Mildred interrupted him.

"Ask it right out, Gerald," she said. "Don't puzzle me with any hypothetical questions."

"How do you part your hair?" asked the barber.

"I generally use a comb and brush," said the customer with the scanty thatch on his dome of thought. "If you know of a better way you are welcome to adopt it."

So the barber, after studying the problem a moment, parted his customer's hair with a flexible ruler and a steel pen.

MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

Copyright: 1907: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

Capt. Lewis-Hill, adjutant of the third battalion of the Scots guards and a scion of the house of Hill, of which Viscount Hill is the chief, has married again, this time to Miss Jane Kent, the ceremony having taken place on March 1, less than six months after the death of his first wife, to whom he is indebted for the large fortune of tainted origin which enables him to maintain the handsome steam yacht Fedora, on which he is now spending his honeymoon in the Mediterranean, and to lease for a term of years, fully furnished, Belmont court, Lord Harris' beautiful country place in Kent. It remains to be seen how much longer the former captain will continue to retain the name of Lewis, which his first wife compelled him to assume in conjunction with his own at the time of their marriage, by deed poll. It is not an adjunct which he can relish, for it serves to recall, not only to himself but likewise to the world at large, the source of his affluence.

The fact of the matter is that his first wife, when she married, was the childless widow and sole heiress of old Sam Lewis, known in his day as the king of London usurers, and as such responsible for the ruin of a large proportion of the British aristocracy. According to the celebrated London lawyer, his namesake and coreligionist, Sir George Lewis, there has never been a more infamous usurer than Sam Lewis, and Sir George, who is the legal adviser of pretty nearly half the peerage, was never tired of denouncing Sam Lewis during the latter's lifetime. Sam, who was generally understood to have as silent partners a couple of titled personages who helped not only to steer flies into his web but also to keep him posted about the losses, the winnings, and the legacies of the people belonging to their set, left at his death a colossal fortune, amassed entirely by usury and amounting to over $20,000,000.

Mrs. Lewis, after Sam's death, endeavored to atone in a measure for the origin of her husband's money by the most lavish contributions to charitable enterprises of every nature, especially to those in which royalty was interested, and from the moment of her husband's demise until her own death late last fall she made a point of giving each year between $50,000 and $100,000 to the hospital fund organized by the king and queen in person and destined to relieve the metropolitan hospitals from the terrible burden of debt by which they are now both incumbered and crippled.

Nor did she confine her charities entirely to England nor to those of her native land, which was Ireland. For she likewise sent a large donation to some philanthropic fund at Constantinople, in recognition of which the sultan conferred upon her the Grand Cordon of his Order of Chefkat. King Edward showed his recognition of her munificent philanthropy by giving his consent to her appearance at court, and she was presented at one of the courts at Buckingham palace by Lady Farquhar, wife of the master of the royal household, herself a lady in waiting to the princess royal and standing particularly high in the good graces of the queen.

Lieut. W. I. Montague Hill was considerably the junior of Mrs. Lewis when he led her to the altar in 1904, the wedding creating a considerable sensation at the time. And while the bride, as usual in such instances, loaded her young husband with riches, his fellow officers of the brigade of guards, and more especially those of his grand old regiment, the Scots guards, combined to demand and obtained his retirement not only from the corps but likewise from the army, rightly taking the ground that although much might be pardoned to Mrs. Lewis, on account of the philanthropic use to which she put her first husband's ill gotten wealth, there could be no possible excuse for a young man of good family marrying a woman almost old enough to be his mother, for the sake of acquiring a portion of that tainted money.

Possibly some years hence, after Capt. Hill has dropped the name of Lewis, people will be disposed to forget his behavior in the entire matter, especially if he shows himself hospitable and can furnish his friends with good yachting, shooting, and hunting. Hospitality wisely extended covers, like charity, a multitude of sins, and, after all, he is not the only young man of family who has married a woman old enough to be his mother or grandmother for the sake of money. There are others, as, for instance, Harry Milner, the third husband of the late duchess of Montrose, his senior by half a century, and W. Burdett-Coutts, whose wife was forty-six years older than himself when he married her. In neither these, nor in other instances of an analogous character that I can recall was the money, however, derived from such an infamous source as that which the late Mrs. Lewis bestowed upon her second husband, Capt. Lewis-Hill.

All rumors to the effect that King Edward contemplated abandoning Sandringham, his country place in Norfolk, to his son, the prince of Wales, have been set at rest by the alterations which are now in progress there, and which include among other things the substitution of the armorial bearings of the monarch everywhere for the ostrich plumes that constitute the badge of the prince of Wales. In spite of all the drawbacks of Sandringham the place is particularly dear to the king and queen, and it may safely be taken for granted that it will continue to be occupied by Queen Alexandra in the event of her surviving her husband.

It has been the principal private home of the king and queen since their marriage, forty-four years ago, a home entirely distinct from their royal palaces, where they felt that they were merely life tenants, and which as property of the crown were subject to the control of the government, in the person of its representative, the commissioner of the board of works. No other country place, no matter how magnificent, could ever possess for the king and queen the same charm or the same associations as Sandringham, and the prince of Wales in consequence thereof will lease and possibly purchase a place for himself in the Midland counties, as I mentioned in these letters the other day. The alterations now in progress at Sandringham include, among other things, the partial reconstruction of the side of the mansion which faces the Norwich gates, and also the addition of a considerable number of guests' rooms.

With the object of dispelling the mystery in connection with the breaking off of the engagement of Prince Henry of Hanau and the multi-millionaire Frau Oelbermann of Cologne, I may mention that it has arisen through the discovery by the lady that owing to the terms of the will of the father of the prince, the last sovereign elector of Hesse-Cassel, she would never be able to wed him on a footing of equality, or to share his princely coronet. In one word, she learned, late in the day, that she could never under any circumstances if she married him become Princess Hanau, but would have to content herself at the best with the rank of a mere countess, and with the questionable status of a morganatic wife.

It was not worth while, therefore, to throw away herself and her colossal wealth upon an elderly roué of unsavory reputation, such as Prince Hanau, and under the circumstances she not only intimated to him that she would decline to marry him but likewise insisted upon his return of the 1,000,000 marks which she had placed at his disposal on the day of their betrothal on the understanding that she was to become his fullfledged wife. The prince, who at once proceeded to deposit the money in Austrian banks, and who has already spent a portion thereof, declines to make any return, and a lawsuit has been instituted by the lady, which gives promise of interesting revelations. That the old elector of Hesse should have made a will of this kind, precluding his children from marrying on a footing of equality any persons not belonging to the higher ranks of the nobility, was all the more strange when it is taken into consideration that these children themselves were the issue of his morganatic alliance with the bourgeoise born divorced wife of a bourgeoise born cavalry officer.

The Frau Oelbermann is a widow, 64 years of age, who has lost both her sons, and is therefore childless. Prince Henry of Hanau is just a year older, and until the death of his elder brothers and his inheritance of the heavily incumbered family estates in Bohemia, lived more or less by his wits in Paris, where he was not altogether favorably known in cosmopolitan society as a hunter of American heiresses. On several occasions he seemed to be about to land a matrimonial prize, but at the last moment something always occurred to dash his hopes to the ground, usually through the discovery by the girl or by her relatives of his antecedents and reputation.

ALLIANCE TO CEMENT RUSSO-JAPANESE PEACE.

Report That Combatants in Recent War Are on Eve of Defensive and Offensive Agreement with England and France Stirs Washington.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—Official and diplomatic Washington is deeply interested in a report emanating from official sources that Japan and Russia are paving the way to an offensive and defensive alliance, in which Great Britain and France will participate.

If it be true it will be the biggest diplomatic coup which has occurred since the alliance between England and Japan, which made the Russo-Japanese war possible. For the recent enemies it will mean that the armed truce which now exists will give way to a permanent peace in connection with the far east.

Any one familiar with conditions which have existed in Manchuria during the eighteen months which have elapsed since the treaty of Portsmouth is aware that there has been constant friction between Russia and Japan. Certain negotiations were necessary to carry the treaty into effect. These negotiations have been in progress in St. Petersburg. Japan adopted an attitude extremely irritating to the Russians, and the czar was driven to a point where he practically had determined not to put into execution that feature of the convention which required final evacuation of northern Manchuria, which remained in Russian possession, until March 15 of this year. For a time it looked as if negotiations would fail and that the result would be the resumption of strained relations and eventual hostilities.

Japan Off Her High Horse.

Now, according to authoritative information, all this has changed and Japan has abandoned the high handed rôle she at first assumed. She has become more conciliatory and apparently is anxious to meet Russia half way in arranging all questions between them. Perhaps this was due to the action of the czar in ordering the withdrawal of Russian troops about six weeks ago, in accordance with the earnest advice of M. Iswolsky, Russian minister for foreign affairs. Iswolsky was moved to give this counsel by his desire to show the world that Russia was living loyally up to the stipulations of the treaty of Portsmouth, and that if a break again occurred with Japan the fault would rest with the latter.

Japan seems to have appreciated the awkward position in which she would be placed and immediately changed her tone, displaying an earnest desire to terminate the negotiations along mutually satisfactory lines as promptly as possible. In addition, she gave assurances of her intention to evacuate southern Manchuria by the date fixed in the treaty and conveyed these assurances not only to Russia, but to the United States and other powers.

Removes Peril of New War.

But besides settling the disputes with respect to Manchuria and the fisheries of eastern Siberia in accordance with the Portsmouth treaty, the report which has reached here indicates that the two countries have taken or are on the eve of taking a more forward step, of the kind, in fact, that the Russian negotiators sought at Portsmouth. This is nothing short of a mutual agreement with respect to the far east and an alliance in support thereof.

At Portsmouth M. De Witte, chief of the Russian plenipotentiaries, found on sounding Baron Komura and Mr. Takahira, the Japanese envoys, that it would be a waste of time to propose that the war be sealed by an alliance. Japan was suspicious of Russian pledges and was unwilling to bind her future policy. Moreover, Great Britain was passing through a period of strained relations with Russia, and was apprehensive that the St. Petersburg government intended an attack on her one vulnerable flank, India.

In order to keep good faith with the British government it was essential that Japan should decline to do more than sign a treaty of peace, and this attitude was made clear to the Russian representatives.

England the Agent of Peace.

But since the war a change has occurred in the relations of Great Britain and Russia. Indeed, the two countries have been endeavoring to reach an agreement on various questions in the controversy between them, as Great Britain and France adjusted their differences by an agreement made about the time of the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war. Great Britain's efforts have been assisted by France, which is a firm and ancient ally of Russia. In order to insure a peaceful arrangement between Russia and Japan, Great Britain has applied pressure at Tokio. Thus has come the satisfactory solution of Russo-Japanese questions arising out of the treaty of Portsmouth, and the prospect of even closer relations between four of the greatest powers in the world.

If these relations are effected, every part of the world will feel the result. It will be a strong guarantee of universal peace. Germany will be isolated in Europe, and the United States, too, will be outside the breastworks. Fortunately such a situation is by no means strange for this country, because of its observance of Washington's famous maxim: "No tangling alliances." But it is serious for Germany, which is concerned constantly about that intangible but important and everlasting problem: "The balance of power."

In the far east the American government would welcome an arrangement which would maintain the existing status quo, and that would have to be the basis of treaties between the powers named. But from the point of view of both Russia and Japan, the question of northern China is important as a feature of the larger question—control of the Pacific ocean.

California's Action a Factor.

The irritating atitude of the American Pacific slope towards the Japanese has caused statesmen of the mikado's empire to reckon with the possibility of the United States as an enemy, and to deal firmly with this country it is necessary that Russia should be converted into a friend. This is an additional argument used in support of the report that Russia and Japan are about to become allies.

So far as Manchuria is concerned, China is preparing to resume the mastery of the three provinces which make up this region. Ostensibly the territory will be turned over to the Chinese within three weeks. The Peking government is organizing troops to maintain order, has resumed possession of most of the towns and ports, and intends to reorganize the official, financial, and other systems. But, unfortunately for China, and American trade, the real masters will continue to be Japan and Russia.

This Shaver Is a Solomon at Age of 6.

A little shaver of 6 had listened attentively morning after morning to the reading of selections from Proverbs. One day, happening to overhear some discussion among his elders concerning the wisdom and beauty embodied in them, he remarked: "O, those ain't so much, anybody could say proverbs." On being requested to give an example of his own powers in that line, he answered in just a moment, "A lazy man eats lean swine."

Harry was undergoing the torments of being washed by mother when he was in a great hurry.

"Wait a minute," said his mother. "Don't you want your ears dried?"

"Naw!" was the reckless response, "just let 'em rust!"

He Knew It, but Sure Goat Didn't.

Harold's mother was a devout follower of mental science. The two were crossing a field while in the country, and when the lad saw a goat in the distance he shielded himself instinctively behind his parent's skirt.

"Harold, I'm ashamed of you," she told him. "Don't you know there is no such thing as pain, and that the goat can't hurt you?"

"Y-yes," he admitted timidly. "I know it and you know it, but the goat don't know it."

"Does your papa say grace?" an Oak Park Sunday school teacher asked a member of her class.

"O, no," she replied.

"I am sure he does," the teacher persisted. "What did he say just before dinner began?"

"O, you mean that," the child answered. "He said, 'now you kids go easy on the butter, it is 40 cents a pound.'"

Promised He Wouldn't Touch the Bottle.

One day his mother asked Lawrence to go upstairs and fetch the baby's bottle. He at once demurred, but his mother ordered him to comply without further parley. He reappeared about five minutes later with the bottle wrapped in a towel, holding it at arm's length with his face averted. When asked why he carried the bottle in this manner he replied:

"I promised God once that I would never touch a baby's bottle and I am going to keep my word."

Harry had lived all his life in a backwoods country, where the houses were of logs, roofed with dirt. He knew nothing of the great outside world. Eager, but unbelieving, he listened to stories of Chicago's skyscrapers. Finally he exclaimed: "Now I've got you, how do they get dirt on the roofs?"

Only Wanted Time to Cut Down a Tree.

She is 2½ years old. She and her mother are spending the winter in California. Feb. 22 some one gave her a little hatchet and told her the story of the tree and hatchet. In the afternoon she was playing in the yard. Her mother called to her to come in and get cleaned up. She came to the door and said:

"Dearie" (she calls her mother "Dearie" instead of "mamma") "Don't be impatient, dearie. I will come in to be cleaned up just as soon as I have cut down a tree."

The Thaw case was being discussed at a Sunday dinner, when one of the gentlemen present turned to 4 year old Phyllis and asked:

"What do you think of the hypothetical question?"

She answered: "I don't know; I did not go to church today."

Did Solomon Have Grater for Nutmegs?

One Sunday morning Johnny was restless in church, and constantly looked about and counted all the beams in the ceiling. When he got home his mother reproved him, saying: "Johnny, you did not hear a word of the sermon! You don't even know the text!"

"Yes, I do," replied the boy, "It was 'Hold a grater to Solomon's ear.'" Meaning, "Behold, a greater than Solomon is here."

Three year old Adeline was much distressed at seeing a much crippled man using both crutch and cane and said: "Mamma, why didn't God give the man bones to walk on instead of sticks?"

For the Irish Because It Was Green.

A public school teacher was conducting an intermediate class in geography and had a large map of the United States hung on the wall before the pupils. Pointing to the red colored spots on the map, she told the pupils that they denoted tracts of land set apart for the Indians. Then, placing her pointer upon a green colored part of the map which denoted a forest reserve, she asked what was the use of that piece of land.

Quick as a flash a little boy answered: "For the Irish."

Bryan came in, with each separate red hair on end, and black eyes shining.

"O, Auntie Annie!" he gasped. "They just killed a snake in our back yard!"

"Is that so?" I replied. "Was it a big one?"

"Not so very big, but it had an awful long tail."

Widow Mouse Has to Scratch for Its Living.

Catherine is 4 years old, her mother is a widow and works, and all her spare time is spent with her wee daughter and they have a great deal to tell one another at these times. The other Sunday her mother was home and Katherine, as usual doing all the talking, was telling her mother of a mouse that had made its home in the dining room and she had thrown some crumbs in the corner where she had heard it scratching.

"Mother," she said, "it might be a widow mouse and have to scratch for a living for its baby the same as you do."

The church was beautifully decorated with sweet flowers and the air was heavy with their fragrance. As the service was about to begin small Kitty pulled her mother's sleeve and whispered, "Mamma, doesn't it smell solemn?"

Turns Other Cheek; Dares Him to Slap.

The Smiths are a unique family. The father is a minister of the gospel, while the mother is a practicing physician. The family critic says, "One preaches, the other practices. In the doctor-mamma's frequent absence, the family government devolves on papa.

One day small Alice came to him in great indignation: "Papa, Willie slapped my cheek!"

"Well, my daughter, did you remember what the bible says and turn the other cheek?"

Said Miss Alice: "Yes, I did, and I just dared him to slap it."

"Daddy," asked little Jack, "where does a snake begin when he wants to wag his tail?"

Mr. Begonia Doesn't Grow with Hair Cut.

My little niece, who had lived the most of her six years on a western ranch away from other children, said some quaint things when she came to visit me. She always spoke of the flowers as though they were people—"Mr. Begonia," "Mrs. Geranium," and "Madame Fuchsia."

One night the wind blew a tall begonia off the porch and broke the top of it off. A week or so afterwards as she was helping me to water the plants she looked the begonia all over, then said:

"Poor Mr. Begonia! He hasn't grown a bit since he had his hair cut."

"Johnny," said a Sunday school teacher, "when your father and mother forsake you who will take you up?"

"The police," responded Johnny.

Had No Nose to Speak Of, So He Didn't.

A mother who had invited company to dinner said to her young son: "Freddy, don't say anything about Mr. M.'s nose at the dinner table tonight."

"No'm," replied Freddy.

Just as the dessert was brought in Freddy remarked, in clear, distinct tones:

"Ma, what did you tell me not to say anything about Mr. M.'s nose for? He hasn't got any!"

Helen, aged 2, came running in from play minus her hair ribbon. Mamma had company. "Helen, do you know where your hair ribbon is?" asked mamma.

"Yes," confidently answered the tot.

"Where is it?"

"It's lost," said Helen, greatly to the amusement of all.

HUMOR FROM RUSSIA.

Customer (to waiter)—"What's the meaning of this? Yesterday you gave me twice as large a portion as today."

Waiter—"Where did you sit?"

Customer—"By the window."

Waiter—"O, that accounts for it. We always give people by the window large portions. It's an advertisement."—Szutok.

"I feel so sorry for your son. I hear he's already been three months in prison."

"Be comforted, dear lady, he feels quite at home there now."—Psotnik.

Philanthropic Old Lady (angrily)—"You told me your son was serving the czar when I gave you some money, and now I hear he's been sent to Siberia for theft!"

"Well, excellency, it's not for me to ask how the czar wishes to employ my son."—Szutok.

Little Olga—"Is your wound sore, Capt. Dmitri?"

Captain—"Wound? What wound?"

Little Olga—"Why, mamma says she cut you at the dinner party last night."—Szutok.

"My dear Vera, don't cry so! Death must overtake us all and your dear husband was no longer young."

"Yes, but that wretched dressmaker has made such a hash of my mourning."—Psotnik.

Lawyer—"Well, I've got you off somehow or other. You're free."

Thief—"Many thanks. I'll come and see you some time."

Lawyer—"Yes, but not at night."—Psotnik.

Baker (to small boy)—"You must pay another kopeck. Bread's gone up today."

Small Boy—"Then give me one of yesterday's."—Siarcz.

She—"Did you tell papa the fib about the raise you expected in your salary?"

He (gloomily)—"Yes, I did."

She—"And what did he say?"

He—"He borrowed 20 rubles off me on the spot."—Szutok.

COMPLAINS OF RAILROAD SERVICE.

Chicago, March 20.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Through the columns of your influential journal I would like to voice the sentiment of the people of De Kalb, Ill., over the unfair manner in which they are treated by the officials of the Chicago and Northwestern railway. De Kalb is one of the growing towns along its route and the passenger traffic is large, yet there is, seemingly, not the slightest effort on the part of the Northwestern officials to study their patrons' comfort in any degree.

An extra coach is usually added to the local passenger trains at De Kalb, but unless the seats in the other cars are practically filled, the doors of this extra coach are kept locked until the train reaches Geneva, twenty-two miles distant. Whether the passengers suffer discomfort or distress at such times matters nothing to the company. Last Friday, the 15th, over sixty people got aboard the passenger train leaving for Chicago at 5:03 o'clock. On that occasion no extra coach was attached. These sixty passengers and more filled the smoking car, which is really a second class car and a most repugnant place for those who cannot endure the odor of tobacco, and every seat in the other passenger car. Notwithstanding that, the aisles were filled by many women and children, who had to stand the entire distance of twenty-two miles. At Geneva this extra car was put on that should have been added at De Kalb. Whenever an extra passenger coach is attached to the train at De Kalb, if it is to be used between De Kalb and Chicago, it ought to be left open for the accommodation of travelers, unless there is plenty of room in the other coach.

This course seems to me to be unreasonable toward a community that pays its money to the Northwestern railway only for passenger and freight rates. Several important industrial establishments are located at De Kalb, and the road's revenue from the De Kalb public must be considerable.

In the interest of fair play, I believe the chief officials of the Northwestern road will right this injustice when their attention is called to it. It would be no more than is due to the people of that town. Consequently I ask you to give this communication a place in your paper. Very truly yours,

MELVILLE CLARK.

Prevention of Disease.

Edward E. Feild divides communicable diseases into two classes—those caused by animal parasites, and those caused by bacteria. It is necessary to class under the head of bacterial diseases many whose specific germs have not yet been isolated, but whose symptoms and course so closely resemble this class as to prevent their being grouped elsewhere. The writer calls attention to milk as being a fruitful source of infection in a number of the communicable diseases. The most careful attention should be given to the milk supply. Flies are carriers of infection; so are fleas, bedbugs, and so on. Such insects should be excluded from houses as far as possible. In regard to epidemics, public gatherings should be prevented during these scourges. Schools should be carefully watched for communicable diseases. In epidemics of cholera, plague, or yellow fever the federal government should take charge of all cases and be given the authority to stamp out the disease and to regulate travel.—Medical Record.

ROMANTIC LIFE OF MLLE. JULIE DE LESPINASSE AND HER LOVERS.

A New Biography of the French Original of Mrs. Ward's "Lady Rose's Daughter."

THE saying that truth is stranger than fiction was never borne out more emphatically than in the case of "Lady Rose's Daughter," which it was soon discovered was Mlle. de Lespinasse, has not given us as romantic a history as that of the original of her heroine. Some few months ago, when the subject was uppermost on account of Mrs. Ward's novel, the marquis de Segur wrote a "LIFE OF MLLE. DE LESPINASSE," which has only just been translated into English by Mr. P. H. Lee-Warner, and published by Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. The marquis de Segur has succeeded in clearing up the mystery, which it was supposed would never be solved, as to the origin of Julie de Lespinasse. And, furthermore, he has cleared her name of the calumnies by which other biographers surrounded it.

Notwithstanding her youth, Mlle. de Lespinasse set up a salon of her own, just around the corner from that of Mme. du Deffand. There all the famous men of the time visited on terms of intimacy; not only Parisians but distinguished foreigners visiting Paris:

"David Hume visited her; indeed, the quarrel between Hume and Jean Jacques Rousseau was discussed at a conference in her house. And if we add the names also of the Abbé Galiani, Lord Shelbourne, Walpole, to say nothing of the majestic figure of Voltaire in the distance, we gain some idea of the fame and popularity which encircled the brows of this graceful worshiper of the muses."

Under the influence of Rousseau in French and Richardson in English, a romantic infection spread itself over Paris, to which Mlle. Julie fell a victim. From this point begins the tragedy of her career. Instead of mere friendly feeling she had with the frequenters of her salon, she began to suffer the joys and despairs of a woman in love. First came upon the scene a Spanish nobleman, the marquis de Mora—handsome, not particularly intellectual, but attractive to women, and afflicted with a hereditary disease. Mora was obliged to leave Paris on account of the weak state of his lungs, and when he reached his family in Spain they bitterly opposed his marriage with Mlle. de Lespinasse. In his absence she fell in love with Guibert, but this did not lessen her love for Mora. She was apparently quite as sincerely in love with one as with the other, and wrote equally inflammable letters to both. In a letter to Guibert she wrote:

"One day I will tell you such tales as are not to be found in the novels either of Prévost or Richardson. The compound of unhappy circumstances that make up my history has taught me that the truth is often too utterly incredible. . . . O, but I can tell you that men are cruel! Tigers are kind by comparison!"

The same tragic note runs through this to Condorcet:

"I, who have known nothing but pain and suffering; I, who have suffered atrocities at the very hands from which I should have looked for nothing but gentleness!"

The affection of Mlle. de Lespinasse for both Mora and Guibert seems to have been absolutely sincere; and all the time she was loving Guibert she was trying to arrange a marriage for him with some one else. Guibert was restless and fond of travel. She wrote to him:

"Motion is ever more necessary to you than action. This phrase sounds subtle, but think it over, and you will see that it is true."

In May, 1773, the count was suddenly seized with the desire to travel through Austria, Prussia, and the Rhine country; to visit the battle fields of the seven years' war, and to study the military organization of Germany under Frederick.

Guibert's departure was set for May 19, a Wednesday, but on the following day Julie learned that Guibert had been seen in Paris:

"I went myself to find out if you were ill, and—this will seem horrible to you—I believe that I really hoped to find you so. Yet, by an inconsistency which I cannot explain, I felt the greatest relief on hearing that you had left."

Julie's earlier letters after their separation are all characterized by this same lack of ease and uncertainty, this ebb and flow of contradictory feelings.

"Since I do not know how your departure will affect me," she says to him before he leaves, "I cannot tell whether I shall have the leisure or the will to write to you."

This "will," as one might expect, does not even wait until Guibert has passed the frontier of France; yet the long pages received by him at Strassburg were certainly calculated to puzzle even a man so accustomed to conquest. Thus there are certain pages in which she seems to strive for self-control, and to find in his absence the courage denied her in his presence:

"No! no! I do not want your friendship. . . . It exasperates me. I need rest, and to forget you for a time."

Yet, a moment later, she weakens the harshness of this sentence:

"Your absence has restored my tranquillity, but it has increased my sadness. I cannot tell whether I do or do not regret you. I miss you as one misses a pleasure."

She is haunted by fears lest he should forget her amidst the excitements of travel:

"When you read this you will be heaven knows how far away. Your body will have traveled only 300 miles, but what a distance your mind will have covered! You will be in the midst of such new sights, such new thoughts and ideas! I feel as though I were speaking to your shadow now; everything that I have ever known of you is gone; and how hardly you will find in your memory a trace of the affection which animated you during your last days here!"

This prospect agitates her so much that she appeals in almost suppliant terms to that same friendship of which but a moment before she seemed so reckless:

"Would to heaven that you were my friend, or that I had never known you! Do you believe that you can be my friend? Think, just once, if I ask too much?"

In the meantime Mora was dying in Spain. Julie was writing to him and he to her, but their letters were intercepted by his sister, the duchesse de Villa Hermosa. A month after Guibert's departure Mora suffered another and serious attack:

"He has spat blood, he has been bled twice," Mlle de Lespinasse tells Guibert. "When the post left he was better, but the hemorrhages may have continued. How can I be calm, with this thought? . . . Suffering," she continues, "has weakened my soul, and I succumb to it. At 5 o'clock this morning I took two grains of opium. It gives me calm, which is better than sleep. . . . I can speak to you now and bemoan myself, but yesterday I could not have found words to express my fear for the life of him I love. I must have died then, sooner than utter these words which freeze my heart. You have loved; think, then, what it is to have such fearful anxiety! And until Wednesday I am to continue in an uncertainty which, terrible though it be, yet commands me to live until then."

At the end Mora died, and Guibert married, and Julie went to live with d'Alembert, for whom she had a platonic affection. At last she died:

"Her will appointed d'Alembert as executor of her last wishes, and she wrote him a letter on the 16th of May, to be opened after her death: 'I owe you everything. I am so sure of your friendship that I want to use what strength is left me in enduring a life of which I no longer hope or fear anything. My misery is without resource, as it is without consolation, but I still feel that I ought to make an effort to prolong days that are abhorrent to me.' Here follows directions for the disposal of her manuscripts and private papers, and a codicil containing legacies to her friends. 'Farewell, my friend,' she concludes; 'believe that death brings to me the peace for which I could not hope in life. Always treasure the memory of M. de Mora as the most virtuous, the most affectionate, and the most unfortunate of men. . . . Good-by! My heart and my soul are deadened by despair, and I have lost the power of expressing any other feeling. My death is but the proof of the way in which I have loved M. de Mora; his proved but too well how much more he responded to my tenderness than ever you imagined. Alas! when you read this, I shall be freed from the burden which is crushing me. . . . Good-by, my friend, forever.'"

The frontispiece of this book is a portrait of Mlle. de Lespinasse—said to be the only one of her in existence, and printed here for the first time. Unfortunately, it is a profile and small, so we don't get much idea of what she looked like. But it was not her features that gave her fascination, but her charm of manner; and the "power of constantly making herself a new person, in being ever with each and all, in spending on every subject the clear brightness of her intelligence."

JEANNETTE L. GILDER.

An attempt to set forth a solution of present economic problems in accordance with the teachings of the Roman Catholic church is made by John A. Ryan, S. T. L., a Roman Catholic priest, professor of ethics and economics in the St. Paul seminary, in "A LIVING WAGE" (The Macmillan company, New York). The book is commended by Prof. Richard T. Ely as "an attempt on the part of a religious teacher to get beyond vague and glittering generalities to precise doctrine, and to pass from appeals to sentiment to reasoned arguments." The author contends that religion, as represented by the oldest and largest of the Christian denominations, professes, nay, urges, a definite and considerable measure of industrial justice. The living wage, he declares, points the way to a considerable amelioration of the condition of millions of American workingmen, and it would enable those raised to its level to improve their position still further.

AMBLING BOOK OF ESSAYS BY ARTHUR CHRISTOPHER BENSON.

"The Thread of Gold" Displays a Rare Quality of Frankness in Heart Communings.

"THE THREAD OF GOLD" is the title of one of Arthur Christopher Benson's ambling books, published by E. P. Dutton & Co. Mr. Benson talks so agreeably that this book, reaching this reviewer's table for the first time, shows a number of reprints since 1895, the date of its original publication. It is no more than a friendly comment upon the passing days, made in a benign spirit and a pleasing literary style. At times these musings are inconsequent, but life betrays us all into inconsequences now and then, and what saves the book is the really lovely thread of gold of Mr. Benson's good will toward all things visible and invisible. What he says about prayer—"the sense of aspiration"—is fine enough and simple enough to have been said by Wagner and Maeterlinck.

Mr. Benson's kindly encouragement of this sort is illustrated by human and touching stories, and concluded with the open confession of a gentle and contrite heart.

It is rare in these days that a man is found sufficiently frank to be willing to share the communings of his own heart with others, and many of us pride ourselves that we are too delicate and finely reticent for such confidences. But there are natures of a different quality who are completely unashamed of their pieties and who confess them as children do. Spaulding, bishop of Peoria, does this, and Benson, master at Eton, does it. To both of them the custom is native, and to their readers, no question, there must be a refreshment of spirit.

Marah Ellis Ryan has an exquisite little new book called "INDIAN LOVE LETTERS." Now there are folk who do not like love letters. I have never met them, but I hear there are such. They need not trouble themselves about this slender volume, though when they see the desert pueblo designed upon the sand colored cover, with the sapphire sky above, and those mystic insignia, the quarter moon and the swastika, they will be tempted, I hope, to open the covers. Once they have so far committed themselves they will quite certainly read to the end these tender and imaginative letters, which purport to be written by a desert Indian, who has been educated by the government, and who has formed the acquaintance of an eastern girl whom he loves. He returns to the desert and his own people, to find himself distrusted by them, and, seeking the solitude of one of the most ancient of the desert cities, he dies there, with eagles and wandering herders, the serpents, and the stars for his companions.

Here the spirit of the Indian triumphs over the white training the sad young Indian has received. The ancient instinct and the new knowledge war in him, something as they did in poor "Kim," that child of the west and the east.

The poignant loveliness of the desert has its way with him, and he consigns himself to the perfect loneliness and wisdom of it. He enters into the poetry of the old traditional life. His thoughts are as the very essence of the thoughts of the old peoples of the waste.

As for his love, hopeless from the outset, it becomes for him a ladder to the stars. The book is the product of deep sentiment. Written less sincerely, it might have degenerated into sentimentality. But it never does that. The key is correct; the dignity perfect.

Lovers will love it—and of lovers there are still a-plenty, it is said. The spirit of the desert is in it for those who love the yellow world; and the atmosphere of tradition, of folk story and song, of tribal life and nonhistoric races dwells in it, giving it that curiousness which has made the stories of the wandering people or the wilderness dwellers dear to the hearts of those who know only the intramural life.

The book has end papers showing some adobe city of the desert, with the runways that the moccasined feet of the people have made from the city to an altar which stands on the treeless waste. (A. C. McClurg & Co.)

The Long Road

"An unusual and almost unaccountable charm of blended strength and delicacy — such is the first impression made by John Oxenham's 'The Long Road.' . . . Aside from the striking originality of its fundamental idea, 'The Long Road' is remarkable for the skill with which the principal characters are delineated, and for the quiet beauty of its style. . . . It would not be at all surprising if by right of this story Mr. Oxenham should take his place as one of the strongest novelists of the day."—Post-Despatch.

"Mr. Oxenham has worked out his theme with unusual skill, and 'The Long Road' must stand as one of the very best of his novels, perhaps as the high-water mark of his powers as a novelist. Certainly it is a novel of unusual quality and dramatic power. The fight with the band of famished wolves, where Stepan turns Berserk in defense of his wife and children, is a very vivid bit of description. The character studies are all good. . . . 'The Long Road' should prove one of the principal successes of the season."—The Brooklyn Eagle.

MINOR LEAGUERS BEAT THE SOX, 1-0

Guese Keeps the Chicagoans Guessing and Pelicans Win the New Orleans Game.

ED WALSH SUFFERS MOST.

All Six Hits Are Made Off Spitball Artist; Brilliant Fielding by Champions.

BY SY.

New Orleans, La., March 22.—[Special.]—Chicago's world beaters got an awful bump here today. It was not the size of it, but the manner which counted. The Sox met their first defeat of the year at the hands of the minor leaguers by a score of 1 to 0, and had nothing but a lot of brilliant fielding to show for the day's tale.

A person by the name of Guese cooked Chicago's goose today. He only had to flap his wings and pitch wide curves—the Sox would bite at most of them and either strike out or give the Pelican fielders easy chances. The spectacle of Guese in the tribe of Pelicans is somewhat remarkable from a zoölogical standpoint, but the entire home outfit is web-footed, which is at least better than being crosseyed.

Guese Keeps Sox Guessing.

So completely did Guese have the Sox guessing that only three safeties were tabbed against him. Two of these were the veriest scratches of the order commonly known as Texas leaguers. In fact the hits of Roth and Smith might have been outs only for the fact New Orleans had a Gaston in the outfield and a couple of Alphonses among the infielders. Walsh made the only real hit of the day off Goose. (It seems ungrammatical to speak of a single individual as Guese.) Eddie stung the ball on the nose to the fence in left center in the third inning, but it was wasted because nothing followed.

The Sox plainly showed the lack of practice against anything which really could be called pitching while in Mexico. By the way, they picked out the bad balls to swat at both yesterday and today.

Jones After More Pitchers.

Manager Jones, realizing this weakness, sent a call for help to President Comiskey yesterday, asking him to trade a pitcher or two for a catcher. Only four twirlers are with the first squad here, and Patterson cannot be counted a real pitcher until June or July. Comiskey has seven pitchers with his second squad, including a couple of youngsters willing to work their heads off to make good. Hence "Fielder's" cry for assistance.

The fact that the Sox were humiliated no worse than 1 to 0 is due largely to phenomenal work in the field, the Chicagoans accepting many difficult chances with the same cleanness that characterised the fielding of the Pelicans on easier chances.

Tannehill out-circused "Circus Solly" in making one stop with his bare hand while skating left fieldward on his off ear. Lee came up with the ball, but too late to beat his man to first. Walsh, who worked the first six innings, was batted hard, as he used nothing but speed and put the ball over the plate. Great work by the trio of outfielders saved many long hits going safe. Jones alone gathered in six flies, all but one of which drove him back toward the fence at record breaking speed.

Walsh the Greatest Sufferer.

All six of New Orleans' hits were made off Walsh. Smith pitched three rounds at the finish and allowed no hits, passing one man. But the fielders had to come to his rescue, too, in order to cut off the stingers.

The Pelicans did all the run getting of the game in the blowoff. Walsh struck out two men in the first half, but allowed two singles, and these counted one run, which was all that was necessary to dim the escutcheon of the champion of champions. Thereafter the home fellows never had a real chance to increase their score. But in the meantime the White Sox were having all their gay feathers plucked off them by a bird of plain, not to say bourgeois, plumage, who never before in several seasons' career did anything to attract attention outside the minor circuits.

Both Good at Second.

F. Appendix Roth, who proved himself some second baseman in the absence of William Francis Isbell, cracked out the first of Chicago's three safeties in the opening round. It followed two outs and was wasted on the humid air. Walsh smashed a board off the fence in the third round with a two bagger, but was run to death on Hahn's bumplet to the pitcher. For the next five innings the world beaters went out three in a row as if Guese were their Indian sign instead of common barnyard fowl.

Not a man reached first until the ninth, when Smith opened the last half inning with a safe lob over Huber's head. Hahn sacrificed, but Jones and Roth struck out, and the joy of 400 Pelican rooters knew no bounds. They already are considering challenging the Logan Squares of Chicago for a real world's championship series.

François Isbell's bat was missed and Sullivan also was among those absent. Billy's youngest (and oldest) son was made sick by the change from a high and dry to a low and wet climate and demanded his attention.

Hart Trying to Make Good.

This left Hart to catch the entire game, and he achieved the fame of handling two of the wildest twirlers in the American league with success. Hart is trying for a regular position on the team to alternate with Sully this year, and the whole Sox outfit is rooting for him.

A small crowd present enabled Manager Frank to keep a small army of carpenters busy repairing the stands. With remarkable unanimity this hammer brigade knocked hard during all the intervals between innings, but kept dead silence while actual play was on. Needless to add, they were working by the hour and not by the job. Frank is expending much of his share of the receipts on carpenters' time cards.

Tomorrow's game is expected to be played to fairly empty benches on account of the superior attraction of the Crescent City Derby for the web footed fans, but with good weather on Sunday a big getaway crowd is looked for. The weather so far has been just what the Sox need, and they have been worked hard to get off flesh. One explanation given for the poor batting today was the fact that the Sox perspired so freely it blinded their eyes, coating all their lashes with melted lard.

Mexican Cigarets Almost Gone.

The supply of Mexican cigarets brought out of Montezumaland by the Sox has nearly disappeared and cigars now are replacing them. Jimmy Bardell has as much use for a cigaret as a bear has for a thimble. In fact, the professor expresses himself forcibly at times on the subject, one of his opinions being as follows: "The man who invented cigarets ought to be sentenced to six months in the Auditorium dining room with a muzzle on."

"Jiggs" Donohue, having sampled the advantages of Chicago as against Springfield, O., as a winter resort, has decided to become a citizen of Chicago permanently. Last winter he managed a roller skating rink. Next winter he plans to stay in the rolling business, but will turn his attention to billiard and pool balls instead of skates. He has plans under way to open a billiard room and cigar store at the corner of Thirty-ninth street and Indiana avenue as soon as the world's series is over. There will be no wet goods department connected with the place, he says. Score:

CUBS WIN IN HOT BATTLE.

BARONS PLAY DESPERATE GAME, BUT LOSE—SCORE 5 TO 1.

Last Contest at Birmingham Resembles World's Series Conflict — Noise, Color, and Chow Chow Effects Cause Bleacherite to Remove Shoes—Good Pitching by Brown and Fraser—Kling Must Report Within One Week or Be Traded.

BY CHARLES DRYDEN.

Birmingham, Ala., March 22.—[Special.]—In many ways the closing game with the Barons looked and listened like a world's series conflict. No cuff buttons or anything like that, but the noise, the color, and the chow chow effects were there. The Cubs won 5 to 1 and traveled on to Memphis for another whack at the Southern leaguers.

The Barons wanted one game in the series, and this was it. Vaughn hitched up Ragan and Clark, his two best conditioned pitchers, and the team made a desperate effort to clean out the Cubs. So hot was the battle that an inmate of the bleachers removed his shoes and exposed a pair of socks redder than anything Vaughn ever wore in the old days at Cincy. But Brown and Fraser were too vigorous, and the timely batting of the Cubs upset the program.

Fickle Folks Change Minds.

Brown walked the first two in the venture. A pass, a steal, a passed ball, and Lister's single scored a run, and the crowd pulled hard for the Barons. A squad of show people in the stand waved red Cub flags left over from last fall, sang some Cohan songs, and said the Barons were the hottest team in town. But when the northern pilgrims copped a couple in their half the fickle show folks switched and allowed the Cubs couldn't be stung in a thousand years, Greenwich time.

Both sides sassed the umpire and told him he resembled a second hand weinerwurst with mustard on it. Shows how bitter was the struggle. After Slagle and Sheckard had counted in the first on Gessler's single, following one pass and an error, the Barons stalled the Cubs until the seventh. Singles by Evers and Kahoe, Fraser's sacrifice, and Sheckard's smash to right sent in two more.

Nice Work by Sweeney.

In the eighth, with two out and Hofman on second, Evers rapped out his third safety and scored Arty. Randall also hit the ball hard and Sweeney shone in a couple of plays. He plucked a foul off the fence and made a swell stop and throw back of the bag. Seabaugh was not feeling well and he gave way to that gingery kid, Kahoe, in the second.

Brown gave a grand display of pitching. He allowed two hits, one of them a scratch, in five innings. Fraser had everything working his way. The first two stung him in the sixth, but Kahoe pegged the first one and the next two were easy. Pat Moran worked at the practice sessions morning and afternoon.

Kling to Report or Be Traded.

Manager Chance declared himself today in the Kling case.

"If I do not hear from him within a week," said the leader, "he will be traded. I have deals on for two young backstops, either one of whom will develop into a star in fast company. The way Kling has behaved the last three years in the matter of reports disgusts me. Kling is a grand catcher, but he isn't too good to be traded. The deals I have pending will be delayed one week to give him one more chance. If Kling does report and is not in condition to play the opening game I will keep his money until he is ready to work."

Brown Star in Mystery.

The urbane and gifted Mr. Brown starred last night in a sort of Sherlock Holmes mystery entitled "The Mangled Mitt; or, Making Good." He called at the registry department of the postoffice to claim a valuable letter and the clerk demanded identification.

"Sir," said the athlete, "I am three fingered Brown, the Terre Haute demon."

"What show are you with?" the clerk wanted to know.

"It isn't a circus," said Brown. "I'm a ball player, rehearsing here in your fair city with the Chicago Cubs." Mordecai thought a little aromatic salve like "your fair city" would fix the clerk, but it didn't.

"You must be identified, labeled, and tagged before you get the letter," said the cautious clerk. "Terre Haute is a long way from here and I never heard of any demon hailing from that place."

"Stung Again," Says Mordecai.

"Stung again! Can it be that I am slipping?" sighed Mordecai Brown. "Is it possible my fame has not penetrated to the pig iron belt of old Alabamy? Say, I'll fix this guy," Mordecai remarked to another unknown who was with him at the time. From his pocket he extracted a newspaper clipping that bore a life sized photo of his mangled mitt and a few lines of literature in big type giving the pedigree of the Terre Haute demon. He spread the clipping in front of the clerk and placed the hashed brown hand beside it.

"Look these things over," said the athlete, "and give me the net results of your hallucinations." Mordecai knew he had the goods, and it was up to him to use large words. The postoffice man gazed at the picture, then at the original hand, felt the stump and hook and knots, and then threw open the lid of the strong box.

"Take the letter, Mr. Brown," he said. "You are welcome to it. Won't you have a little mucilage or a couple of 1 cent stamps before you depart?"

Inspired by that generosity ever rampant in the truly great, the famous slinger declined to accept tribute from the United States postal authorities. "There are no bacteria on me," he said simply. "I've got the goods. That's all. Any bank in the country would pass me out $1,000,000 on that mitt, but what's the use? I couldn't pay storage on that much."

In order to lift their batting averages out of the 6⅔ per cent rut, common to most pitchers, the highly original and progressive Mr. F. Chance offers a cash bonus of 25 cents to each pitcher who makes a hit in the exhibition series. Like many great ideas this plan was evolved on the spur of the moment. When Taylor went to bat in the fourth inning yesterday, Chance threatened to give him a quarter if he bumped one on the piccolo. Jack placed a clean loud single over second base, and the hit made him money mad right on the spot.

Caught Trying to Collect.

After reaching first base Jack left the bag to collect the quarter, and the pitcher threw him out before he could slide back. Chance showed slight annoyance at the time, but he paid the bonus. Having no money concealed about his person "Husk" borrowed the coin from C. Williams. Charles put the item down in his little judgment book thus: "F. Chance, debtor, to C. Williams, 25 cents to pay for Taylor's base hit."

The bonus scheme is conducted on strictly business lines and one sordid weakness prominent in all great athletes, i. e.—lust for gold. Some of them will do anything for money, and Chance knows it. He says he would rather cough up a quarter any time than wheel out a Morris chair for the pitcher to sit in and fan the air when the bases are full. At such an epoch the leader says money is no object to him. He will pay a premium of 12½ cents to any pitcher making a sacrifice. A safe bunt calls for 25 cents, the same as the full grown single.

Hurlers Bewail Lateness of Offer.

There is some dissatisfaction among the hurling staff because Chance did not spring the bonus earlier in the season. Jack Pfiester could not use a quarter if he had one. The pretzel copped out a safety at New Orleans, and the dope says he won't make another between now and October. Fraser beat a bunt at Mobile and should have something coming in after years of going out. However, Taylor split his bonus with the chicken, and the grumbling isn't so fierce as it might be. Brown is out just 67½ cents on the trip, and Perdue and Durbin are shy two bits apiece, all on account of the belated bonus.

It isn't for us to criticise Chance or tell him when to begin spending his money. Neither do we care to stir up strife among the pitchers. At the same time the public should know that the malcontents are asking why a quarter or 12½ cents wouldn't do them as much good as it does Jack Taylor. He doesn't need the money, this bloated plutocrat, who owns a white brick building, one delirium tremens store, and two setter dogs at Nelsonville, O. Today's score:

Polite Personal Mention.

After looking him over Mike Kahoe opines that Durbin has all the ingredients of another Jess Tannehill. Thus far the youngster lacks only in one respect. He has no red flannel undershirt.

Another advance in the price of pale blue chalk may shatter Johnny Kling's determination to retire forever from baseball and devote all his time to far more remunerative private enterprises, etc., etc., etc.

Manager Vaughn of the Barons is a sad example of asleep at the switch. Four years ago he could have bought the ballyard site for $2,500. Today the price is $40,000, and the best Harry can get is 15 minute options on the grounds.

Last night Moran gave a nasal demonstration to his teammates showing how the injured nose works. The air intake on the starboard side is weak and fluctuating, while the port exhaust is stopped up. Being a specialist in that line Pfiester offered to break Moran's nose over again and do it right. If Pat is in doubt he might write to Mr. E. Hahn for a testimonial.

Umpire Sheridan Is Fined.

St. Louis, Mo., March 22.—[Special.]—Jack Sheridan, the American league umpire, was fined $3 today in Judge Tracy's court for having fallen from grace last night in the Laclede hotel. Sheridan promised to be good and Judge Tracy, who is a baseball enthusiast, stayed the fine.

SCHOOL SWIMMERS IN CONTEST

University and Evanston High Teams Make Good Records at Bartlett Gymnasium Pool.

In conjunction with the Chicago-Wisconsin meet the swimming teams of the University High and Evanston High held a dual meet in which four high school records for the pool were broken. The University High boys won the match by a score of 32 to 18.

Wampler, a member of the C. A. A., heaped up new honors by lowering the 100 yard mark from 1:12 to 1:08 2-5. This surpassed even the natatorium record of 1:08 4-5 made by Bornaman of the C. A. A.

Quayle of the University High team also did some remarkable work in clipping a whole second off the mark of :23 for the 40 yard swim match by Wampler last year. Quayle's mark was a whole second better than the pool record.

Lasker of Evanston added over a yard to the record in the plunge for distance, going 54 feet 6 inches. The other record broken was in the team race, which was won by University High in 1:36 1-5, just six seconds better than the mark of Oak Park. Summaries:

100 yard swim—Won by Wampler, University High; Quayle, University High, second; Griffin, Evanston, third. Time, 1:08 2-5 [new record].

40 yard swim—Won by Quayle, University High; Griffin, Evanston, second; Whyte, University High, third. Time, :22 [new record].

Plunge for distance—Won by Lasker, Evanston; Quayle, University High, second; Stanwood, Evanston, third. Distance, 54 feet 6 inches.

40 yard breast stroke—Won by Wampler, University High school; Harper, Evanston, second; Griffin, Evanston, third. Time, :28 4-5.

220 yard swim—Won by Wampler, University High; Griffin, Evanston, second; Stanwood, Evanston, third. Time, 2:55 4-5.

Team race—Won by University High. Time, 1:36 1-5 (new record).

Reach Semi-Finals in Checkers.

Boston, Mass., March 22.—A victory each for C. F. Barker of Boston and H. V. Reynolds of Syracuse marked the play in the national checkers tournament. They meet tomorrow, and the winner will play H. J. Heffner of this city for the championship.

JIMMY BURNS IS WINNER.

SECURES DECISION OVER CHARLEY NEARY AT MILWAUKEE.

Ten Round Battle Demonstrates the Brewery City Fighter Is Not Strong Enough for Opponent, Who Beats Him from Bell to Bell—Only Knockdown Scored in Second Session, When Visiting Boxer Takes Count of Nine.

[BY GEORGE SILER.]

Milwaukee, Wis., March 22.—[Special.]—Jimmy Burns' two round victory over Charley Neary at Los Angeles last November may have been a fluke, but his ten round victory over Charley at Schlitz's park tonight was not, as he beat the Cream city boxer from bell to bell.

Only in one spot in the road did Neary give his admirers hope. That was near the end of the second round, when he upset Jimmy with a fierce volley. Burns took all the time that was coming to him, but he could have resumed at the count of five, as he was not dazed. In fact, he edged close to the referee to catch the count, as the noise drowned the official's voice. The blow aroused intense enthusiasm, and as the boys were fighting under full steam the crowd looked for the termination of the contest by a knockout.

Neary Fights Hard.

That was the only round in which Neary appeared to have a chance, though he fought like a demon in the last session. He seemed woefully shy on action, especially in leading, and his noted rough work in clinches, work that has won him many a fight, was not in evidence. He entered the ring with a plaster stuck on his left eyebrow, covering an old sore, and as Burns made play for that spot early in the fray and kept it bleeding profusely throughout the battle, it undoubtedly hampered him, but not enough, however, to completely tie him up. He made a grand rally in the final round and brought cheers from his admirers, but the time limit was too short and the margin he had to overcome too large.

Burns, on the other hand, surprised the 300 Chicagoans who occupied seats at the ringside by the manner in which he deported himself. He had forsaken his old wild and woolly hit or miss method of milling and replaced it with accurate hard left hand punches—not jabs, but effective punches. He also used fairly accurate right hand wallops, particularly first class right uppercuts. His left leads, however, were the most damaging. They went plumb to the spot intended and invariably shook up Neary.

It was Burns' effective left that started the blood spurting from Charley's mouth, nose, and bad eye early in the fray. This piston rod left gave Neary the appearance of a stuck pig at the end of the battle. It really was a one sided affair. If a tab had been kept on the number of blows landed by each man the score undoubtedly would have shown 6 to 1 at least in favor of Jimmy. The verdict was received without a murmur.

Burns began by pumping straight lefts on Charley's frontispiece. Burns continued administering his doses in the second session and forced the milling, presumably thinking of his previous two round victory. Just as it looked to be all over Charley swung a left and right and down went Jimmy.

After that period Charley acted the roll of receiver general. He sustained his reputation for gameness and capacity for punishment.

In the semi-final Eddie Greenwold of this city was given a decision over Earl Demming of Chicago in eight rounds.

Big Offer for Gans and Nelson.

San Francisco, Cal., March 22.—[Special.]—Eddie Graney has offered a purse of $35,000 for Joe Gans and Batling Nelson to fight for on July 4. Graney has posted $10,000 as an evidence that the offer is bona fide. Billy Nolan, Nelson's manager, demands that Gans weigh in at the ringside in fighting togs at 133 pounds.

Fighter Dislocates Hip in Bout.

Dayton, O., March 22.—[Special.]—Fast and furious fighting characterized the seven rounds of a scheduled twenty round contest here tonight between Jimmie Dunn of Newcastle, Pa., and Walter Eicher of this city. In an accident in the seventh round Eicher's left hip was dislocated and the decision was given to Dunn.

Farmer Defeats Bezenah.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 22.—[Special.]—"Original Kid" Farmer won the decision over Eugene Bezenah tonight after twenty rounds of tame fighting. Marvin Hart and Peter Maher are matched to fight twenty rounds next month.

Bronson Defeats Mike Bartley.

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 22.—[Special.]—Ray Bronson of Indianapolis was awarded the decision over Mike Bartley in ten rounds tonight.

RHODES PUPILS HELP OXFORD.

Young and Stevens Win Three Firsts Against Cambridge in Annual Field Sports.

LONDON, March 22.—Oxford won the annual athletic clash with Cambridge today at the Queen's club by 8½ points to 1½ points, largely through the work of American athletes, Cambridge scoring only in the hurdles and gaining its half point by tying in the hundred.

The field sports were made interesting by the competition of seven Rhodes scholars, all of them prominent athletes in their college days in the United States.

Of these, P. M. Young of South Dakota took the running broad jump with 22 feet 4 inches and the high jump with 5 feet 8½ inches, repeating his successes of a year ago, while Albert M. Stevens of Yale was first in the hammer throw, an event in which he excelled in the 1906 Oxford-Cambridge games. W. E. Schutt of Cornell did not do as well in the half as he did a year ago, running third this time, as compared with second in 1906.

Other Oxford firsts were scored in the weight, half, mile, quarter, and three mile runs.

Ten Inning Game in Texas.

Norman, Okla., March 22.—[Special.]—In a ten inning baseball game Oklahoma university beat Epworth college of Oklahoma City, 1 to 0.

BOWLING LEADERS TIED IN SINGLES.

M. Levey, Indianapolis, Draws Even with R. Matak of St. Paul in St. Louis Meet.

OHIO PAIR ROLLS WELL.

J. Hubbard of Cleveland Is Overcome by Heat and Carried from Alleys.

St. Louis, Mo., March 22.—[Special.]—Leaders in the minor events of the national bowling championship were threatened today.

In the singles Marshall Levey of Indianapolis succeeded in getting on even terms with yesterday's leader, R. F. Matak, with a score of 624, the men being tied for the championship. J. Knoll and C. Prouty of Cleveland rolled into second place in the doubles with a score of 1,156, pulling up there by effective shooting in their last game.

Ninety degree weather prevailed on the streets all day, and most of the men who bowled came off the alleys dripping with perspiration. One contestant, Joe Hubbard, of the Krumhars of Cleveland, was stricken with the heat while shooting his last game and was carried from the runways to an ambulance. His prostration came too late to affect the work of the other bowlers.

Chicago Players Roll.

A heavy list of Chicago players went on in all three events, former City Champion George Rost and Henry Strassheim getting the best mark in the doubles of the Garden City men with 1,108. Ernie Schneider got the best score of the Chicagoans in the singles with 570, City Champion James E. Hartwell being next with 560. Levey's series was a combination of hard luck and nervousness, a couple of single pin misses coming to him in the first game, while on his last shot, when a strike would have given him a good margin, he left up with the big four.

Chicago Teams Fail.

No change occurred in the standing of the five men team leaders by the play in the first squad. The best work in the squad was accomplished by the Crescents of Kansas City "(Kid" Nichols' team), which rolled 2,620, the Braddocks of Braddock, Pa., being second with 2,579. Of the Chicago teams the Baulers' Stars No. 2 did the best work with 2,560, the Gunthers and Baulers' Stars No. 4 falling down miserably on account of railroads.

SEMI-FINAL TRACK MEET TODAY.

Twelve High Schools in the Competition to Be Held at Bartlett Gymnasium.

Twelve local high schools will meet this afternoon at Bartlett gymnasium in the semi-final track meet of the Cook County High School league. Fifty-three athletes in all will take part. Apparently a more evenly matched battle has never been slated.

In the pole vault Rogers of North Division is the favorite. The 220 yard dash is expected to develop into the hardest battle of the meet, with Lipski of Crane, Morris of University High, Kuhn of Wendell Phillips, and Stelt of Englewood, all good men, on the list. Morris and Kuhn seem to have a slight advantage. In the fifty both Menaul of Englewood and Wampler of University High are picked as winners. Menaul has qualified for four events, and in all of them he is expected to place. Barry of Wendell Phillips is considered a strong contender in the fifty yard low hurdles.

Stratton of Hyde Park undoubtedly will take first in the mile and half mile. The blue and white runner was defeated in the first preliminary by Coleman of Englewood, but most of the fans think Stratton was overconfident. However, Lawrence of University High is thought to have a chance in the mile. Wallace of North Division and Bruton of Crane are strong candidates for the quarter mile. Wallace probably is the best boy at the distance in the league with the exception of Reilly of Wendell Phillips. Haskins of Crane is looked upon as probable winner of the shot, having only Menaul as a close opponent.

MONTGOMERY FAVORITE FOR THE CRESCENT CITY DERBY.

Regulars at New Orleans, However, Doubt Ability of Memphis Colt to Win Today's Stake Race.

New Orleans, La., March 22.—[Special.]—In the official entries for the Crescent City Derby tomorrow there are an even dozen named, and from this lot there should be drawn a field of eight or possibly ten horses. The following table gives the list of probable starters, with their weights, possible jockeys, and the prices likely to be quoted against them:

Montgomery, 117 [Shilling]	7 to 5
Temaceo, 122 [Lloyd]	15 to 1
Halbard, 114 [J. Lee]	50 to 1
*Sir Toddington, 117 [Nicol]	5 to 1
†Gargantua, 110 [Lowe]	40 to 1
*Morales, 117 [Troxler]	15 to 1
*Mortiboy, 117 [Hogg]	40 to 1
*Judge Post, 114 [J. Hennessy]	5 to 1
‡Pink Star, 117 [D. Austin]	15 to 1
†Fantastic, 117 [Walker]	40 to 1
Yankee Girl, 117 [Mountain]	2 to 1
Tileing, 117 [Garner]	10 to 1

*Burlew & O'Neil entry. †Goldblatt entry. ‡Fizer & Woodford entry.

The horses are given in the order in which they will line up at the barrier, the post positions having been drawn this morning.

The Crescent City Jockey club guarantees the value of the race to be $10,000.

Montgomery has been given a long, careful preparation at Montgomery park and is said by good judges to be thoroughly fit, but the rank and file of the regulars who have witnessed many Crescent City Derbies remember that in almost every Derby run at the old track a prominent candidate trained at Memphis was shipped here to race, and only in two instances was such a method successful. Those were the cases of the good horses Meadowthorpe and Presbyterian. None seems to doubt Montgomery's class, but there is the question as to his fitness and because of this the local candidates are likely to attract a greater following.

The B. & O. combination does not express so much confidence as it did a week ago before the City Park Derby. It is not expected Judge Post will start and the stable will have to depend upon Sir Toddington. This colt ran a splendid second to Yankee Girl in the other Derby, and the distance is a furlong shorter. Yankee Girl also takes up five pounds since their last meeting.

Temaceo ran a good race at City park just a few days after his long trip from California and some of the smart ones declare he will improve enough to be a factor in this Derby.

Fencer Grebe of Central Y. M. C. A. will not be a contestant in the national dueling sword championships at New York next month. Central will be represented at the eastern meeting by Eckhart, Stone and Sauer, who will accompany Camille Waldbott.

U. OF C. FIVE WINS IN GOOD CONTEST.

Shows Form Reversal in A. A. U. Basketball Games; Beats N. W. College.

POINTS ON TRICK PLAYS.

Chicago Meteors Trim Hull House, 25 to 20; Victory for West Side.

The University of Chicago team showed a reversal of form in the game with Northwestern college in the A. A. U. basketball championship yesterday, defeating the fast Naperville quintent, 50 to 17. The boys from the Northwest showed skill in passing, and for the first ten minutes looked like a "real" team, but the excellent passing and trick plays of the Midwayites soon put them out of the running.

The college exponents of Dr. Naismith's game played hard in the first period and the maroons scored only 21 points to their 10. As usual, "Pat" Page was in the game. Undoubtedly Pat is in a class alone as a guard for his aggressiveness and ability to cover ground has not been equaled by any other player in the tournament. Falls, McKeag, and Schommer also worked scores of triple passes which made their opponents' heads swim. The lanky center hit the dip net eight times, most of them from a distance. McKeag's free tossing was remarkably accurate. Lineup:

Chicago [50].		Northwestern [17].
Falls	Right forward	Schroeder
Schommer	Center	Schneller

Field goals—McKeag [4], Falls [6], Schommer [8], Shauver [2], Schneller [1], Krug [1], Lipp [1]. Free throws—McKeag [14], Krug [6]. Points awarded—Northwestern, 1.

Meteors Beat Hull House.

Chicago Meteors defeated the Hull house aggregation by a score of 25 to 20 in the roughest game of the tournament. Harris mixed with Wolfe in the second half and both men were ordered off the floor by Referee Byrne. The first half ended with 11 points each. In the second half the Meteors used better team work. Palmer was the individual star. Harris was away off color in his free tosses. Labow and Wolfe played well for Hull house. Lineup:

Chicago Meteors [25].		Hull House [20].
Dowse	Right forward	Labow
Palmer	Center	Olis
Hartman	Right guard	Wolfe, Ribback

Field goals—Dowse, Huber [2], Palmer [4], Labow, Olis, Wolf [3]. Free throws—Harris [9], Dowse, Labow [9]. Points awarded—Meteors, 1; Hull House, 1.

West Side Y. M. C. A. Team Winner.

The West Side Y. M. C. A.-Evanston Y. M. C. A. game was won by the former, 20 to 7. Both teams played a close, defensive game. West Side had the better team work, the playing of Touzalin and Schmidt being spectacular. In the second half Touzalin took Tatch's place, and he seemed to put more confidence in his teammates. Lineup:

West Side [20].		Evanston [7].
Tatch, Touzalin	Right forward	Scripps
McGill	Left forward	Lanke
Reddington	Center	Plochman
Schmidt	Left guard	Owens
Mitchell	Right guard	Edward Winter

Field goals—McGill, Touzalin [2], Reddington, Schmidt, Winter, Owens. Free throws—Tatch [8], Touzalin, Owens [3]. Points awarded—West Side, 1. Referee—Byrne. Umpire—Dean. Time of halves—20 minutes.

Central Five Trims Hawkeyes.

Central Y. M. C. A., playing a perfect game, defeated the Muscatine, Iowa, soldier five, 32 to 19. Unlike the game with the Muscatine Y. M. C. A., in the preliminaries, the La Salle street boys showed more aggressiveness and better team work. In the first half the score was a tie, 13 to 13.

Wolpe, the little Central forward, played a fine game, scoring three goals from difficult angles in the first period. The short passes used by the Hawkeyes, although pretty and at times spectacular, netted them nothing, for they could not advance the ball fast enough to put them in throwing range of the baskets. Reinke was poor on free throws in the first half, making only four out of 11. The soldiers were played off their feet in the second half. Lange, the husky German center for Central, succeeded in putting the ball in the basket twice from jumps.

Kautz was the only soldier to score in the second half, making one field goal and two free tosses. Lineup:

Central Y. M. C. A. [32].		Co. C, Muscatine [19].
Reinke	Right forward	Kautz

AQUATIC VICTORY FOR MAROONS

Badger Swimmers Fail to Score a Point in Matches with University of Chicago.

Collegiate swimming honors of the middle west were captured by the University of Chicago team at Bartlett gymnasium last night. Capt. Rhode and his maroons swept the boards clean with the University of Wisconsin athletes by winning every event. The score was 9 to 0.

The Badgers were no match for the Midway swimmers. There was not a single event in which they had a chance to win. From the short dash to the water polo game they were ducked consistently.

Paul Harper, son of the late President Harper, was the hero of the meet. He won his two special events, the forty and the sixty yard swims, and in addition swam the last leg of the relay race in easy style.

One pool record was tied in the course of the meet. Solomon of Chicago, in the plunge for distance, went the entire length of the tank, sixty feet, and probably might have gone a foot further if he had not been stopped by the end of the tank. As it was he required only 53 seconds to go the distance.

Wisconsin was expected to put up its strongest fight in the water polo game, which counted three points. The maroons, however, played on the defensive only twice during the twelve minutes of play, and both of these occasions were the results of fouling. The Badgers were heavy and strong but slow and easy to fool. The final score of the polo match was 7 to 0. Summaries:

100 yard swim—Won by Walker, Chicago; Baumbach, Wisconsin, second. Time, 1:19 2-5.

40 yard swim—Won by Harper, Chicago; Wahlrob, Wisconsin, second; Zeidhack, Wisconsin, third. Time, :23 3-5.

Plunge for distance—Won by Solomon, Chicago; Zeidehack, Wisconsin, second; Heise, Wisconsin, third. Distance, 60 feet.

60 yard swim—Won by Harper, Chicago; Heise, Wisconsin, second. Time, :42 4-5.

Polo game (counting three points):

Schott	Right forward	Wahlrob
Princell, Walker	Left forward	Coerper
Rhode	Center	Heise
Solomon	Right guard	Curtis
Goes	Goal	Stathas

Goals—Rhode [3], Goes [2], Solomon [2]. Referee—Laughlin. Time of halves—Eight minutes and four minutes.

Team race—Won by Chicago (Morse, Walker, Goes, Harper). Time—1:40 3-5.

JURORS DIFFICULT TO FIND.

Few Veniremen Summoned for Bank of America Trial Have Sufficient Knowledge of Business Methods.

Lawyers engaged in the trial of former Judge Abner Smith and other officers of the defunct Bank of America are having difficulty in finding men to serve as jurors who have intelligent knowledge of the banking business.

Fifty veniremen were examined yesterday, but nearly all were rejected because of lack of educational qualification. So far only eight jurors have been accepted. Two selected in the afternoon are A. Rumble, 6319 Kimbark avenue, and Thomas H. Carson, 3721 Langley avenue.

"We have had men summoned here as jurors who did not understand anything about business methods," said Assistant State's Attorney Young. "Some of them were sincere and tried to qualify as jurors, but on examination it developed that they did not know the meaning of the most simple words. Of course, such men would not do as jurors in a case of this kind where all sorts of technicalities are bound to arise."

NEW SLUMP IN STOCK LIST

FALL IN ERIES FEATURE OF DROOP IN QUOTATIONS.

Fears as to Legislative Steps Against Company Factor in Causing Drop—Canadian Pacific and Other Shares Also Affected by Decline—Financial Status of Bank of France Basis for More or Less Uncertainty in Wall Street Circles.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, March 22.—Stocks closed weak today, the break in Erie being a feature of the day. The aggravating cause of the weakness of the Eries was, clearly enough, the announcement of the management to abandon projected betterments in the state of New York from fear of the interference with the intended methods of financing the work by the proposed state legislation for control of public utilities. The bears, in fact, operated in the securities of the company freely and boldly. They were not opposed, however, by any protective measures for the securities.

The Morgan group was especially affected when the entire lack of support in the Eries was perceived. The weakness spread to Southern railway and to the whole Southern railroad group. The Hills and Harrimans also were acutely affected and had the usual effect in dragging down St. Paul, Atchison, and Reading. United States Steel was heavily sold, but on a narrower price range than the low priced shares.

The effect of the advance in the Bank of France rate was heightened by reports from Paris that a further rise was expected next week. The action is directed against a movement of gold to London, and also to Berlin. Its special interest to New York is that payment for participation in note issues of American railroads are supposed to be involved in both these movements.

Estimates of the week's currency movement indicate an increase of upwards of $6,000,000 in cash holdings of the banks. A strong bank statement is thus indicated. The break in Eries was aggravated by the slump in Canadian Pacific.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $1,792,000. United States 2s registered declined ¼, the old 4s ⅛, and the new 4s ¼ per cent on call.

Money on call firm, 4½@4¾ per cent; ruling rate, 4½ per cent; closing bid 4½ per cent, offered at 4¾ per cent. Time loans strong; sixty days, 6½ per cent, and ninety days, 6@6½ per cent; six months, 6 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 6@6¼ per cent. Sterling exchange strong, with actual business in bankers' bills at 483.55@483.60 for demand and at 479@479.05 for sixty day bills; posted rates, 480@480½ and 484½@485; commercial bills, 478⅝. Bar silver, 66½c. Mexican dollars, 51⅝c. Government bonds irregular; railroad bonds irregular.

DISTILLERS MAY PAY MORE.

Directors of Securities Company to Take Action Tuesday on Question of Raising Dividend Rate to 6 Per Cent.

NEW YORK, March 22.—[Special.]—On Tuesday next the directors of the Distillers' Securities company will hold a meeting at which action will be taken upon the dividend question. There have been rumors in the street for some time to the effect that the dividend would be increased from the present 5 per cent per annum rate to 6 per cent. Interests closely identified with the company admit that there has been some talk of such an increase and say they would not be surprised if directors take favorable action on it. The earnings of the company are large and steadily increasing.

Swindler Gets Long Sentence.

Laporte, Ind., March 22.—Edward Nathan Weil, alias E. N. Wilson, one of the cleverest swindlers and forgers ever captured in Indiana, was today sentenced to serve an indeterminate term of two to fourteen years in the Indiana state prison and was fined $1,000 for passing forged checks, to which he had signed the name of Marcus Heuoch, a wealthy merchant here.

The Value and Importance of Ethical Remedies.

Remedies which physicians sanction for family use, as they act most beneficially and are gentle yet prompt in effect, and called ethical, because they are of Known Excellence and Quality and of Known Component Parts.

To gain the full confidence of the Well-Informed of the world and the approval of the most eminent physicians, it is essential that the component parts be known to and approved by them, and, therefore, the California Fig Syrup Company has published for many years past in its advertisements and upon every package a full statement thereof. The perfect purity and uniformity of product which they demand in a laxative remedy of an ethical character are assured by the California Fig Syrup Company's original method of manufacture, known to the Company only.

There are other ethical remedies approved by physicians, but the product of the California Fig Syrup Company possesses the advantage over all other family laxatives that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts, without disturbing the natural functions or any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of Syrup of Figs, and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtlessly it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs; and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for Syrup of Figs, or by the full name, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, as Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company, and the same heretofore known by the name, Syrup of Figs, which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading druggists throughout the United States in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.

"BUGS" BUILD FOR BULLS

INSECTS IN KANSAS STIR WHEAT SHORTS TO COVERING.

Late Buying on Reported Invasion of Banner State Gives Values Quick Upturn—Export Business Improves—Argentine Shipments Are Again Heavy—Corn and Oats Recover Part of Sharp Losses—Hog Products Score Modest Advances.

"Green bugs" were the basis of interest in the wheat market yesterday, and while reports as to the seriousness of their operations in the southwest were conflicting late advices from Kansas and Oklahoma were of a sort to stir up considerable uneasiness among the shorts. As a result of snappy covering in the last few minutes of the session prices were given a good lift, final quotations showing net advances of ⅝c for May, ⅝c for July, and ¼c for September. From a short time after the opening until the shorts became active on the buying side near the close easiness characterized operations, realizing by scattered longs and selling by northwestern interests being indulged in freely, aggregate pressure being too much for the support. The May covered the widest range, moving within the limits of a cent.

Heaviness overhung the coarser grains, although there was some recovery from the lowest prices of the day. Provisions, a little weaker early, reached the final bell with modest gains.

Weather Southwest Favors the Bulls.

Early firmness in the wheat market was based on continued hot and dry weather in the southwest, where high winds also prevailed, and on a more generous outlay of "bug" damage reports from Oklahoma and Kansas. A bulge of about ⅝c, however, brought big offerings of grain from northwestern speculative bears and elevator interests, and local longs, who had profits in sight. Offerings lessened on the weaker spots, and there was enough scattered buying to cause a partial reaction. When the late advices came from Kansas, where the "bugs" were said to be plentiful in Harper, Sumner, and Cowley counties, shorts were forced to bid up the market in order to get what they wanted. Aside from the covering there was good support from some of the big private wire houses.

Liverpool failed to reflect the strength developed here late the day before, being influenced more by the unexpectedly heavy weekly exports from Argentina—4,632,000 bu, the second largest on record, and 632,000 bu in excess of the estimate. The movement both northwest and southwest continued much larger than that of a year ago, total primary receipts being 579,000 bu, or 163,000 bu more than those of the corresponding day in 1906. Duluth and Minneapolis reported 404 cars received, compared to 288 cars last year. Stocks of wheat for the week at Minneapolis showed an increase of 675,000 bu and the trade in general was keyed up in bearishness by the expectation of a big gain in the visible supply. Seaboard clearances were 390,000 bu. On top of these influences were more favorable reports on crop conditions in Michigan and Indiana, where recent rains were said to have worked material benefit to the growing plant.

Improved Export Trade Reported.

Reports as to the export demand were contradictory, some being that there was but little change in the situation, while others had it that considerable new business had been worked, with Germany a bidder for durum. Some of the late buying by shorts evidently was prompted by a Baltimore message to the effect that a big lot of red winter had been sold to Europe, and numerous sales of Manitoba to the foreigners were reported late in the session. The week's clearances of wheat and flour were the equivalent of 1,800,000 bu, compared to 2,080,000 bu last week, and 2,293,000 bu last year. Locally there was a good inquiry for choice spring at the cash table, but the poorer grade dragged at easier values. Budapest scored a sharp advance for the day. The Modern Miller's view of the general domestic crop situation was in keeping with the belief of most traders. Closing prices for wheat were 76¼c for May, 77⅝@77¾c for July, and 78⅜c for September.

Weakness Prevails in Corn Market.

Pronounced weakness developed in the corn market soon after the opening, prices declining about a cent from the previous close under selling by brokers supposedly acting for big long interests. Men prominent in the provision trade also put their hands to the hammer. The sick condition of the cash market had a depressing effect on the futures, support to which was frail and scattered until late in the session, when there was a livening up on the buying side in sympathy with the turn of the tide in wheat. Mild weather prevailed all over the west, and this, while some figured that it would result in cutting down the movement from the farms, is making it difficult to handle the grain. The east showed little interest in the western markets, many of which reported samples tables filled with corn, with buyers few and far between. The southwest sent word that it had large supplies on hand.

Local arrivals aggregated 374 cars, none of which graded contract, well under the expected number, with 381 cars estimated for today. Total primary arrivals were 825,000 bu, or almost twice as much as those of a year ago. Liverpool closed ⅛@¼d lower. The week's exports from Argentina were 40,000 bu, the estimate, against 98,000 bu a year ago. Seaboard clearances were light, at 224,000 bu. The week's clearances from this country totaled 2,500,000 bu, compared to 1,998,000 bu last week, and 3,173,000 bu last year. Final prices were 46c for May, 45⅝c for July, and 46⅛c for September, declines of ⅜@⅝c, ½c, and ½c respectively.

Oats—Cash and Futures—Lower.

Faintly firmer at the start, the oats market duplicated the performance of corn, the more active futures selling sharply lower and partially recovering losses late. Principal pressure came from longs, who were prompted in selling by the expectation of larger shipments from the country within the next fortnight or three weeks. The day's arrivals—225 cars—fell 16 cars under the amount expected, the estimate for today being 234 cars. Pronounced weakness developed at the cash tables, the continued car congestion, with the attendant inability to promise prompt shipment, keeping prospective buyers out of the market. Seaboard clearances were 5,000 bu. Final prices were 41⅝@41¾c for May, ¼@⅜c lower; 36⅞@37c for July, ⅜@¼c weaker, and 32⅛@32⅜c for September, 1-16c easier.

Provision List Closes Firmer.

Liberal receipts of hogs at western points—70,700, against 67,500 a year ago—and a break in prices at the stockyards worked for easiness in early provision market. As the session progressed, however, prices took on firmness, those at the close showing net advances of 2½@7½c for lard and 2½@5c for ribs, pork being unchanged to 2½c higher. Principal support came from shorts, whose sentiment was affected by reports of a materially better demand for the cash products. The best prices witnessed considerable realizing by scattered longs.

Rye Market Rules Steady.

Rye ruled steady and quiet. Receipts were 7 cars with 4 cars estimated for today. No. 2 sold at 69c and was quoted 68@69c. No. 3 was quoted 58@63c; No. 4, 48@58c. March was offered at 66c and May at 68c.

Malting barley was higher, but other grades were dull and a shade easier. Feed was quoted 55@59c; malting, 64@72c; screenings, 34@56c. Receipts were 40 cars.

There was another decline of 1c in flaxseed prices in sympathy with outside markets. No. 1 northwestern was quoted $1.22, and No. 1, $1.16. Receipts were 61 cars at Minneapolis and 24 cars at Duluth.

Timothy seed was steady. March was quoted $4.45; September, $4.50; country lots, $3.00@4.00. Clover seed was unchanged at $14.75 for March and $10.50@14.00 for cash lots.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

"Green bugs" again had the center of the stage yesterday, reports from Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas increasing in number as the session progressed. Some of the leading houses which have professed to take but little stock in the reports so far were among the best buyers of wheat throughout the day. Early reports from H. S. Williams, who is out for Gardner-Paddleford at Arkansas City, said that "bugs" in that vicinity were doing a great deal of damage and that hot winds appeared to have no effect on them other than to spread them. Later Shearson-Hammill received the first "bug" news they have received from their Kansas City man. He wired that the "bugs" had taken all of the wheat in the vicinity of Tankawa, Sumner county. He also forwarded a message from Anthony, Kas., saying that the "bug" was prevalent in Harper, Sumner, and Cowley counties, Kansas, and claimed that there was some damage at Winfield and a good deal at Arkansas City. The Bartlett house also had a message from Kansas City similar to the one received by Shearson-Hammill, with the addition that it came from a person who had denied the "bugs" a week ago. Houston, Fible & Co. of Kansas City wired: "Hot weather and high winds are giving the southwest wheat country a bad turn. What the result will be is not known yet, but it is just the season of the year in which wheat has been badly hurt heretofore." There were many reports reiterating damage in Texas and Oklahoma, but the trade took more notice of the Kansas messages.

"Chicago's cash grain trade prospects have vastly improved during the last few months," said H. H. Carr. "The stopping of rebates by railroads to 'line' and large terminal elevator companies places every country shipper on an equal basis with every other shipper. This, together with the government's attitude of regulating railways on interstate business, the interstate commerce commission being delegater greater powers by congress, the action of state legislatures in passing laws compelling railroads to furnish every intending shipper with equal facilities for shipping without undue delay, tending to evolve the far reaching improvement which has taken place. The change which affects Illinois grain shippers most, however, is that of giving nearly every station in Illinois—on and after April 1—the benefit of their proportion of the through rates to the seaboard, via Chicago, thus giving them the benefit of shipping east via Chicago as cheaply as can be done through any of the other gateways out of the state via any of the east and west cross state lines. When shipping via Chicago, shippers secure the advantages of state inspection, official sampling, official board of trade weights, prompt transference or unloading, and a big, broad market which is especially advantageous on low grades of grain. Last, but not least, much quicker returns are possible when shipping to Chicago than when sending to eastern markets."

The cash wheat trade here was quiet, but outside points reported considerable business. Local sales were confined to about 15,000 bu, mixed lots. Kansas City cash prices ruled firm, and St. Louis reported sales of 25,000 bu No. 2 red to go to southwestern millers, and 100,000 bu No. 2 hard for direct export. Minneapolis wired that there was a much better demand for No. 1 northern at slightly higher premiums, this grade being quoted at 2@2¼c over May. The flour business both here and at Minneapolis is said to be improving on domestic trade. Baltimore sold 100,000 bu No. 2 red for export. The seaboard also reported a few loads of Manitobas and some durum worked. A New York message said that there was a better inquiry for gulf No. 2 hard from the continent, but that offers had dried up. The demand for No. 2 red was said to be poor, there being some lots afloat which cannot be sold, although on cheap ocean freight and much below market. The united kingdom inquiry is quiet. Cash corn and oats here were exceedingly weak, corn being ⅜@2c lower and oats ½@1½c off. Buyers were holding off from the market. No. 2 corn was offered for sale at ½c under May in store. Local sales were 15,000 bu wheat, 50,000 bu corn, and 175,000 bu oats. The seaboard reported sales in all positions of 200,000 bu wheat and 85,000 bu corn.

Commission houses and outside bulls were the best buyers of wheat early, but profit taking and selling of July by Updike and Clement-Curtis offset this buying and induced a lower range of values. Logan, Dickinson, Peavey, and Knight-McDougal also sold moderately early. On the decline from 76c for May Barlett-Frazier, Pringle, Daggett, S. B. Chapin, and scattered commission houses bought. The pit sold early, but later was in a scramble for the limited offerings. Knight-McDougal, Bartlett-Frazier, Lake, and Wagner were the best sellers of corn early. The Northern Grain bought on a scale down, and towards the close Bartlett-Frazier and Wagner turned buyers of July. The Northern Grain, Knight-McDougal, and Buckley were on the buying side of oats. A. S. White and Wells sold. John Cudahy was the best early buyer of provisions, and there was good buying of lard by exporters. The pit trade was on the buying side early, but later sold.

The Modern Miller weekly crop summary said: "Reports from the sections infected by green bugs show serious damage to the wheat crop in Texas and Indian Territory, but no damage of consequence in Oklahoma or the southern counties of Kansas. An Oklahoma miller telegraphs that bugs are working in the field, another that hot winds are killing the bugs. Several millers report exceedingly high temperatures accompanied by dry, high winds. Complaints of poor crop prospects continue from Michigan and northern Indiana and Ohio. Elsewhere prospects are favorable, especially in Kansas and Nebraska."

Sales on the call were: Corn—No. 3 yellow, March, 1 car at 42½c billed through; No. 3, April, 10,000 bu at 44½c proportional; No. 3 yellow, April, 5,000 bu at 44½c track Chicago; No. 3, May, 11,500 bu at 45c track Chicago. Oats—Standard, May, 15,000 bu at 42½c, 10,000 bu at 42½c proportional; standard, April, 5,000 bu at 42½c, 15,000 bu at 42⅝c Illinois proportional.

Closing prices for wheat in foreign markets were: Liverpool, unchanged to ⅛d lower for futures, ⅛d off to ¼d up for spot; Paris, ½@1c lower; Antwerp, unchanged to ⅝c up; Berlin, unchanged, and Budapest, 1⅝c higher.

Captain Phillips received a letter yesterday from his large farm in southern Kansas, right in the territory where they are complaining of dry weather and bugs, and his farmer says wheat looks fine; ground in fine condition.

John Inglis, the crop expert, was on the floor yesterday for the first time since his trip through the winter wheat country. His views coincide with those of H. V. Jones, whose report was issued a few days ago.

The estate of Marshall Field has sold its board of trade membership to J. M. Hooper, son of J. K. Hooper of the Hooper Grain company.

Estimated receipts for today were: Wheat, 10 cars; corn, 381 cars; oats, 234 cars; rye, 4 cars; barley, 44 cars; hogs, 16,000.

Pringle was a big buyer of "ups" on May corn last night, taking about 500,000 bu at 46½c.

Winnipeg received 110 cars of wheat, against 128 a year ago.

IN THE FINANCIAL WORLD.

NERVOUSNESS DEMONSTRATED BY EASE IN PRICES.

Chicago Houses Are Good Sellers Despite Previous Bullish Tendency—One Large Concern Pays Off $2,000,000 Loans — News of Big Slaughters Among Speculators in New York Comes Following Recent Panic—Money Markets Firm.

The ease with which prices ran off in the New York market yesterday demonstrated the nervousness that obtains among those who continue in the market. Chicago houses which on Thursday were inclined to be bullish were good enough sellers. One of the large houses has within the last week paid off $2,000,000 loans. There is a marked shrinkage in the volume of orders, except to sell.

It came from New York that there have been great slaughters among well to do speculators. Reggie Vanderbilt was credited with having lost $7,000,000, an amount sufficient, it was declared to "break" him. Two other Vanderbilts were credited with being large losers. Two firms of high standing, but not doing an overlarge business, were forced to liquidate. One firm, because of the large amount of one of its customers, got into trouble, and had to sell its New York stock exchange membership.

Another announcement coming over the wires was that one of the wealthiest men in New York insisted that financial interests should stop the break on Friday, otherwise the demoralization would have continued through Saturday and Monday.

More Uncertainties Ahead.

Locally it is learned that while there was good investment buying last Thursday and Friday the failure of stocks to show any marked and continuous improvement has discouraged that class of buying. Those who thought they were making fine purchases are now not so sure of their ground. This feeling is probably warranted by the action of the market. It is easy to believe that there will be further drives at special stocks which will weaken the entire list. There is a pool in Republic Iron and Steel and Tennessee Coal and Iron, whose disintegration has not yet been announced. It seems reasonably certain to come, and when it does there will follow weakness in other things. Canadian Pacific held well throughout the stormy days, but it cannot continue to resist the pressure. As to Erie and Wabash stocks, the assertion was made in Wall street yesterday that the roads would go into receiverships. This latter announcement is presented to give a notion of what is passing through the minds of those at the center of speculative activity.

Money Markets.

The money markets of New York and Chicago do not as yet show any symptoms of ease. On the contrary, both are firm. In New York 30 and 60 day funds were held at 6½ per cent, while 6 per cent was bid for all periods up to twelve months.

A 6 per cent rate for twelve months looks attractive for two reasons. First, because it is a good rate, and second, because twelve months from now there is every reason to believe money will be easier. There is good borrowing demand on commercial paper, and it may be well to consider whether some of the loans so eagerly made now are not made by merchants who have commitments in the stock market, and who are trying to protect them. If this be the case to any extent, it will develop six months from now, when the present borrowers find it necessary to pay off or renew their paper.

American Telephone.

General Financial News.

The Chicago and Northwestern railway company gives notice that all of the stock issued under the recent 25 per cent subscription privilege granted is now ready for delivery. The total amount of the new issue is $24,401,625.

The Michigan State Telephone company reports a total of 118,674 subscribers on Jan. 31, 1907, or an increase of 642 subscribers for January.

West Chicago Up.

In the local stock market West Chicago for a small lot sold at 27, an advance of 7 points over the last previous sale. West Chicago bonds were bid for without any offering. The impression is prevailing in La Salle street that not only will the traction ordinances win, but that the candidate for mayor who has indorsed them will be elected. But for the fact that the traction question has been dragging for nine years, there would even now be large speculative activity. Most of the holders of the securities have kept them through such a long period of uncertainty that there is a disposition to await final results before taking action.

IN FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, March 22.—Money was in quiet demand and good supply in the market today. Discounts were firm. The action of the Bank of France in raising its rates was considered to be a precautionary move against gold withdrawals to New York and the bullion brokers here quoted American eagles at ⅝ dearer. Trading on the stock exchange was generally dull, in spite of the easier rates for money. Fresh dealings were checked by the approach of the settlement. Gilt edged securities and home rails were inclined to sag in the absence of support. Foreigners drooped in sympathy with Paris. Americans attracted little attention in the forenoon. Dealers marked quotations above parity, but prices eased on local and continental realizations. The receipt of the opening quotations at New York steadied the market temporarily, but New York sold later, prices declined and business closed dull. Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 closed at 103⅛.

PARIS, March 22.—On the bourse today there was further weakness, due to the belief that the Bank of France's discount rate will be raised next week to 4 per cent. Russian imperial 4s closed at 73.25 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 488. Three per cent rentes, 94 francs 72½ centimes for the account. Exchange on London, 25 francs 31½ centimes for checks.

BERLIN, March 22.—Prices on the boerse weakened on the uneasiness in the international money market.

ASKS CARE IN RAIL LAWS.

COMMERCIAL ASSOCIATION COMMITTEE APPROVES RESOLUTION.

Executive Body Recognizes Necessity for Proper Regulation, but Suggests That Unnecessary and Unreasonable Restrictions Be Avoided and That Safety and Better Facilities Be Sought—Other News of the Railroads.

The executive committee of the Chicago Commercial association yesterday gave its approval to the following resolution passed by the transportation committee of the association in reference to railroad legislation, passed and contemplated:

Whereas, The transportation committee of the Chicago Commercial association recognizes the necessity for proper regulation of railways and other corporations, especially such regulation of railways as has culminated in the passage by congress of the so-called Hepburn bill, and,

Whereas, It was the belief of this committee that, with the enactment of said national legislation, the public would be reasonably content to await the outcome of this new, and, we believe, necessary experiment, and,

Whereas, This committee is fearful that this necessary act of the national legislature may be taken as an incentive for more extreme action on the part of other legislative bodies tending to unnecessary and unreasonable restrictions. Now be it

Resolved, By the transportation committee of the Chicago Commercial association, that we respectfully suggest that, in all acts dealing with the revenues of corporations, consideration be given to the imperative necessity for greater safety and better and increased facilities.

Propose Big Marine Terminal.

The proposition to build a great railroad and marine terminal at Summit, Ill., has been presented to the Great Lakes association at Buffalo. Hoyt King, secretary to President R. R. McCormick and Wallace G. Clark, trustee, who represented the sanitary board, returned to Chicago and reported the matter had met with favorable consideration by the marine interests.

It is the purpose to organize a terminal company in which all railroads and marine interests will be stockholders and afford facilities for the unloading of vessels and prompt transference to cars. The plan has not been worked out in detail. Railroad interests will be asked to consider the matter at an early date.

The building of terminals at Summit will relieve the present facilities and increase materially the promptness of transfer from steamers to railroads. Blockades of former years will be avoided. The authority of the drainage representatives did not extend beyond laying the project before the marine interests.

Decides on Premium Rate.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad has informed the Central Freight association of terms upon which it will accept shipments of cereals containing premiums. The cereal will be charged for at the actual weight at the carload rate, and the premium at the less carload rate for the article at 120 per cent of the actual weight. In other words, if the premium is crockery and the weight is 200 pounds it will be charged at the crockery rate for 240 pounds. This will probably be adopted by all lines at the next meeting of the association. Western lines will probably follow suit.

W. B. Nixon, northwestern passenger agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, was promoted to be assistant general passenger agent, with headquarters at St. Paul. Mr. R. D. Rovig, traveling passenger agent, will succeed Mr. Dixon.

Boy Preacher Closes Meeting.

Evangelistic meetings which have been held at the Faith Gospel mission, 214 West Chicago avenue, were concluded last night. The meetings were in charge of El-Joseph Raycroft, the boy evangelist. The mission is open every night.

MR. AND MRS. HAMBLETON BACK FROM WEDDING TRIP.

Will Hold a Post-Nuptial Reception on April 1 at 87 Rush Street—Causeries du Samedi to Meet at House of Miss Frances Keep Today—Marriage of Miss Alice Holton to Mr. Lewis Blanchard to Take Place on April 10.

Mr. and Mrs. Chalkley Jay Hambleton, 87 Rush street, have returned from their wedding trip and will hold a post-nuptial reception on Monday, April 1, from 4 to 7 o'clock.

Miss Frances Keep, 387 Dearborn avenue, will open her house for the meeting of the Causeries du Samedi today, when Dr. Alice Bougnot will give a lecture on "French Novels in 1907."

Miss Annie D. Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Wells, 4733 Vincennes avenue, will be married to Mr. Albert H. Noyes on Tuesday, April 2. It will be an afternoon ceremony at 2:30 o'clock, with only a few guests present. A reception will follow. The bridal party will be composed for the most part of out of town friends.

The wedding of Miss Alice Holton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Holton, 4345 Drexel boulevard, to Mr. Lewis Blanchard, will take place on Wednesday, April 10. It will be a house wedding.

The regular free public reading of the Club Francais will be given today at noon in Fullerton hall, Art institute. Mr. Papot will read from Victor Hugo's "Hernani."

Miss Margaret Gale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Vincent Gale, 612 East Division street, will return from Washington next Friday to spend Easter with her parents.

Mr. J. H. Wood, 5806 Rosalie court, left on Thursday for Deland, Fla., to join his family, who have been south the greater part of the winter. Later Mr. Wood and family will go to Pinehurst, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Schaefer of Leland avenue gave a dinner last evening for Mr. and Mrs. N. Gottlieb, who leave shortly for a six months' tour of Japan and China.

Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity will hold its regular monthly luncheon in Field's tea room today at noon.

SOCIETY AT NATION'S CAPITAL.

Miss Gretchen Isham of Chicago Weds Henry T. Shelton at Leiter Home Today.

Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—Mr. Henry T. Shelton and Miss Gretchen Isham, daughter of the late Edward Swift Isham of Chicago, will be married tomorrow. The wedding will be a quiet affair and will take place at the home of Mrs. L. Z. Leiter in Dupont circle. With Miss Isham is her sister, Miss A. E. Isham. The Misses Isham and Mr. Shelton toured Europe together last summer in an automobile and the story is that Mr. Shelton has been devoted to Miss Gretchen Isham for the last six or seven years. Mr. Edward S. Isham, her father, was, during his lifetime, a law partner of Robert T. Lincoln. Mr. Shelton is a nephew of the Rev. Dr. Shelton of Buffalo.

Señor Enrique Creel, the new Mexican ambassador, and Señora Creel gave their first formal dinner at the embassy tonight, complimentary to Secretary of State and Mrs. Root. The other guests were the secretary of war and Mrs. Taft, the secretary of commerce and labor and Mrs. Straus, the Haytian minister and Mme. Leger, the Bolivian minister and Mme. Calderon, the Norwegian minister and Mme. Hauge, the Colombian minister and Mme. Cortes, Senator and Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins, Justice and Mrs. Anderson, the Mexican minister to Cuba and Mme. Godoy, Mrs. Alexander R. Shephard, and Mr. John Barrett.

FOUND IN SQUALOR; GIRL DIES.

Madeline Woods, 6 Years Old, Succumbs to Disease—Mother, in Liquor, Is Fined by Court.

Madeline Woods, 6 years old, died at the county hospital yesterday from emaciation and the lack of care following an attack of scarlet fever. Her mother, Mrs. Catherine Woods, 192 Sangamon street, and an aunt, Adeline Duncan, have been arrested.

The girl was found in a room in her mother's house confined to a bed which witnesses said had not been disturbed for a month. At her side on the floor lay her mother with an empty whisky bottle beside her. Across the room lay the Duncan woman. The girl was struggling to nibble from a dry crust of bread, but her strength would not permit her to eat. The room is said to have been in the utmost disorder. Both the women were unconscious from drink.

The girl's father is said to have deserted his wife and is now working in the interests of a political party. A little brother was in the streets. The girl was taken to the hospital wrapped in a carriage blanket, but could not survive. The mother and aunt were fined for disorderly conduct. They were unmoved at the news of the girl's death.

PLAYGROUNDS GIVEN TO CITY.

Commercial Club Donates $10,000 Lots and Appropriates $2,000 for Their Equipment.

Deeds and abstracts of title to eight lots at West Chicago avenue and Lincoln streets, purchased by the Commercial club and donated to the city to be used as a playground were formally presented to Mayor Dunne by Benjamin Carpenter and Robert W. Parker, representing the club, yesterday. The mayor thanked the club and said he hoped its example would be followed by other organizations. The property has been used as a playground for a number of years. Last fall notice was served that it would be sold. No city funds were available for its purchase, and Ald. Beilfuss brought the matter to the attention of the Commercial club, which appropriated $10,000 for the purchase of the ground and $2,000 for its equipment.

SET DATE FOR BRIDGE OPENING.

Sanitary Board and Commercial Association Agree on 1910 and Will Cooperate to Obtain Law.

Bridges on the drainage canal will be opened in 1910, this date having been fixed as a result of a conference between sanitary trustees and the executive committee of the Chicago Commercial association. The committee yesterday adopted resolutions approving the date and pledging cooperation with the drainage board. The association and the trustees will work together to obtain an extension of time from the Illinois legislature.

—THE— HOUSEKEEPERS' CALENDAR.

Edited by the School of Domestic Arts and Science, 39 State Street.

IT is the purpose of the School of Domestic Arts and Science to present a word of interest or cheer to the many thousand home makers to whom THE TRIBUNE goes. Just a moment in the morning to read a paragraph which will instill a new thought into the regular duties of the household.

Sometimes it will be a bit of domestic science, sometimes a quotation from some great mind looking down on the army of workers marching along the level road of daily toil and giving them glimpses of the heights; sometimes it will be a bit of news, sometimes a word of warning—always from the point of view that the proper conduct of a home is worthy of a woman's love and intellect.

Registration for the spring term in sewing, dressmaking, millinery, cookery, serving, and home nursing is now going on and it is expected that next week's showing of classes will be a good one. Registration day on Friday was full of inquiry and many applications were made out. Take advantage of this fine season of study.

Attorney General Bona Reverses His Decision Importation of Alie Farmers.

GREAT BOON FOR D

States May Pay Passage for as Many Immigra as They Feel Inclined To.

BY RAYMOND.

Washington, D. C., March 23.—General Bonaparte's complete re his previous decision in regard to of states to assist immigrants to this country has opened the way development of the south.

President Roosevelt is vastly inte the economic situation in the southe and it was doubtless at his sugges the attorney general was induced the situation with the result that 'cular "refinement," which will b stood by lawyers and laughed at men, the immigration bureaus in ferent states will be permitted to business practically without limitat The result can hardly fail to be sion of the stream of immigrati from the north Atlantic seaboard ward the south and southwest. be good for both sections because of immigration now coming from with the possible exception of the Jew, is really unfitted for comme in large cities, and is more likely the American standard promptly in cultural districts of Kansas or Lou in the small factory towns of Geo South Carolina.

Gives State Wide Freedo

Only a few weeks ago the attor eral decided that under the new l whose passage was paid by a state came as the result of personal so or advertisement, being promised directly or indirectly, would unque be liable to exclusion. This decisi reversed. States may now advertise as they please, may pay the passa migrants, and do it with their o or with that of individuals. State accept passage money from associ corporations, but the individual me the corporation may subscribe as they please. By observing this sm nicality the immigration bureaus o ferent states may continue busine will take a new law by congress them.

After the new immigration law wa the president and the department merce and labor were besieged by influential people in the south, becau the law was on its passage in the was clearly seen that on an ordinar of the proposed new act it would pu to all attempts by the different stat courage immigration, except by t method of advertising, which does amount to a row of pins in Europe tries unless it is followed up by mo effort.

Southerns Yield a Point

The southern senators saw the dan were only induced to allow the sect through because of the general desi to the Japanese exclusion questio paragraph contained in the immigra Assurances were given at that time department of commerce and labo construe the new law, as it had done to the effect that the prohibition of labor and the payment of passage m plied to private individuals and ass and not to states.

The southern people in congress fated with this assurance, otherw would have killed the immigration right, even if it had involved a d delay in the solution of the Japane tion.

Until about the time congress adj was supposed by the immigration by Secretary Straus, and by the p the three branches of the governme were deeply interested in the econ velopment of the south, that the wo states, entirely independent of in and corporations, would go on as l gun so successfully last spring. partment of commerce and labor ally preparing to facilitate the a immigrants when, two days after adjourned, Attorney General Bona livered an opinion which upset all th and which startled the southern p the belief that they had been tricke a dozen northern senators, with advance of the administration its

First Opinion Unsolicite

The curious thing about this unf situation was that Attorney Gene parte was not asked for an opinio body in regard to a construction o law. The committee on immigrat house asked him for an opinion as t the immigrants brought into South by the commissioner of that st legally there or whether they wer to exclusion under the old immigrat The attorney general thereupon, i ter which closely followed that p rendered by the solicitor of the depa commerce and labor, held that und law the states had the legal right n advertise for immigrants but to pro employment in a general way and to passage outright for the general ben people of the state.

Unfortunately the attorney gene neral saw fit to do more than he w to do, and he proceeded to interpre law with disastrous results in the paragraph:

"Any question as to the proprie introduction of aliens under the lik stances hereafter would involve an tion of the provisions on this sub tained in the act of congress appr 20, 1907. Without entering into a sion of this question, it is sufficie to say that under the present law a entering under the circumstances the introduction of those above n would be unquestionably liable to in my opinion."

Roosevelt to the Rescu

It was this unexpected paragraph torney general's decision, dated which caused such amazement a at the department of commerce and which later on excited the sou western state officials to such an e they came down to Washington on the president in droves. Fortu them. President Roosevelt had an
